PREFACE.

The results of comparative philology are now so generally incorporated into our modern classical grammars, lexicons, and text-books, that even a slight knowledge of Sanskrit, if it be accurate so far as it goes, is of great service to the classical teacher in making his instruction interesting and effective. As independent disciplines, moreover, Sanskrit and comparative philology, and the literatures and religions of India, are constantly gaining in importance, so that, for example, Sanskrit is now taught at all but one of the twenty universities of the German Empire.

The design of this work, then, is twofold. In the first place, it is to serve as an introduction to these subjects for the students of our colleges and universities. The excellent Chrestomathy of Boehtlingk has no vocabulary; and few persons can be expected to buy the costly dictionary of Williams or that of Boehtlingk and Roth, at the outset, when they are uncertain whether Sanskrit will be of sufficient interest or use to them to warrant their continuing its study. What the beginner needs is an elementary work comprehending both text and vocabulary in a single volume. And accordingly, this Reader is meant to furnish ample material for about fifty weeks' reading, in a course of three hours a week, and, with the text, the appropriate lexical apparatus. The Reader is made as a companion-volume to Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar, and these two books supply all that is needed for the first year's study.

This Reader is designed, in the second place, to render a knowledge of Sanskrit accessible to the classical teachers of high-schools, academies, and colleges. These teachers, if they pursue this study at all, usually do so without the aid of an instructor. And it is especially the requirements of unaided private study that I have taken constant pains to meet. I state this fact thus explicitly, because, both here at Cambridge, and during my connection with the Johns Hopkins University (where the plan for this work was formed), numerous inquiries for such a book have been addressed to me by persons very remote from any of the higher institutions of learning.

If, incidentally, this work should help to correct some of the false notions which are prevalent respecting the relations of Sanskrit to other languages of the Indo-European family, and to save the literature from undue depreciation and from exaggerated praise, it will have served a worthy object.

So cumbrous or so meagre have been hitherto the appliances for acquiring even a moderate knowledge of Sanskrit, that classical students, when seeking such knowledge as an auxiliary to their special work, have found the labor discouragingly great. These students unquestionably have a legitimate and sufficient reason for undertaking Sanskrit, and I venture to hope that the difficulties of the beginning (see p. xv) have been so materially lessened that they will now find even a modicum of Sanskrit well worth the trouble of attainment.

In making my selections from the various Sanskrit writings, I have had two practical aims in view: first, to provide abundant material for thorough drill in the language of the classical period; and, secondly, to furnish a brief introduction to the works of the Vedic period, Mantra, Brāhmana, Accordingly I have not sought to give any thing new, but rather that which is best suited for beginners. The easy Nala is the Xenophon's Anabasis of Sanskrit students, and quotations from it appear very often in the grammars. And the first five chapters here given form a complete story. For an elementary reader, the Hitopadeça is unrivalled, and to leave it out would have been an inexcusable omission, unless, indeed, its place were taken by the Panchatantra. From this latter work I attempted to prepare some selections; but the text is in so unsatisfactory a condition, that I relinquished the plan. And so, although the Hitopadeça has been printed very often, I have given a considerable part2 of it here, choosing the fables on the ground of their intrinsic excellence and their interest as originals of well-known occidental stories.3 For similar reasons the six tales from the Kathā-sarit-sāgara were selected. On account of their easy style and simple narrative, they furnish admirable matter for exercise in rapid reading. The selections from "Manu" are so made as to illustrate some of the most important and interesting matters of Hindu custom and belief.4

Among the Vedic hymns (or Mantra-material) are, first, some of the easiest⁵; then some taken on account of their poetic⁶ or dramatic⁷ merit, or

 - ⁶ Selection xxxii. is the best.
 - ⁷ Selections xxxv., xxxvii., and lvi. are in their ethical interest¹; and finally some taken because of their historical importance.² For the most part, a repetition of the hymns given by Delbrueck and by Boehtlingk in their Chrestomathies has been avoided. Brāhmana pieces are chosen in such a way as to show the relation of this kind of literature to the hymns or Mantras.3 The selections from the Grihya-sūtras are the two most interesting chapters of Indian private antiquities, the wedding and the burial service. These texts are, to a certain extent, rubrics, and prescribe that numerous specified stanzas of the Rigveda be repeated at these ceremonials. Care has therefore been taken that all the stanzas here cited by their first words should be given in full among the selections from the hymns.4

Concerning the text, little need be said. It would have been either folly or idle pretense to make elaborate text-studies for the short extracts of which the Reader is composed.⁵ I have accordingly contented myself, in the main, with reprinting the text of the best editions. Misprints have of course been corrected, and I have endeavored to make the orthography conformable to the best standard⁶ and consistent throughout.⁷ Of some slight emendations, due mention will be made in the Notes. For the Nala, I followed the edition of Buehler in his Third Book of Sanskrit⁸; for the Hitopadeça, the text of Boehtlingk in the second edition of his Chrestomathy, and Mueller; for the Kathā-sarit-sāgara, Brockhaus; and for "Manu," Loiseleur Deslongchamps. I regret that the results of the studies of Buehler, Burnell, Hopkins, and Jolly on the text of "Manu" are not yet available.

² Such are the hymns for the dead and the wedding-hymn; likewise selection xxxvii., and selection xxxvi. (which contains the Sāvitrī). Selection lxii. is the Maitrāyanī version of the Hiranya-garbha hymn, Rigveda x. 121, and is given partly in order that those who possess copies of the Rigveda may study the two versions comparatively.

7 But some of the interesting orthographical peculiarities of the Maitrayanī Sanhitā I have allowed to stand.

8 See the "Brief List," page xvii.

It is a pleasant duty to acknowledge my thanks to Boehtlingk, who, in a way no less generous than unexpected, volunteered to look over all the proofs of the classical part of the text. For the well-established and welledited Vedic texts, such help was of course not needed.

For the Rigveda, Aufrecht's second edition was made the standard. For the selections from the Maitrāyanī Sanhitā, I am indebted to the kindness of its editor, Dr. Leopold von Schroeder, of Dorpat. The extracts from the Brāhmanas naturally follow the editions of Weber and Aufrecht. The chapters from Açwalāyana are a reprint from Stenzler's edition, with some unimportant typographical licenses.

The vocabulary, it is almost needless to say, is based on the great Lexicon of Boehtlingk and Roth. I should of course deviate from it only with the utmost circumspection; but I trust that I have not followed it slavishly.

As for the extent of the vocabulary, it is designed to be complete for the text given in the Reader, and also, it may be added, for the text in the Appendix to the Grammar.

It is proper to mention here several matters touching the general plan of the vocabulary. It is not a mere list of the actually occurring Sanskrit words with their English equivalents. So far as possible, it aims to do with thoroughness two things:

First, as regards the forms, To enable the student to trace every word back to its root, by giving references to Whitney's chapters (xvi. and xvii.) on word-formation, and by giving the root itself, and, in the case of secondary and tertiary derivatives, the intermediate forms, even when these do not occur in the text at all. Thus, for the complete explanation of mithyopacāra (p. 217), are given, first, mithyā, then the older form thereof, mithuyā,² then the adjective mithu from which the adverb is derived, and finally the root mith, although neither the adverbs nor the adjective nor any verbal form of the root occurs in the text. In like manner, car + upa is given solely on account of upacāra.

Secondly, as regards the meanings, To enable the student to trace every signification back to the radical idea, by giving not only the meaning required for translating a particular passage, but also, if this is a secondary or tertiary or later meaning, the intermediate meanings, and in their logical order of development. Thus the only meanings of the word pāda, as it occurs in the text of this Reader, are 'foot' or 'leg,' in ten passages, and 'verse of a three-versed stanza,' in one passage (6012). The history and uses of the word may be clearly understood from Boehtlingk and Roth. The original meaning 'foot' was extended to that of 'leg'; then specialized to the meaning 'limb of a quadruped'; then generalized to the meaning 'quarter' (as, conversely, the English word quarter is specialized to the meaning 'fourth part of a quadruped, including a leg,' e.g., in quarter of beef); once more it is specialized to the meaning 'quarter of a four-versed stanza,' i.e. 'verse'; and then, at last, the use of the word is illogically extended, and it is made to denote a verse of even a three-versed stanza. To have given the meanings 'foot, leg, verse,' in three words, and perhaps in the order 'verse, leg, foot,' would have sufficed, it is true, for the purpose of making a translation; but such translation demands of the student only the most thoughtless and mechanical labor. On the other hand, by indicating briefly the development and connection of meanings, the attention of the student is directed to the processes which are constantly going on in the life and growth of language; and thus, although Sanskrit is a dead language, the study of Sanskrit may be made a study of life and growth.

The illustration of the transitions of meaning by analogies from the English and other familiar tongues would, it seemed to me, greatly increase the interest and usefulness of the vocabulary. And so, considerable space has been devoted to this matter. Thus under vyāma (p. 254, top), 'a stretch-out,' i.e. 'a fathom,' are adduced the closely parallel English fathom, from Anglo-Saxon fæðm, 'the extended arms,' and also ὀργνιά and French toise, both meaning 'fathom,' and of common origin respectively with ὀρέγω and Latin tendere, 'stretch.'1

In a book intended partly for persons whose chief interest in Sanskrit is from the side of its relations to the classical languages and to our mothertongue, etymological comparisons are plainly called for. Accordingly, the kindred words from the Greek, Latin, Anglo-Saxon, and English have been given,² and always along with their meanings. It is hoped that these comparisons, presenting, as they do, many familiar words with which the learner can associate what is new and strange, will prove a useful aid to the memory. Etymology is a subject in which there is large room for reasonable difference of opinion on matters of detail, and on such matters well-recognized authorities often disagree. I have tried to use the standard works of reference in the light of the best and latest etymological criticism at my command, and to distinguish with care between what is certain and what is mere conjecture. In the revision of the greater part of my manuscript for the press, I had the benefit of Kluge's valuable dictionary. His acceptance of the current comparisons has often given me assurance, and his sober judgment has often confirmed me in scepticism or silence on doubtful points. In the numerous cases where the undoubtedly allied words are too many to be given in full, I have usually selected those forms which were the simplest or the most interesting, or those whose kinship was clearest.2

These comparisons include only genuinely cognate words, as distinguished from borrowed words; the latter have as a rule been excluded, or, if given, have been characterized as borrowings.3 Thus evos, Latin sen-ex, and English sen-green are given on page 266, all as genuine cognates of sana; the words senate, senator, senatorial, senescent, senile, senilty, senior, sire, sir, seigniorage, etc., are not mentioned, because they are not genuine English cognates, but only more or less ancient borrowings or more or less direct derivatives from the Latin.⁴ So under the root srp (p. 276) are given Latin serpens and reptilis, and it would be superfluous to add the borrowed English serpent and reptile.

The accents of all words have been regularly marked in the headings of the articles, so far as the accents are known from the occurrence of the words in any accentuated texts of the literature.⁵ But in addition to these words, the verb-forms immediately following the root have been uniformly accented, according to the rules, except in a few doubtful cases; and a number of compounds occurring on the pages of Nala have been accented,

⁵ For these accents I have relied on Strassburg, Karl J. Boehtlingk's Sanskrit-Wörterbuch in Kürz-Trübner. 1883. Royal 8°. Price 10 Mark erer Fassung as far as it has appeared, i.e. to the end of bh, and for the rest of the alphabet, on the great thesaurus of BOEHTbeen given, in addition to Latin senex, the LINGK AND ROTH. There are many words words senior, senectus, senilis, senesco, senator, accented in more than one way (e.g., rājyá, senātus, etc.; but these are readily suggested rājyà, rájya, ásana, āsaná, dáridra, darídra, dāíva, dāivá, bhūtí, bhūti, vṛṣṭí, ⁸ Thus the interesting compound sene-schal vṛṣṭi, veṇu, véṇu); such have generally is added under sana, not as a genuine Eng- been left unmarked; but of a few common lish cognate, but as a borrowing through words like mánu, dvipád, paçú, pāpá, and the French from Continental Germanic, mati, the prevailing accent is given, espewhere its first member is indeed a genuine cially, if (as in the case of bhrtí or pātrí) the other accent is rare, or (as in the case of cúska) not authenticated.

What form should be given to the headings of articles is often a question. For denominative verbs, I have chosen the stem-form (e.g., mantraya rather than mantray); to this is prefixed the root-sign (v), merely in order to eatch the eye; the sign must not be understood as meaning that such stems are in any wise co-ordinate with roots. The stems of the perfect active participle and of the primary comparatives are given as ending in vāns and yāns, but without any implication that these are theoretically better than the weaker forms. Roots with medial or final ar or r are given in the latter form, and so are the stems in ar or r.²

The synopses of conjugational forms which follow each verbal root are based on the collections, still in manuscript, made by Professor Whitney.³ These were placed at my disposal by him with the greatest kindness. They include all the verb-forms cited by the St. Petersburg Lexicon and Boeht-LINGK'S Abridgment, as occurring in the actual literature, besides very extensive gleanings made independently by Professor Whitney from texts represented in the Lexicon,⁴ and from others published since its completion,⁵ or even not yet published.6 In the description and classification of the forms, I have followed Whitney. It often happens that there are several forms in actual use for the same tense; in such cases, the commonest one has been given, or else the one prescribed by the Hindu Root-book (dhātu-pātha), or sometimes more than one form. Although in the case of many roots the agrist is confined almost exclusively to the Vedic language, I have nevertheless given the agrist in such cases in order to fill out the conjugational scheme, since this seemed desirable from a pedagogical point of view. For pedagogical reasons, also, the secondary conjugations have been for the most part omitted. Many roots which are conjugated regularly in only one voice show forms of the other voice in the Epos, especially where the metre demands them. It is very difficult to say just how far such forms should be included, and my course in accepting or rejecting them has been, I fear, not wholly consistent.

The Notes, which form the third part of this work, will be issued as soon as is practicable. It is designed that they shall be as brief as possible, but shall render ample assistance in the interpretation of difficult passages and

An open acknowledgment of my thanks is due to the printers of the vocabulary, Messrs. J. S. Cushing & Co. They have performed their part with such intelligence, accuracy, and skill as to merit most cordial recognition.

In conclusion, I desire to make public expression of my gratitude to my honored teacher, Professor William Dwight Whitney, for his constant interest in this undertaking and for his generous aid. I can only hope that the book may do something to further the cause in which he has labored long and devotedly, and that it may help to enlarge the scope of classical teaching, to quicken the interest in the history of our mother-tongue, and to make Sanskrit study among us increasingly fruitful.

NOTE TO THE FOURTH ISSUE (1903).

THE references to Whitney's Sanskrit Grammar which are given in Parts II, and III. of this book are, I believe, absolutely correct throughout for the first edition of the Grammar. The second edition of the Grammar did not appear until after the plates for Parts II. and III. of the Reader were made. The section-numbers of the second edition of the Grammar (see Whitney's Preface thereto) are substantially unchanged from those of the first; but there are some slight alterations, notably in the sequence from § 98 to § 108, and again in the sequence from § 708 to § 713 (whereby the references to the section on the important verb çru are thrown out of gear). Occasionally, too, a statement has been taken from one section and put into another and more appropriate section: thus the euphonic treatment of bhos has been shifted from § 176a to § 174b. Moreover, the subsections are much more thoroughly marked (with a, b, c, etc.) in the second edition. Users of the second or third edition of the Grammar will often have to make a slight allowance for these changes, seeking, for example, 8442 under 844a, 37112 under 371k, and the like. It seemed hardly worth while to alter the plates to suit these changes; a little practical common sense will usually offset the apparent inaccuracy. Mention of these matters has already been made by me below, in the Postscript, p. 405; but as it seems usually to be overlooked there, I have thought it well to repeat the mention in this more conspicuous place. INTRODUCTORY SUGGESTIONS.

It is chiefly at the beginning that the difficulties of Sanskrit present themselves. The variety of forms, the strange alphabet, the peculiarities of word and sentence combination, —all these simultaneously confront the student at the very outset. Accordingly, the plan followed with my classes, and for which provision is here made, is to distribute these difficulties over the first few weeks of the course. The common paradigms of nouns and verbs should first be learned. These are given by the Grammar in transliteration. The reading of the first four pages of the Nala in Roman letters should then be taken up. The Reader gives these in transliteration on an inset conveniently facing the same text in nagari letters. The student may thus become familiar with the form and sound of the vocables, without being embarrassed by the alphabet and the running together of the words. Next, the same familiar text should be read aloud over and over again in nāgarī letters. I am convinced that the easiest way to master the alphabet is to read frequently in it words which one already knows. The next step will be the reading of pages five to nine without the help of a transliteration, but with the aid given by the typographical separation of the words, which has been carried out so far as is practicable, though in violation of Indian usage. Finally, from this point on, the reading may be continued without other help for the difficulties of euphonic and graphic combination than is offered by the notes.

After finishing the Nala, the student should take up the Hitopadeça. Selections xvii., xx., and xi. are very easy and are good to begin with. The remaining short ones from vi. to xxi. may then follow in order; and finally the long selections ii. to v.

It is recommended that the student use the stories from the Kathā-sarit-sāgara for exercise in rapid reading, as soon as he has acquired a fair vocabulary from what precedes. The passages from "Manu" may be read as they stand.

Of the Vedic selections, the easiest are numbers xxxi. (Rigveda i. 1), xxxiii., xxxviii., xxxix., xli., xlv., xlvi., and lix.; and it is advisable to read these first and in the order here mentioned. Selection xxxii., as being one of poetic merit and not over-hard, may next be taken up, and after it, the Varuna-hymns, selections xliii.-xliv.; then the hymns in dramatic form, selections xxxv., xxxvii., and lvi.

After these, selections xxxvi., xl., xlii., xlviii., xlviii., liv., and lxii. may be rapidly read. There will then remain the selections for the burial-service, xlix.-liii., lvii., lx., lxi., and xxxiv., and those for the wedding, lviii., lvii., and lv. These may properly be read last, in order that they may be fresh in the mind when reading the Sūtras, where constant reference is made to them.

The Brāhmana pieces may be read in the order in which they are printed; but selections lxvi., lxvii., lxviii., and lxxii. ought not to be taken up, unless selections lvi., xlvii., lxii., and xlvi. have previously been studied.

It is very undesirable to attempt to read the Sūtra chapters until one is familiar with the burial and wedding stanzas just mentioned. It is advisable to write out a translation of these chapters, and to insert therein each mantra in its proper place, writing out the original of the mantra in full, and its translation, the latter also in metre, if possible.

Since the synopses following each verbal root in the vocabulary represent the great mass of all the forms in actual use (rather than those simply prescribed by the grammarians), and so correspond to the "principal parts" of the Latin and Greek verbs, the student should make it his duty to learn the synopsis for each root when he first meets verbal forms of that root in the text.

Attention is called to the explanations and abbreviations (pages 289-294); these should be looked over carefully before using the vocabulary.

A BRIEF LIST OF BOOKS FOR STUDENTS OF SANSKRIT.

This list has a purely practical aim,1 and is restricted to a few of the more important and useful books and2 to such as are neither rare nor out of print. It includes (a) a grammar, (b) readers, (c) dictionaries, (d) classical works, books for the study (e) of the Rigveda and its literature, and (f) of the Atharvaveda, and last (g) some books on antiquities and the history of the literature and the religions of India.

1. Whitney, William Dwight. A Sanskrit Grammar, including both the classical language, and the older dialects, of Veda and Brahmana. Leipzig, Breitkopf and Härtel. London, Trübner & Co. 1879. 8°. Price (bound in cloth) 12 shillings.

This may be had in Boston of Ginn and Company. The work exists also in a German translation, which may be had of the Leipzig publishers.

2. Bühler, Georg. Third Book of Sanskrit. With a glossary by Vishnu P. Shastri Pandit. Second edition. Bombay. 1877. 12°. 128 pages of text and 97 of glossary. Price 9 annas.

This book can be procured from Trübner & Co. in London (price 3 shillings). It contains the entire Story of Nala (26 chapters), Daçaratha's Death (Rāmāyana, ii. 63-64), and four stories from the Panchatantra. For beginners, the typography proves troublesome and the glossary too meagre; but the little volume is inexpensive and contains excellent material for easy and rapid reading, and so is highly to be recommended to those who have finished the classical part of this Reader and wish to continue their Sanskrit. For such students the glossary would be quite sufficient.

3. Böhtlingk, Otto. Sanskrit-Chrestomathie. Zweite, gänzlich umgearbeitete Auflage. St. Petersburg. 1877. Large 8°. 372 pages. Price 4 Mark 80 Pfennige.

This work and the two following are publications of the Russian Imperial Academy, and should be ordered through the Academy's agent, Leopold Voss, of Leipzig. The volume contains selections from the Veda (Mantra, Brāhmana, and Sūtra), from the Mahā-bhārata, Rāmāyana, Vishnu-purāna, Kathā-sarit-sāgara, Hitopadeça, "Manu's Laws," and Pānini's Grammar, and from various other books; a rich collection of proverbs; the Vedānta-sāra, a philosophical treatise, in text and translation; and the entire drama, Ratnāvalī. The Vedic hymns are all translated in the volume mentioned below, no. 15; and the notes show where many of the other selections may be found translated. Like all publications of the Academy, this is sold at an extremely low price. Since the book has no vocabulary, the student will at this point need to get a dictionary. need to get a dictionary.

¹ Hence the prices are included. Both the Mark cent. The books will cost the American purchaser and the shilling may be reckoned as a quarter of a somewhat more or less according to his facilities for dollar. The prices given with the titles are pub- obtaining foreign books. lishers' prices. To these prices, except when given in dollars, should be added the duty, which is 25 per however, be had of second-hand dealers.

 Böhtlingk, Otto. Sanskrit-Wörterbuch in kürzerer Fassung. St. Petersburg. 1879-. 4°.

To be ordered through Voss (see above). Parts I. to IV. have appeared, and reach to the end of bh; they cover 1167 pages, i.e. nigh two-thirds of the whole, and cost 34 Mark 80 Pfennige. The rest may be expected in the course of 1885. The manuscript is ready as far as varna. The work is an abridgment of the following.

 Böhtlingk, Otto, and Rudolph Roth. Sanskrit-Wörterbuch. St. Petersburg. 1855–1875. Seven volumes. 4°. Price 177 Mark 90 Pfennige.

To be ordered through Voss (see above). This work, which is often called the "St. Petersburg Lexicon," is by far the most important production of Sanskrit scholarship. To such as wish to make any special study of the language and literature, it is absolutely indispensable.

6. Williams, Monier. A Sanskrit-English Dictionary, etymologically and philologically arranged, with special reference to Greek, Latin, Gothic, German, Anglo-Saxon, and other cognate Indo-European languages. London and New York, Macmillan and Co. 1872. 4°. 1186 pages. Price 94 shillings 6 d. in England, or $24 in the United States.

This is the only dictionary of Sanskrit into English which approaches completeness. It is in one compact and handy volume and is very convenient for reading works of the classical period. Unfortunately, the common meanings of a word are not distinguished from those which are seldom or never found. All Sanskrit words are given in transliteration, and the roots and more important words in $n\bar{a}gari$ letters also.

Williams, Monier. S'akuntală, a Sanskrit drama in seven acts, by Kālidāsa.
 Second edition. London and New York, Macmillan and Co. 1876. 8°.
 339 pages. Price 21 shillings in England, or $5.25 in the U.S.

This gives literal English translations of all the metrical passages, explanatory notes, and the Sauskritization of the Prakrit passages, and all on the same page with the text of this, the most famous of the plays.

8. Kielhorn, Franz, and Georg Bühler. Panchatantra. Edited with notes. Bombay. 1868. 8°.

The work constitutes numbers IV., III., and I. of the "Bombay Sanskrit Series." Number IV. (comprehending book I.) appeared in a second edition in 1873. The book may be had of Trübner & Co., London. The price of the entire work is 8 shillings; but the first book may be had separately for 3 shillings. The Panchatantra is easy and entertaining reading. It has been admirably translated into German by Benfey: Pantschatantra. Leipzig, F. A. Brockhaus. 1859. 2 vols. 8°. Price 24 Mark. The translation is accompanied by a very valuable history of fable-literature.

9. Delbrück, Berthold. Vedische Chrestomathie. Mit Anmerkungen und Glossar. Halle, Buchhandlung des Waisenhauses. 1874. 8°. Price 3 Mark.

This contains 47 hymns from the Rigveda. Of these, only five are repeated in this Reader. Both text and glossary are in transliteration. On account of the small price of the book, its mention may prove useful to such as do not wish to buy the two complete editions following (numbers 11 and 12).

 Windisch, Ernst. Zwölf Hymnen des Rigveda. Mit Sāyaṇa's Commentar. Text. Wörterbuch zu Sāyaṇa. Appendices. Leipzig, S. Hirzel. 1883. 8°.
 Price 5 Mark.

This gives the text, and the comment of the great scholiast, both in $n\bar{a}gari$ letters. The text is printed with the genuine accentuation (as in this Reader). The book serves a useful purpose as introduction to the native Hindu or traditional exegesis of the Veda. The vocabulary does not cover the hymns themselves; but seven of the twelve hymns are translated in the little book mentioned below, no. 15.

 Aufrecht, Theodor. Die Hymnen des Rigveda. Herausgegeben. Zweite Auflage. Bonn, Adolph Marcus. 1877. 2 volumes. 8°. Price 20 Mark.

The entire sanhita text is given in transliteration, and extracts from the pada text at the foot of each page. The exceedingly valuable appendix contains lists of the poets, divinities, and metres, and a complete table of first lines of every stanza, with references to the concordant texts of other Vedas.

 Müller, F. Max. The Hymns of the Rigveda, in the Samhita and Pada texts, reprinted from the editio princeps. Second edition. London, Trübner & Co. 1877. 2 volumes. 8°. Price 32 shillings.

This edition gives the two texts complete on parallel pages and in $n\bar{a}gar\bar{\imath}$ letters. The names of the poets, divinities, and metres are given at the beginning of each hymn.

 Grassmann, Hermann. Wörterbuch zum Rig-veda. Leipzig, F. A. Brockhaus. 1873 [-1875]. 8°. Price 30 Mark.

This is not only a dictionary, but also a complete concordance to the Rigveda. It is a work of wonderful industry, method, clearness, and accuracy. Aside from the St. Petersburg Lexicon, this dictionary stands next in importance, for Vedic students, after the Vedic text itself.

Grassmann, Hermann. Rig-veda. Uebersetzt und mit kritischen und erläuternden Anmerkungen versehen. Leipzig, F. A. Brockhaus. 1876. 1877. volumes. 8°. Price 24 Mark.

This translation is entirely in metre, except for a few corrupt or difficult hymns. The student can almost invariably see just what word Grassmann intended as the rendering of any given word of the text. This work is especially useful as giving a convenient general view of the contents of the Rigveda, and as enabling the student to grasp easily many matters touching the metres, the arrangement, and the textual condition of the original.

Geldner, Karl, und Adolf Kägi. Siebenzig Lieder des Rigveda. Uebersetzt.
 Mit Beiträgen von R. Roth. Tübingen. H. Laupp'sche Buchhandlung.
 1875. 12°. Price 3 Mark.

Thirty-six of the seventy hymns of which this book gives metrical translations were later incorporated by Böhtlingk into his Chrestomathy (no. 3, above).

Aufrecht, Theodor. Das Aitareya Brāhmaņa. Mit Auszügen aus dem Commentare von Sāyaṇācārya und anderen Beilagen herausgegeben. Bonu, Adolph Marcus. 1879. 8°. Price 11 Mark.

This Brāhmaua belongs to the Rigveda. The text is in transliteration. The translation of Haug (Loudon, Trübner & Co. 1863) would be of help; but it is inaccurate and hard to get. A good many passages are translated in volumes I., II., and V. of Muir (below, no. 26). Using these as an introduction, and the St. Petersburg Lexicon for help in hard places, an advanced student can make good progress with this text.

Stenzler, Adolf Friedrich. Indische Hausregeln. Sanskrit und deutsch herausgegeben. I. Açvalāyana. Erstes Heft. Text. Leipzig. 1864. 8°. Price 2 Mark. —Zweites Heft. Uebersetzung. 1865. Price 3 Mark.

Published by the German Oriental Society, in volumes III. and IV. of the Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes. To be ordered through the Society's agent, F. A. Brockhaus, ln Leipzig. These are the Grihya-sūtras belonging to the Rigveda.

 Roth, R., und Whitney, W. D. Atharva Veda Sanhita. Herausgegeben. Erster Band. Text. Berlin, Ferd. Dümmler. 1856. Royal 8°. Price 28 Mark 50 Pfennige.

This is the most important and interesting of the Vedas, after the Rik. It is full of magic incantations and other products of curious superstitions.

- Garbe, Richard. Vaitâna Sûtra. The Ritual of the Atharvaveda. Edited with critical notes and indices. London, Trübner & Co. 1878.
 Price 5 shillings.
- 20. Garbe, Richard. Vaitâna Sûtra. Das Ritual des Atharvaveda. Aus dem Sanskrit übersetzt und mit Anmerkungen versehen. London, Trübner & Co. 1878. 8°. Price 5 shillings.

Since this is the only Crauta-sutra published with translation, and since it is to be had easily and cheaply, it is recommended as an introduction to the works of this class.

 Weber, Albrecht. The history of Indian Literature. Translated from the second German edition by John Mann and Theodor Zachariae. Second edition. London, Trübner & Co. 1878. 8°. Price 10 shillings 6 pence.

This is a systematic treatise covering both the Vedic and the classical Sanskrit literature. It gives abundant and practical bibliographical information. As a guide and as a work of reference it is of the utmost value.

22. Zimmer, Heinrich. Altindisches Leben. Die Cultur der vedischen Arier. Nach den Sainhitä dargestellt. Berlin, Weidmannsche Buchhandlung. 1879. 8°. Price 10 Mark.

Under the different categories—geography, climate, minerals, plants, animals, agriculture, commerce, dress, food, amusements, family relations, art, etc.—the Vedic texts touching these subjects are discussed, and the results deducible from them are put together in a very readable and pleasant way.

23. Kägi, Adolf. Der Rigveda. Die älteste Literatur der Inder. Zweite, umgearbeitete und erweiterte, mit vollständigem Sach- und Wortregister versehene Auflage. Leipzig, Otto Schulze. 1881. 12°. Price 4 Mark.

This contains an account of the Vedic writings in general, descriptions of the gods in language agreeing closely with the actual words of the original as cited in the notes, and sketches of some of the more important phases of Vedic life and thought. The numerous notes are highly useful as a guide to the already extensive literature of these subjects, and point out many interesting parallels of custom, belief, and expression to be found in biblical and classical antiquity.

 Barth, Auguste. The religions of India. Authorized translation by Rev. J. Wood. London, Trübner & Co. 1882.
 Price 16 shillings.

The subject is treated in five chapters corresponding to the five grand phases of religious development in India: the Vedic religion; Brahmanism (ritual, philosophic speculation, decline); Buddhism; Jainism; and Hinduism (the sects and their great deities, Vishuuism and Çivaism, reforming sects, cultus). The copious references to the literature of the subjects in hand add greatly to the value of the work.

Oldenberg, Hermann. Buddha; his life, his doctrine, his order. Translated from the German by William Hoey. London, Williams and Norgate. 1882.
 Price 18 shillings.

Oldenberg has recently finished editing (in five volumes) the Vinaya Pitakam, one of the most important among the Buddhist sacred books. He has a wide and deep knowledge of the original Pāli sources, and in his use of them he is guided by rare critical acumen and good common-sense. His account of Buddha's life, doctrine, and order contains the best results of his studies and they are presented in an extremely attractive form.

26. Muir, John. Original Sanskrit texts on the origin and history of the people of India, their religions and institutions. Collected, translated, and illustrated. London, Trübner & Co. 1872–1874. 5 volumes. 8°.

The first four volumes have appeared in a second edition, and the second volume in a third edition. The third volume costs 16 shillings. The price of each of the others is 21 shillings. The first volume discusses the origin of caste. The fifth is devoted to the cosmogony, mythology, religious ideas, life, and manners of the Indians in the Vedic age.

hṛcchayāviṣṭacetana, α. possessing a love-filled mind. [hṛcchayāviṣṭa + cétanā, 1298a, 334².]

hfd [397], n. heart; esp. as seat of the emotions and of mental activity in general; also, properly, region of the heart. [see under crad.]

hfdaya, n. heart; -1. prop. heart, as an organ of the body, 100^{2} ; -2. fig. heart, as seat of the feelings. [see hrd and 397.]

hṛṣ (hṛṣyati, -te [761a]; jaháṛṣa, jahṛṣé; hṛṣitá, hṛṣṭá; -hṛṣya; harṣáyati, -te). be excited, esp. with pleasure or fear; (of the hair) bristle or stand on end by reason of fright or pleasure; be impatient; -hṛṣṭa, delighted; -hṛṣitá: (of the hair) standing on end; (of flowers) not drooping, unwithered, fresh; -intens. be very impatient, 84¹⁷; -caus. excite pleasantly, gladden. [for ghṛṣ: cf. Lat. horrēre, *hors-ere, 'bristle, shudder'; hirsūtus, 'bristly, rough'; hor-deum, Ger. Gers-te, 'barley,' so called from its bristly ears.] + pra, give one's self up to joy, exult; praḥṛṣṭa, delighted, glad.

hṛṣitasragrajohīna, a. having unwithered garlands and free from dust. [hṛṣita-

sraj + rajo-hīna, 1257.]

hetú, m. -1. prop. an impeller, and so occasioner, causer, occasion, cause; hetos, (like Lat. causā) on account of; trāsahetos, from fear; -2. reason, argument, proof; -3. means, 41¹⁶. [vhi, 1161a.]

hetu-çāstra, n. reason-book, rationalistic work; dialectics.

hema or heman, n. gold.

hemantá, m. winter. [cf. hima: 1172⁴.] helā, f. carelessness; levity. [for helā, from √hīd, q.v.]

hāima, a. golden. [hema, 1208f.]

hótṛ, m. -1. priest, chief priest, whose assistant in oldest times was the adhvaryu; Agni, as the chiefest hotṛ, 69², 88˚; -2. in the highly developed ritual, the first of the four chief priests, see ṛtvij. [prop. 'offerer,' from \hu, 'offer': but the sense of 'invoker,' naturally suggested by his function in the ritual, was popularly associated with it and the word thus connected with \hū, 'invoke.'] hotrá, n. offering, sacrifice, both the action and the thing offered. [Vhu, 1185a.]

hóma, m. a pouring into the fire; oblation;

sacrifice; observe that the older word is āhuti. [Vhu, 1166.]

hradá, m. pool, lake. [cf. vhlad.]

V hras (hrásati, -te; hrasitá, hrastá; hrāsáyati). become less; caus. diminish. [w. hrás-īyāns, 'less,' cf. χείρων, *χέρσζων, 'worse,' and for the mg, cf. Lat. dētero, 'lessen,' w. dēterior, 'worse.']

hrād (hrādate; hrāditá; hrādáyati). sound (of drums); rattle (of stones or dry bones). [for *ghrad: cf. καχλάζω, *κα-χλάδ-jω, 'sound' (of liquids, breakers, rain), κε-χλάδ-ώς, 'resounding' (song of victory); AS. grāt-an, obsolete Eng. greet, 'cry, lament'; χαράδ-ρα, 'noisy mountain torrent': see hrāduni.]

+ sam, strike (intrans.) together so as to rattle; caus. cause to rattle.

hrādúni, f. hail-stones, hail. [so called from its rattling sound, \hrād: cf. χάλαζα, *χαλαδ-ja, Church Slavonic gradű, Lat. grando, stem grand-in, 'hail.']

V hlād (hládate; hlādáyati, -te). cool off, intrans., refresh one's self; caus. cool or refresh, trans.

hlādaka, f. -ikā, a. cooling, refreshing. [Vhlād, 1181 and a 8.]

hlādikāvant, a. rich in cooling. [from fem. of hlādaka, substantively?]

V hvr (hvárati, -te; áhvārṣīt; hvrtá; hvāráyati). go crookedly; bend over, fall.

+ vi, fall; caus. overturn.

EXPLANATIONS AND ABBREVIATIONS.

CITATIONS.

All numbers below 107 refer to the text of this Reader, which is cited by page and line; thus, 79² means page 79, line 2. When still more precise reference is needed, the first half of a line is designated by ^a and the second by ^b.

All numbers above 107 refer to the sections of Whitney's Grammar. Observe, however, that reference is occasionally made to grammar-sections preceding § 107, and that the word "Whitney" is then prefixed to the number to show that the Grammar is meant. The grammar-sections sometimes have subdivisions unmarked by letters or numbers. In referring to these, a small superior number is used, and designates the (typographical) paragraph as counted from the last lettered or numbered subsection. Thus 3306 refers to the paragraph beginning "Pl.: nom.-voc. masc."; 371½ begins with "From str come"; 12228, with "The accent of derivatives"; 1222c2², with "In the Brāhmanas."

SIGNS.

The root-sign (V) is prefixed to roots and quasi-roots to catch the eye or as an abbreviation. It is also set before denominative verb-stems, although these are of course in no sense roots.

The plus-sign (+) is set before prepositions with which verbs appear in composition and before certain other elements used as prefixes.

A star (*) signifies that the word or stem or root to which it is prefixed does not actually occur in that form.

A half-parenthesis on its side (_) is used to show that two vowels, which, for the sake of clearness, are printed with hiatus in violation of the rules of euphonic combination, should be combined according to those rules.

A hyphen is sometimes used to avoid the repetition of an element of a compound; thus in the article loka, p. 235, para-stands for para-loka.

In Greek words, the old palatal spirant yod is represented by j, pronounced of course as English y. A very few Slavic and Lithuanian words occur, in which the actual or original nasalization of a vowel is denoted by an inverted comma, thus, e, a. Anglo-Saxon a has the sound of a in man.

ABBREVIATIONS.

It is hoped that most of these, if not all, will be found self-explaining. To preclude any misunderstanding, however, a complete list of the abbreviations is given below, p. 293.

But certain abbreviations and words are used in an arbitrary way and require more explanation than is given in the list.

When both the letters, m and n, follow a stem, they mean that it shows both masculine and neuter case-forms.

An "etc." following a reference that stands after a certain definition signifies that the word is of common occurrence in that meaning.

The abbreviation [do.] is used to avoid repetition of identical items in the square brackets at the end of articles; for examples, see the three words following abhivāda, p. 119.

The etymological cognates are usually introduced by the conventional "cf."; this implies that the words which the reader is bidden to "compare" are akin. The fact that two related words are compared implies as a rule only that they are radically akin, and not that their formative suffixes are identical. Thus with anta is compared English end, although this corresponds strictly only to the Sanskrit secondary derivative antya. So asthan, $\partial \sigma \tau \epsilon \sigma \nu$, and $\sigma \sigma \tau \epsilon \sigma \nu$ are radically identical, though not of entirely parallel formation.

On the other hand, where it is desired to call attention, not to radically kindred words, but to words analogous only in metaphor or in transfer of meaning, the brief phrase, "for mg, cf.," is used; and this is to be understood as standing for the phrase, "for a parallelism in the development of meaning, compare," or, "for an analogous instance of transition of meaning, compare."

Specially important references to the Grammar are marked by the word "see": thus under nārāyaṇá (p. 181), special attention is called to § 1219, which shows that this word is a simple patronymic of nára, and is not what the text (at 57 °) says it is, a compound of nārá + áyana.

GENERAL ARRANGEMENT OF THE VOCABULARY.

The order of the articles is strictly and solely alphabetical (see below). Respecting words whose alphabetic place changes with their inflection, the following remarks may be made for beginners.

All nouns, whether they be substantives or adjectives, are given under the stem. In order to know the stem, a preliminary study of the more important paradigms and rules of euphonic combination is necessary. Thus the nom. sing. rājā must be looked for under rājan, and the acc. sing. nāma under nāman (Whitney, 424); but nalo, as standing for nala-s (175a, 330), must be looked for under nala. The stems in r or ar are entered in the form r. The stems of the perf. act. ppl. and of the primary comparatives are given as ending in vāńs and yāńs. The stems in at or ant are given in the fuller form, ant, and similarly those in mant and vant; and the feminines of these and of the in-stems are not given, since they are always made in antī or atī, matī, vatī, inī.

All verb-forms must be sought under the root. Thus āsīt will be defined only under the root 1 as (636), and not in the alphabetic place which the augment gives it, under long ā. Likewise prepositional compounds of verbs will be found under the roots (see 1076), and not in the alphabetic place under the preposition. The beginner is advised to make himself thoroughly familiar with the list of prepositions (1077) at the outset.

Of the verbal adjectives and nouns (Whitney, chapter xiii., p. 307 ff.), only the gerundives (in ya, tavya, and anīya) have been given regularly in alphabetic place. The participles in ta and na are usually given under the roots; but in some cases, where they have assumed a distinctly adjectival or substantival coloring or have an inconveniently large variety of meanings and uses, they are treated at length in alphabetic place; such, for example, are rta, krta, gata, jāta, nivrtta, bhūta, sthita, hita, etc. Gerunds with a- or su- (e.g. a-citvā) are of course treated in alphabetic place.

Such adverbs as are merely case-forms of substantive or adjective stems, are generally to be sought for under those stems. Those from pronominal stems (e.g. kim, tad, yad) receive separate treatment.

The pronouns of the first and second person would require a dozen different articles apiece if all their forms were given alphabetically. The same is true to a greater or less extent of the other pronouns. The student should therefore learn, as early as possible, the forms given at 491, 495, 499b, 501 (especially ayam: asāu is less important), 504, and 509. The uses of sa-s, etc., eṣa-s, etc., and ayam, etc., are given under ta, etad, and idam respectively.

As for compounds, they are given with completeness for the Vedic selections, and with great freedom for the remaining texts, especially for the Nala. The meaning of such as are lacking can be easily learned by looking out their component parts.

THE ALPHABETIC ORDER.

The order of the letters is given by Whitney at § 5 (compare § 7); but several matters which are frequent occasions of stumbling, may be noticed here.

The visarga has the first place after the vowels. Thus antaḥ-pura (for antar + pura) stands next after anta, p. 116, and not after antardhāna. But the visarga which is regarded as equivalent to a sibilant and exchangeable with it (Whitney, 7²), stands in the alphabetic place of the sibilant. Thus the visarga of adhaḥ-çāyin, as equivalent to ç (172), brings this word just before adhas (p. 115, top), and not between adha and adhanya.

The sign $\dot{\mathbf{n}}$, as representing "the anusvāra of more independent origin" (Whitney, 73³), has its place before all the mutes etc. (Whitney, 5). Thus in aṅg-a, the $\dot{\mathbf{n}}$ represents a nasalization of the radical vowel, and the word comes immediately after a. So haṅsa comes just after ha, p. 284; daṅg and daṅṣṭrin, at the beginning of the letter d.

The sign $\dot{\mathbf{m}}$, as representing an assimilated \mathbf{m} , is differently placed, according to its phonetic value. On the one hand, if $\dot{\mathbf{m}}$, as product of a \mathbf{m} assimilated to a semivowel, sibilant, or \mathbf{h} (see 213c, d), represent a nasal semivowel or anusvāra, then its place is like that of $\dot{\mathbf{n}}$. Thus samyatendriya follows sa, and samhita comes just before sakacehapa (p. 263), and pums before puta (p. 191).

On the other hand, if, for instance, as product of a m assimilated to a guttural, the sign $\dot{\mathbf{m}}$ represent guttural $\bar{\mathbf{n}}$, then its place is that of $\bar{\mathbf{n}}$; and a similar rule applies to all the other cases under 213b. Thus samkaṭa and samkalpa follow sagara, and samgama follows sanga, p. 264; so sameaya (whose $\dot{\mathbf{m}} = \tilde{\mathbf{n}}$) follows sajya; and samtati (whose $\dot{\mathbf{m}} = \mathbf{n}$) follows sant, p. 266.

Vedic 1 is placed after d, and lh after dh.

THE CONTENTS OF THE SEPARATE ARTICLES.

Homonyms, unless differentiated by accent, are distinguished by a prefixed number (cf. anga, vayas); similarly homonymous roots (cf. kr).

References to the Grammar in square brackets immediately after a declinable stem refer to some peculiarity of declension. Occasionally, typical cases of stems are given. Thus under drç are given the nom. and acc. sing. and instr. dual; from these, the other cases (drk-su, drç-ā, etc., drg-bhis, etc.) are easily known.

Each root is followed by a synopsis of its conjugational forms, so far as they actually occur in the literature. The finite forms are given in the third person singular of the indicative, and in the order in which they are treated in the Grammar, namely, present, perfect, aorist, and future; then follow the past participle, the infinitive, and the two gerunds (e.g. āpta, áptum; āptvá, -ápya: observe the alternation of the accents); then follow in order the third sing. present indicative of the passive, intensive, desiderative, and causative, so far as they seemed of importance for the users of this Reader.

Meanings which are synonymous or nearly so, are separated by commas; those which differ considerably from each other, are separated by semicolons or by full-faced dashes and figures (-1., etc.). The colon is often used to show that several meanings which follow it and are separated by semicolons are co-ordinate with each other. Thus on p. 268, under samipa -2b., the meanings "before," "near," "hard by," and "by" are co-ordinate, and are equivalent to "in the presence or neighborhood of"; cf. suvarcas.

The arrangement for matter in heavy brackets at the end of articles is: in the case of primary derivatives, first, the root from which the word comes, with reference, if necessary, to the section giving the suffix of derivation; second, cognate words from allied languages; and third, words showing a development of meaning analogous to that shown by the Sanskrit word or illustrative of it. If the derivation of a simple word is not given, it is because it is unknown or too uncertain to be worth mentioning. In the case of secondary derivatives, the primary is given, with a reference to the section showing its treatment. The analysis of compounds is often indicated by a hyphen; but if one member ends and the next begins with a vowel or diphthong, the latter member is given in square brackets at the end of the article; cf. nalopākhyāna.

Where words of different languages are given together, separated only by commas, the definition given after the last applies to them all; or, if no definition is given, the English word in italics at the end is both a cognate and a definition of all at the same time; for examples, see ákṣa ('axle'), aṣṭa, ūrṇa.

The references to the Grammar may seem too numerous; but they are really a device for avoiding the frequent repetition of explanations which would otherwise have to be given in full. It would take half a dozen lines to explain the etymology of manmatha, for instance; but the references to 1148.4 and 1002b make this needless; cf. the references under daridra, çiçu, sunva.

It often happens that the statement in the section referred to does not directly cover the point aimed at in citing it; but a moment's thought will show what is meant. Thus under samkranti, the two references to be compared mean that the derivative suffix is ti, and that before it the root-vowel suffers the same peculiar change that is seen in the past participle. Under samyatendriya reference is made to 1298, which states that possessive descriptives "are very much more common than [simple] descriptives of the same form." The real point of the reference is plainly, not to bring out this fact, but to show the beginner in what category of compounds this word belongs. So 1290 states that "other compounds with adverbial prior members are quite irregularly accented"; but the section is cited, e.g., under sadha-māda, to indicate that this is a descriptive compound (see the heading of the preceding right-hand page, 441) in which the first member is an adverbial element with the function (cf. 1289) of an adjective. Many roots form verb-stems in aya, but without causative signification; this is briefly indicated by the reference 10412. In the case of secondary derivatives in vant, mant, ta, and tva, a simple reference to one of the sections treating of these endings (1233, 1235, 1237, 1239) is put instead of a repetition of the primitive.

PART III.

NOTES.

SELECTION I.

THE STORY OF NALA AND DAMAYANTI.

- § 1. The trend of Aryan migration in India has been from the extreme northwest to the south-east, across the region drained by the Indus and its affluents, and called the Panjāb or Land of the Five Rivers; and again south-east, down the valleys of the Jumna and Ganges. One prominent group of Aryan immigrant tribes was that of the Kosalas, Videhas, and Magadhas, who settled in the lower valley of the Ganges, east of its confluence with the Junna, in the districts now named Oudh and Behar, the Palestine of Buddhism.
- § 2. Another group of tribes had their home on the upper Indus, in the northwest of the Panjāb. Theirs was the religion and civilization of which the Vedas are the monument. Later we find them advancing south-eastward, and establishing themselves on the upper course of the Jumna and Ganges, in Madhya-deça, The Mid-Land. Foremost among them are the tribes of the Bhāratas, the Kurus, and the Panchālas. Here arose the system of Brahmanism; here the simple nature-religion of the Vedas developed into a religion of priests and sacrifices; here the Bhāratas attained a kind of religious primacy and the lustre of a great name, although gradually merging their tribal individuality with that of kindred tribes; here were fought the battles of the Bhāratas; and here, to ever-ready listeners, in school or forest-hermitage, at a sacrifice or a burial, were told the tales of these battles and their heroes. These are the tales that form the nucleus of the Great-Bhārata-Story (mahā-bhārata_ākhyāna, or, more briefly), the Mahā-bhārata.
- § 3. These tales were probably first circulated in prose, until some more clever teller put them into simple and easily-remembered metrical form. The date of these first simple epics we do not know. They may well have existed several centuries before our era; but neither their language nor the notices of the Greeks afford any satisfactorily direct evidence upon the subject. Around this nucleus have been grouped additions,—historical, mythological, and didactic,—until the Great-Bhārata, as we now have it, contains over one hundred thousand distichs, or about eight times as much as the Iliad and Odyssey together.
- § 4. Only about one-fifth of the whole poem is occupied with the principal story. This, in the briefest possible summary, is as follows. The two brothers, Dhritarāshtra and Pāndu (dhṛta-rāṣṭra, pāṇḍu), were brought up in their royal home of Hastinā-pura, about sixty miles north-east of modern Delhi. Dhritarāshtra, the elder, was blind, and so Pāndu became king, and had a glorious reign. He had five sons, chief of whom were Yudhishthira, Bhīma, and Arjuna. They are called Pāndavas, and are the types of honor and heroism. Dhritarāshtra's hundred sons, Duryodhana and the rest, are usually called the Kuru princes, and are represented as in every way bad. After Pāndu's death, his sons are brought up with their cousins. The kingdom devolved on Dhritarāshtra, who in turn made his nephew Yudhishthira the heir apparent.

- § 5. Yudhishthira's exploits aroused the ill-will of his cousins, and, to escape their plots, the Pāndu princes went away to the king of Panchāla, whose daughter, Draupadī, became their common wife. In view of this strong alliance with the Panchālas, Dhritarāshtra thought it best to conciliate the Pāndus. So he divided the kingdom, and gave Hastinā-pura to his sons, and to his nephews a district to the south-west, where they built Indra-prastha, the modern Delhi. Here the Pāndavas and their people lived happily under king Yudhishthira.
- § 6. On one occasion Dhritarāshtra held a great assembly of princes at his capital. The Pāndavas were invited and came. Yudhishthira was challenged to play with Duryodhana, and accepted. The dice were thrown for Duryodhana by his uncle Çakuni. Yudhishthira loses everything—wealth, kingdom, brothers, wife. A compromise, however, is made, by which the Pāndavas give up their part of the kingdom for twelve years, and agree to remain incognito for a thirteenth. With Draupadī, they retire to the Kāmyaka forest, on the Saraswatī.
- § 7. For twelve years the Pandu princes dwell in the wood. Many legends are told to divert and console them in their exile; and these stories, with the description of the forest-life of the princes, combine to make up the third or 'Forest-book,' the vana-parvan, which is one of the longest in the whole poem.
- § 8. The thirteenth year arrived and passed. "Then in the fourteenth the Pāndavas demanded back their possessions, but received them not. From this arose the conflict. They overthrew the ruling house, slew prince Duryodhana, and then, although losing most of their warriors, they got back again their kingdom." MBh. i.61.51=2280. Thus ended the Bhārata, doubtless, in its oldest and simplest form.
- § 9. The poem, as we now have it, spins out the story of the combat through several books and through thousands of distichs. At length Yudhishthira is crowned in Hastinā-pura, and Bhīshma, the leader of the Kurus, although mortally wounded, instructs him, for about twenty thousand distichs, on the duties of kings and on other topics, and then dies. In the seventeenth book, the Pāndus renounce the kingdom, and in the next, the last, they ascend to heaven with Draupadī.
- § 10. The Nala-episode illustrates very well how loose is the connection of the episodes in general with the main thread of the Bhārata. The story of Nala is one of those inserted in the third book (above, § 7), and its setting is as follows. Arjuna had gone to the heaven of Indra to get from him divine weapons. The other Pāndavas, remaining in the forest with Draupadī, lament their brother's absence and the loss of their kingdom. Meantime the fierce and stout-armed Bhīma addresses his brother Yudhishthira, and offers to go out and slay their deceitful cousins. Yudhishthira counsels Bhīma to wait till after the thirteenth year, and is trying to calm his impetuous brother, when suddenly there arrives a mighty sage, Brihadaçwa. The holy man is received with honor and with the customary guest's-dish of milk and honey. When he is seated, Yudhishthira sits by him, bewails his sad lot, and asks, "Hast thou ever seen or heard of a man more luckless than I am? I believe there never was one more unhappy." "On this point," replies the sage, "I will tell thee a story of a king who was even more luckless than thou. King Nala was once cheated out of his kingdom by a false dice-player, and dwelt in the forest, and neither slaves, chariot, brother, nor friend was left him; but thou art surrounded by heroes, brothers, and friends, and oughtest not to grieve." Thereupon Yudhishthira begs him to relate the story at length. Accordingly, to console the king, and to show him that there is hope of regaining his kingdom, just as Nala regained his, Brihadaçwa begins as in the extract given in the Reader (1²).

- § 11. Chapter 1. Nala was a prince of Nishadha. Damayantī was the lovely daughter of Bhīma, the king of Vidarbha. By the miraculous interposition of swans, the prince and princess become mutually enamored.
- § 12. Chap. 2. Bhima accordingly holds a swayamvara ('self-choice') for her. The neighboring kings are invited, and she is permitted to choose for herself her husband from them. The chief gods hear of it and determine to go also. On their way, they meet Nala, who is bound on the same errand.
- § 13. Chap. 3. The gods request Nala to sue for them. Reluctantly consenting, he enters the chamber of the princess and tells how the gods desire her hand.
- § 14. Chap. 4. Damayantī refuses to listen to the arguments in favor of the gods. She desires that the swayamvara be held in the usual form, and that the gods be present, and informs Nala that she intends to show openly her preference for him. All this Nala reports to the gods.
- § 15. Chap. 5. The gods and kings assemble. The four chief gods assume the appearance of Nala. Unable to distinguish the real Nala, the princess, distressed, prays to the gods, and they, in answer, resume their proper forms and peculiar attributes (see 14 ½ N.). Thereupon she chooses Nala. The kings express their sorrow, and the gods their delight. The gods give Nala the magic power of having fire and water whenever he wishes, and a wonderful skill in cookery. The wedding-feast is celebrated. Nala returns to Nishadha with his bride. They live happily, and have a son and daughter.—Here the extract in the Reader ends.
- § 16. Chapters 6-26. These tell of Nala's misfortunes, and their final happy issue. He loses everything, even his kingdom, by gambling, and wanders, hungry and half naked, in the forest. He is transformed into a dwarf, and becomes charioteer of Rituparna, king of Oudh. Damayantī, at her father's in Kundina, is led by certain tidings to suspect that Nala is at Oudh. By way of stratagem, she holds out hopes of her hand to Rituparna, if he will drive from Oudh to Kundina, some five hundred miles, in a single day, knowing well that only Nala's skill in horsemanship (see 14) is equal to this task. Rituparna gets Nala to drive him thither through the air. Nala receives as reward perfect skill in dicing. His wife recognizes him by his magical command of fire and water, and by his cooking. He resumes his true form, plays again, and wins back all he had lost, and lives happy ever after.*
- § 17. When Brihadaçwa had finished the story of Nala, Yudhishthira, pleased, asked him for perfect skill in dicing; and the hermit, granting him his prayer, departed.
- § 18. This story is unquestionably one of the oldest and most beautiful episodes of the Mahā-bhārata. It was extremely popular in India; and to this is due the fact that it escaped the bad influence of Vishnuism, whose adherents have worked over the vast epic, changing and interpolating, and always for the worse.

^{*} The student may read the entire story in any the very spirited English rendering of Edwin Arnold, of the numerous translations—by Milman, Bopp, Rückert, and others. The most easily obtained is $1.00.

- § 19. Even the Nala, especially in the first chapter, has suffered much from later hands; but on the whole it is one of the least corrupted episodes. Its antiquity is shown by the simplicity of manners implied in its incidents the prince, for example, cooks his own food, by the character of Indra (cf. 14²² N.), and in other ways. See Holtzmann's Indische Sagen, Stuttgart, 1854, p. xiv. Bruce has attempted to reject definite passages throughout the poem, and has published, at St. Petersburg in 1862, a text of the Nala, reduced from 983 to 522 distichs.
- § 20. The story begins at iii.53.1 (folio 58 b) of the Bombay edition of 1877, and at iii. 2072 of the Calcutta edition of 1834.
- § 21. THE METRE. The stanza (cloka) or distich consists of four octosyllabic verses (pāda). The first and second pādas form together a half-cloka or a line, divided at the middle by the caesura: likewise the third and fourth. The more important rules follow.
- a. Odd pādas end usually with a first epitrite, ____, or antispast, ____.
- b. Even padas end in a diiambus, o_o_, or second paeon, o_oo.

So the type of the half-cloka is 0000 | - - = | 0000 | 0 = 0 = . But

c. In no pada may the syllables 2, 3, 4 form a tribrach, $\circ \circ \circ$, or anapaest, $\circ \circ =$;

d. Nor, in the even padas, an amphimacer, ____.

LINE 1. atha, see p. 114, s.v. atha 3. -nalopākhyāna-m, nom.s.n. (see 330) of nalopākhyāna: this last is a compound stem, see s.v., p. 180: its analysis is indicated in the manner mentioned at p. 292, paragraph 2, end: the second member is upākhyāna, as given in the square brackets, p. 180: its initial, u, has evidently combined with the final vowel of the first member to o: according to the important rule 127, that final must have been an a-vowel (a or \bar{a}), and, since there is no stem nala, the first member must be nala: since this logically determines the second member, i.e. distinguishes the 'Nala-episode' from all other episodes, the compound is to be classed as a determinative, see 1262.

2. bṛhadaçva, u.f. bṛhadaçva-s (175b), nom.s.m. of bṛhád-açva, see s.v., p. 202: as shown in the square bṛackets, the first member of the cpd is bṛhánt, which, by 1249a, enters into composition in its weak form bṛhát: by the law of regressive assimilation (159, the most important rule of Sanskrit phonetics), the t becomes d. The combination bṛhad-açvá, with the accent on the ultima, means 'a great hórse'; the same combination, with the acct of the prior member, is a secondary adjective cpd, and means 'having great horses': here the secondary adjective is used as a substantive, '(man) having great horses, i.e. Great-horse': see 12932 and cf. the difference between a great heart and Bunyan's Mr. Great-heart. For the ligature cy, see Whitney 136.—uvāca, vvac, p. 236, perf. act. 3d sing., see 800e.—For the connection of this line with the story, see p. 298, § 10.

3ª. āsīd, u.f. āsīt, by the law of regressive assimilation, just mentioned: as was said at p. 290, paragraph 8, the meaning must be sought under v1as, p. 122: the form is imf. 3d sing., 636. —rājā, see p. 290, paragraph 7, and for declension, 424. —nalo, u.f. nala-s, 175a: declension, 330. Nominatives in as are extremely common, and so of course is the change of as to o. —nāma, acc.s.n. (424) of nāman, see s.v. 3.

3b. vīrasena-suto, u.f. -suta-s, 175a: the word is a dependent noun-cpd and = vīrasenasya sutas, see 1264: the stem vīrásena (see s.v.) is itself also a cpd, and of the same kind as bṛhád-açva. —balī, see 440.

- 4ª. upapanno, u.f. upa-panna-s (175a), √pad+upa, p. 186. As a prepositional cpd, this must be sought under the root, not under the preposition - read p. 290, paragraph 8. For the form panna, see 957d: lit., it has only an indefinite past sense, not a passive sense, see 9522. -gunāir, u.f. gunāis, 174: declension, 330. -istāi, u.f. ișțăis, which becomes ișțăir (174 again) before the following sonant initial; and since this is r, the final r is dropped - see 179: iṣ-ṭá is ppl. of V1 iṣ, 953: the t of ta becomes t by progressive assimilation (197), which is far less common than regressive assimilation. - The half-line means, 'endowed with (desired, i.e. desirable or) excellent virtues.' For the use of the instr., see 278.
- 4b. rūpavān, see 452 and 453, and cf. 447. For rū, cf. Whitney 10d. —açvakovidah, u.f. açvakovidas, 170a, an extremely common change. Nala's skill in the manege is a point of prime importance in the story—see p. 299, § 16.
- 5°. atisthan, u.f. atisthat (161) is 3d s. imf. act. of Vsthā, 742. [The a is augment, 585: ti is reduplication (for t, see 590c; for i, 660): the i alters s to s (180 and 184c), and this s involves the conversion of th to th (197 — ef. ista). Orig. stha belonged to the reduplicating class (671 — ef. 1-στη-μι, 1-στη-s, 1-στη-σι), but has been transferred (749) to the commonest of all classes, the a-class, and is inflected as if the stem were tistha, i.e. as if we had in Greek 1-στω, 1-στεις, 1-στει.] -manujendrāṇām, gen.pl. of manujendra: after the lingual r, the n of the ending is changed to lingual n - see 189 and 190a: for the combination of manuja+indra, see 127; for dr, Whitney 14.
- 5b. mūrdhni, loc.s. of mūrdhan, 424: for rdh, see Whitney 14. —devapatir, u.f. devapatis, 174: declension, 339. —yathā, see s.v. 4. —'He (stood, i.e.) was at the head of princes, as Indra (sc. is at the head of gods)': i.e. 'He was as much superior to other princes as Indra to other gods.' "As handsome as Indra" was a proverbial expression.

- 6ⁿ. upary, u.f. upari, 129: the word is repeated for emphasis, 1260: 'above, above,' i.e. 'far above.' —sarveṣām, gen.pl. of sarva, 522 and 524: for construction, see s.v. upari and 1130 end.
- 6b. āditya, u.f. ādityas, 175b. —tejasā, 414: as referring to the sun, it means 'splendor,' and as referring to Nala, it has the transferred mg, 'majesty': the instr., prop. the 'with'-case, is here best rendered by 'by,' i.e. 'in virtue of.' —The force of atisthat extends through the cloka or distich. 'He was far above all in majesty, as the sun (is) in splendor.'
- 7°. vedavic chūro, u.f. vedavit çūras: the final t is changed to the palatal c, before the palatal sibilant ç (regressive assimilation, 203), and the sibilant ç is also changed to the mute ch, 203: the same changes appear in paryupāsac chacīm, 2°, abhūc chṛnvatoḥ, 2¹s, hṛcchayaḥ, 2¹s, and tac chrutvā, 4°, 4¹6: vedavit is nom.s.m. of vedavid (301), the d being changed to t (159) before the s of the case-ending, which last, however, is dropped—see 150.
- 7^b. niṣadheṣu, 'among the Nishadhans' or 'in Nishadha'. —mahīpatiḥ, u.f. mahīpatis, 170a: declension, 339.
- -It is not known where Nishadha was. Vidarbha, the modern Berar, is at the headwaters of the Taptī, between Nagpore and the Nizam's Kingdom, and about five hundred miles from Oudh. The general run of the story makes it highly probable that Nishadha was between Berar and Oudh. From chapter ix., it would seem to have been north of Oujein (ujjayini). From an allusion in the Çatapatha-brāhmana, ii.3.2, Weber thinks it is in the south (i.e. from Madhya-These premises give some ground for the inference that Nishadha was in the valley of the Sind, which traverses Gwalior State, Central India. On the Sind is Narwar; and local tradition connects this place with "King Nala" in a story whose leading features bear a striking resemblance to those of our poem. Finally, Nala is said, chap. xv., to have reached Oudh on the tenth day after quitting Damayanti, and this time suits the distance — some two hundred miles — very well.

8^a. akṣapriyah, u.f. akṣapriyas, 172: for kṣ, cf. Whitney 13 end. —satyavādī, nom.s., 440. —As a dependent cpd (1265), akṣapriya may mean, 1. 'dice-beloved, lucky at gaming,' or, 2. 'dice-loving, friend of dice, fond of gaming': on the whole, mg 2 is perhaps to be preferred.

8b. mahān, nom.s., 450b.

9. See īpsita, which is ppl. (1037) of the desid. —nara-nārī, declension, 364: for n, cf. 15a n. end: nārī, see under nāra: for use of case, 296b. —udāraḥ, 172 again, like akṣa-priyaḥ, 18, and creṣṭhaḥ and manuh, next line, etc. etc. —samyatendriyaḥ, read p. 291, paragraph 6: samyata, Vyam, 954d.

11. tathāivāsīd, u.f. tathā eva āsīt, 127, 126, 159: see tathā, mg 3. —bhīmá-parākrama, possessive form of the descriptive cpd bhīma-parākramá: see references in vocab.

12. sarva-guṇāir, u.f. sarva-guṇāis, 174, cf. 14a n.: for mg, see sarva 2b: a descriptive cpd, 1279. —yuktaḥ, u.f. yukta-s (170d), ppl. (953, 219 and 217) of Vyuj: see Vyuj 4, 'yoked with' (hence instr., 278), and so 'possessed of'. —prajākāmaḥ, observe accent and references in vocab. —sa cāprajaḥ, u.f. sas ca aprajas, 176a (as exception to 170c): for sa-s, 495: ca, though coalescing with aprajas in euphony (126) and in print, is really an enclitic and so belongs w. sa: 'and yet he (sc. was) childless.'

13. akarot, 3d s. imf. of √1 kr, 714.

- 'He (in the matter of, i.e.) for the sake of children made the greatest effort,' i.e. he performed pious rites, etc.; or else, 'He had the matter of children greatly at heart, all intent (upon it).'

14. tam, 495, 274a. —abhy-agacchad, grace, and comelines vgam+abhi, see references after pres. form gacchati in vocab.: this is 3d s. imf., 742.
Respecting the spelling cch, see Preface, p. v. note 6. —brahmarṣi-r: for r, 174: dedaṣīnām, 295 end.

clension, 339: formation, see references in vocab. There were three kinds of Rishis (see rsi): the rājarsi, or prince who adopted a life of devotion; the devarsi, or sage who was also a demigod, as Nārada; and the brahmarsi, or priestly sage.

- Bhārata, like rājendra, kāunteya, viçām pate, prabho, mahārāja, rājan, pāṇḍava, kāuravya, etc., is an interjected vocative, addressed by Brihadaçwa, the narrator, to Yudhishthira, see p. 298, § 10.

15. sa, see p. 291, paragraph 1, and vocab., s.v. ta4. —toşayām āsa, periphrastic perf. of caus. of vtus, 1070, 1071a: the auxiliary is the 3d s. perf. (800a) of vas, 'be.' —dharma-vit, nom.s.m., declined like veda-vit, 17.

16. mahiṣyā, instr. (364) of mahiṣī. -suvarcas-am: declension, 418: goes with tam. -15-16. 'Along with his queen, Bhīma, desiring children (and) knowing his duty, gratified him (tam, Damana), the glorious, with hospitality.'

17. tasmāi, 495. — pra-sanno, Vsad+ pra, cf. upa-panno, 1⁴ N. — sabhāryāya, dat.s.m. with tasmāi, 'to him having an accompanying wife, i.e. to him and his wife': observe that bhāryā shortens its final ā in composition, 334². —dadāu, Vdā, 'give,' 800c.

 -See √rud and 619. -See punar 2.
- 15. asvasthām: observe the use, common in Skt., of a predicate adj. or subst. instead of subordinate clause: thus, 'announced D. as ill', where we should say, 'announced that she was ill': so 419 kāryam.—nareçvare (like nale, 41.3) is loc. w. nyavedayat and in logical apposition w. the dat. vidarbhapataye, despite the difference of case.
- 16. See N. to 4^6 . —Observe how the idea of 4^{14b} is here put in one cpd.
- 17. cint-, see N. to 1¹⁵. 'Considered this important matter (in respect to, i.e.) concerning his daughter.'
- 18. See Vīks and 992. -prāp-, see 1308. -'Considering his daughter who had reached nubility,' i.e. taking fully into account the fact of her marriageability (though he knew it well enough before).
- 19. apaçyad, 759, 760.6. See ātman 3, and 514. 'Saw D's swayamvara requiring to be instituted by himself, saw that he must hold D's sw.': cf. N. to 4 15.
- 20. Periphrastic perf. of denom. mantraya+sam-ni, 1070, 1071a.
- 21. anubh is 3d s. pres. imv. pass., √bhū +anu, 771.4. -ayam, read p. 291 ¶ 1, and see 501. -iti marks the four preceding words as the precise words of Bhīma's invitation: 'Let this swayamvara be heard or taken notice of, O heroes, i.e. Understand ye that one will take place here.' -prabho, 341, see 1¹⁴ x. end. -Observe that we have ∪ ∪ ⊥ ∪ ⊥ as the first half of the first pāda, a not infrequent irregularity.

SELECTIONS II.-XXI.

FROM THE HITOPADEÇA, THE 'BOOK OF GOOD COUNSEL.'

§ 22. The first book ever printed in Sanskrit was Kālidāsa's 'Seasons' (rtusamhāra), edited by Sir Wm. Jones, and printed in Bengalī letters in 1792. The first Sanskrit book ever printed in Nāgarī letters was the Hitopadeça. It was edited by Carey, and printed at Serampore in 1803. The publication was undertaken, said Henry T. Colebrooke, "to promote and facilitate the study of the ancient and learned language of India in the College of Fort William." It was chosen as the first for this purpose because of its easy style and intrinsic interest and because two English translations of it existed, one by Wilkins (Bath, 1787), and the other by Jones (London, 1799). To pedagogical reasons, accordingly, may be assigned in great part, the importance of this work: it has become important in the West, because the text is so well suited for tyros in Sanskrit; and in the Orient, because of the intrinsic value of its contents.

- § 23. The book belongs to the ethico-didactic class of literature, and is what the Hindus call a nīti-çāstra or 'cónduct-work.' The term nīti (see this in the vocabulary) came to have special reference to the conduct of kings in their domestic life and in their foreign relations; a nīti-çāstra is, accordingly, a 'Prince's handbook of political and social ethics,' a kind of 'Mirrour for Magistrates.' The Hitopadeça consists of mingled verse and prose. The verses are mostly proverbs and maxims—often of the choicest practical wisdom; and their validity is proved, illustrated, and enforced by the fables, which are in prose.
- § 24. The frame in which the work is set is simple and meagre. The sons of King Sudarçana of Pāṭaliputra¹ (Patnā) are ignorant and vicious. He therefore convokes the wise men and asks if any one is able to reform the princes. Viṣṇuçarman offers to do so, and accordingly takes them in charge, and relates to them the stories which make up the body of the collection.
- § 25. The Hitopadeça is not an original work, but, rather, an excellent compilation of ancient material. The time of its composition has not been even approximately determined. The palm-leaf MS. brought by Mr. Cecil Bendall from Nepāl was written in the year 493 of the Nepāl era or A.D. 1373. And Professor Peterson's 2 old paper MS. from Jeypore is of about the same age. At present we can hardly say more than that the work is at least 500 years old. In the working over of the material, the metrical portions would naturally be changed less, on the whole, than the prose; and in fact, many of the proverbs can be traced back in their identical form to works of antiquity. And travellers report that just such proverbs are current to-day in the talk of the lower classes of India.

The author or editor of this collection of fables, according to the colophon ⁸ of the Jeypore MS., was named Nārāyaṇa, and his patron and publisher was the prince Dhavalacandra.

- § 26. The sources of this compilation are expressly said (end of the preface, 178) to be "the Pancatantra and another work." The first part of this statement is borne out by the fact that, out of forty-three fables in the Hitopadeça, twenty-five are found also in the Pancatantra. The latter work, as its name implies, consists of five books; while the Hitopadeca is divided into four, whose titles are given in the preface, 177. The correspondence is as follows. The first book of the Pañcatantra answers in its frame-work to the second of the Hitopadeça and the second of the Pañcatantra to the first of the Hitopadeça. Five stories from the third book of the Pancatantra, along with seven from the first, are scattered through the last two books of the Hitopadeca. From the fourth book of the Pañcatantra only one story, "The ass in the tiger-skin," appears in the Hitopadeça; and from the fifth book, only three. It thus appears that, in the main, only the first three books of the Pancatantra were drawn upon by the author of the Hitopadeça; and Somadeva. in his Kathā-sarit-sāgara (chapters 60-64, much of whose substance is from the Pañcatantra, i.-iii.), has followed a similar course.
- § 27. What the "other work" is we can hardly say with entire certainty. In it ought to be found together if the statement of the preface is accurate at least the eighteen fables of the Hitopadeça which do not occur in the Pañcatantra. Had the preface said "other works," the problem would be easier. Thus the story of the two giants, iv. 9, may be traced to the Mahā-bhārata, and the prototypes of other single stories are doubtless to be found in one and another ancient collection. Professor Peterson 1 thinks that the "other work" is the Nītisāra of Kāmandaka. The identification deserves further study.

§ 28. The contents of the Pancatantra have been made the subject of one of the most important contributions to the literary history of the world by the late Professor Benfey. His principal results were published in his Pantschatantra (1859, see above, p. xviii, no. 8), and in his introduction to Bickell's edition of the Kalilag und Damnag (1876). The latter contains, pages VI-X, a brief résumé of these results. The summary given by Keith-Falconer (1885, see p. 315) is a systematic and lucid account of the history of the fables, and is the one most to be commended to English-speaking students. Some of the most important items follow.

A. The Indian original. In the sixth century of our era, there existed in India a Buddhist Sanskrit work, in thirteen chapters, treating of the conduct of princes.² Its doctrines were inculcated in the form of beast-fables, or stories in which animals play the part of human beings.

B. This Indian original was translated by a Persian physician named Barzōī, into the Pehlevi, the literary language of Persia, by command of the Sassanian king, Khosru Anüshīrvān, called The Just (531-579 A.D.).

§ 29. C1. Both the Indian original and its Pehlevi version are irrecoverably lost; but from the latter were made two very notable translations. The first was into Syriac, made about 570 A.D., and called Kalilag and Damnag after the two jackals, Karataka and Damanaka, who figured prominently in the introduction of the Sanskrit original. A single notice of this version had been preserved in a catalogue of Syriac writings made by Ebed-jesus (died 1318), and published by Assemani at Rome in 1725. A Chaldean bishop, Georgius Ebed-jesus Khayyāth, on his way to the ecumenical council in 1870, stumbled upon a manuscript of this Syriac version in the episcopal library at Mardīn. Through the mediation of Ignazio Guidi in Rome, and by a wonderful combination of lucky accidents and persistent efforts, the existence of "the lost manuscript" was made known to the eager inquirers in Europe, 8 and at last published in text and German translation by Bickell.

§ 30. C2. The second translation from the Pehlevi was the Kalilah and Dimnah or Fables of Pilpay in Arabic, made by Abd-allah ibn al-Moqaffa, a Persian convert to Islam, who lived under the caliph al-Mansor and died about 760. version was published, though not in the best recension, by Silvestre de Sacy at Paris in 1816, and an English translation of it was given by the Rev. Wyndham Knatchbull, Oxford, 1819.

According to the Arabic introduction, Dabshelim (deva-carman) was the first king of the Indian Restoration after the fall of the governor appointed by Alexander pages 40-41; cf. Keith-Faiconer, p. xxi), and from other evidence (Keith-Falconer, p. liv f), this is the much more probable view.

² Such was Benfey's conclusion. It was questioned by Weber, Indische Streifen, iil. 437. Barzōi's Pehlevī version (B.) may have been based on several different works-among them a Paficatantra. Indeed, from the second chapter of the Arabic Kalliah | don Academy for Aug. 1, 1871.

3 The story of the discovery is told by Benfey, in Bickell's book, pages XII-XXIII, as also in various periodicals there cited, p. XXII note, e.g. Lonat the close of his campaign in the Panjāb, B.c. 326. When firmly established, Dabshelim gave himself over to every wickedness. To reclaim the king, a Brahman philosopher takes up his parable, as did Nathan before David, and at last wins him back to virtue. The wise man is called in Arabic bid-bah¹ and in Syriac bid-vag. These words are satisfactorily traced by Benfey, through the Pehlevī, to the Sanskrit vidyā-pati, 'master of sciences.' Accordingly, bidbah, which has become Bidpai or Pilpay in our modern books, is not really a proper name, but an appellative, applied to a 'Chief Pandit' or 'Court-scholar' of an Indian prince.

The Arabic version is of prime importance, since from it have flowed other versions, which have been of the utmost influence in shaping the literature of the Middle Ages.

- § 31. D. These versions are: 1. The Later Syriac, made in the tenth or eleventh century, edited by Wright, and translated by Keith-Falconer; 2. the Greek one, made about 1080, by Symeon Seth, a Jewish physician; 3. the Persian, made some fifty years later, by Nasr Allah of Ghaznī; 4. the Hebrew, ascribed to Rabbi Joel, and probably made before 1250, and published, with French translation, at Paris in 1881, by Joseph Derenbourg; 5. the old Spanish, made from the Arabic in 1251, and published at Madrid in 1860 by Gayangos.
- § 32. E. Of the descendants in the fifth degree from the original, only two need be mentioned: 3. The Persian $Anw\bar{a}r$ -i Suhail \bar{i} or 'Lights of Canopus,' a simplified recast of Nasr Allah's, made about 1494 by Husain Wāiz al-Kāshifī. English translations of this have been published by Eastwick and by Wollaston, see below. 4. The Directorium humanae vitae, made from the Hebrew about 1270 by John of Capua, and printed about 1480.
- § 33. F. From John of Capua's version flowed the famous 'Book of examples of the ancient sages,' Das buch der byspel der alten wysen. It was made at the instance of Duke Eberhard im Bart, whose name and motto, eberhart graf z[u] wirtenberg attempto, appear as an acrostic in the initials of the first sections. It was first printed about 1481, and has since been admirably edited by W. L. Holland, Stuttgart, 1860. Holland used, besides three manuscripts, two printed editions sine loco et anno, and enumerates 17 dated editions that appeared between 1483 and 1592. Four dated editions appeared at Ulm between 1483 and 1485! The great number of editions of the work and their rapid succession are the best proof of its importance as a means of instruction and amusement in the fifteenth and sixteenth centuries.

Another offshoot from the Directorium is the Italian version of A. F. Doni, entitled La moral filosophia, and printed at Venice ² in 1552. This is of special interest, because from it came (G) the English translation of Sir Thomas North, London, 1570.

It may here be added that La Fontaine, in the second edition of his Fables (1678), which contains eleven books, says 8 that he owed the largest part of his new material (books vii-xi) to Pilpay, the Indian sage. The edition of Henri Regnier (Paris, Hachette, 1883–85, 3 vols.) gives abundant references to the sources of each fable, and is especially to be commended to those who would compare the well-known French offshoots with the Indian originals.

- § 34. From Benfey's investigations it appears that the truest extant representative of the Indian original is the Syriac version, Kalilag and Damnag. Next to the Syriac stands the Buch der Beispiele, which, besides, is in language remarkable for its dignity, strength, and beauty; upon this latter version, moreover, are based almost all the printed ones previous to 1644. To the German version almost exclusively, therefore, is Europe indebted for the wide-spread knowledge of this cycle of literature from the last part of the fifteenth to the middle of the seventeenth century.
- § 35. After this account of the direct descendants of the Indian original in the Occident, it remains to speak of the history of that original in India, and of its sources. Whether Barzoi translated from one work of thirteen chapters (cf. § 28) or from several independent works, the fact remains that the originals of all of his sections may be certainly identified on Indian ground save three: 1 five, namely. form the Pañcatantra; two other sections figure as a supplement to the first book of a later recension of the Pañcatantra; and yet other sections, three in number, appear in the Mahā-bhārata.

The first three books of the Pancatantra (above, § 26) were recast by Somadeva about 1070 A.D., in his Kathā-sarit-sāgara, chapters 60-64. Somadeva's abstract of these three books shows that they had the same form then as at the time of the Pehlevi translation (570). As representatives of the Indian original, the offshoots of the Pehlevī version surpass even the Indian offshoots. These latter, as respects their truthfulness in reflecting the Indian original, are arranged by Benfey as follows: first, the recension of the Indian original used by Somadeva; second, the one on which the Southern Pañcatantra (of Dubois) is based; third, the one from which the Hitopadeça is made; and last, the one from which proceed the common Sanskrit recensions of the Pañcatantra.

§ 36. At the time when Barzōī made his Pehlevī version, Buddhism was already on the decline in India, and Brahmanism regaining its lost supremacy. to be expected on the one hand that the Brahmans would allow a work of such great artistic merit as the original Mirrour for Magistrates to be lost and forgotten, nor, on the other, that they would preserve it without transforming its whole spirit, which was that of fanatical hatred for Brahmanism. They have, therefore, omitted or transformed such parts as showed most Buddhist animus, leaving, however, many marks uneffaced which betray its Buddhist origin.

In one other way, too, the original was modified. In most of its sections a doctrine was inculcated by means of a single fable or story, and only a sparing use was made of inserted apologues. But gradually the means became an end; into the main story were inserted others, and others still into these, until the main story became a mere frame, and the result was comparable to a set of Chinese boxes.2

§ 37. Respecting the sources of the Indian original only a general statement There were current among the Buddhists, fables and parables which they ascribed to Buddha, and whose sanctity they sought to increase by identifying the best character in any story with Buddha himself in a former birth. tales were called Jātakas or 'Birth-stories.' There is evidence of the existence of a collection with that name as early as the Council of Vesālī, about 380 B.C.; and in the fifth century after Christ the Jātakas were put into the form in which they now appear in the Sutta-piṭaka. They are distinguished for quaint humor and gentle earnestness, and teach the duty of tender sympathy with animals and even of courtesy to them. With these stories may be identified many if not all of the fables of the Hitopadeça.

§ 38. The relation of the earliest Greek and Indian fables has been the subject of much discussion. Wagener tried to show that the Greeks derived their apologues from the Hindus; Weber, that the Hindus got many from the Greeks. Correspondences there undoubtedly are; but the difficulty is that the earliest forms of the fables—which would furnish the only safe basis for comparison—are irrecoverably lost. Aesop and his fables are mentioned by Plato and others as very well known: but whether he was a Phrygian, a Jew, or an Egyptian is matter of dispute; and even the Μυθίαμβοι Αἰσώπειοι of Babrius (ca. 100 A.D.), which tradition offers us as the oldest extant collection, are removed some 700 years from the traditional date of Aesop. The collection on which the common modern fable-books are based was made by the Byzantine monk Maximus Planudes, ca. 1325.

At all events, the oldest extant documentary collections of Greeks or of Buddhists are much later than Alexander's invasion; and considering the intercourse of the Greeks with India after that event, it is quite possible that the influence and borrowing were in both directions.

§ 39. We have seen how, under the New Persian Dynasty, and afterwards under the Caliphs, with the spread of Islam, the Indian stories were carried over western Asia and all southern and western Europe. But this is not all. The pious pilgrims to India from China took home with them Buddhist apologues, which were translated into Chinese, and wandered then to Korea and Japan. They have since been translated from Chinese into French by Stanislas Julien (Les Avadânas, Paris, 1859). Among the Mongols, too, Benfey has discovered many of these apologues; and through the Mongols during their supremacy these stories came to the Slavic peoples, and even to the Finns and Samoyeds.

[7. Latin.] Directorium huma ne vite alias parabole antiquord sapientd.] By John of Capua. (Sine loco et anno, gothic type, folio, 82 leaves, quaint wood-cuts.) Copy in Harvard College Library. Printed about 1480. Joseph Derenbourg is now publishing a critical edition of this work, with notes, Paris, Vieweg, 1887.

Paris, Vieweg, 1887-.

[8. German.] Das Buch der Belspiele der alten Weisen. Heransgegeben von Dr. W. L. Holland. Stuttgart, 1860.

§ 41. THE LITERARY HISTORY of the Indian apologues has often been treated. So by Silvestre de Sacy, Loiseleur Deslongchamps, H. H. Wilson (Works, London, 1864, iv. 1-159), Lancereau (in his Pantchatantra, Paris, 1871), Max Müller (On the migration of fables, Chips, London, 1875, iv. 145-209), Rhys Davids (Introduction to his translation of the Jātakas, London, 1880), J. Schoenberg (in the very readable introduction to his German translation of the Hitopadeça, Vienna, 1884). Keith-Falconer's account is on the whole the best (§ 40).

The French translation of the Hitopadeça by É. Lancereau (Paris, Maisonneuve, 1882) is especially useful on account of the full and convenient references to the books where the analogues of the different fables may be found. This book is intended by the citation "Lancereau."

§ 42. Editions and translations. The most accessible text edition is that of Professor Peter Peterson (Bombay, Government Central Book Depot, 1887. Price 1 rupee 10 annas). It contains an introduction most helpful for reading the text in course. It forms no. xxxiii of the Bombay Sanskrit Series. The text edition used most often as a standard of reference is that of Schlegel and Lassen (Bonn, 1829).

A literal English version has been given by Fr. Pincott (London, W. H. Allen, 1880). A cheap reprint of Wilkins's translation appeared in Henry Morley's Universal Library (London and New York, Routledge, 1885).

§ 43. Metres. Aside from the common cloka—see p. 300, § 21—there occur in this book several other metres requiring description. The following five are monoschematic—i.e. the stanza consists of one metrical scheme four times repeated. The first two are simple and natural iambic-choriambic rhythms and are common in the Veda. The name vasanta-tilakā means 'Grace of the spring-time'; mālinī, 'Garlanded'; rathoddhatā seems to mean 'Car-proud.'

a.	 	jagatī, 2211.
b .	 	tristubh, 261.
c.		vasanta-tilakā, 1814, 268.
d.	300130014_#2041404	mālinī, 2222.
e.	202130021020 2	rathoddhatā, 5611.

The tristubh is simply a catalectic form of the jagatī; but the catalexis gives the new cadence a trochaic effect instead of iambic. The rhythm of the vasanta-tilakā is closely analogous to that of the tristubh. The rathoddhatā is essentially similar to a jagatī without its anacrusis.

§ 44. The āryā metre is based on the number of morae—not on the number of syllables. See Whitney, §§ 76-79. A light syllable counts as one mora; a heavy syllable, as two. In general, the āryā-foot consists of four morae. These appear either as two heavy syllables, or with one heavy one at the beginning or at the middle or at the end, or as four light syllables. In each half-stanza, a caesura occurs at the end of the third foot, and the eighth or last foot of each half-stanza is catalectic. The sixth foot of the first half-stanza must be an amphibrach, ___, and that of the second must be a single light syllable. No odd foot may be an amphibrach. The metre occurs at 263 and 565 to 5610. The scheme is:

Applying this scheme, for example, to 565-6, we have, with the proper resolutions:

Buddhist books it is called Pāţali-gāma, 'Trumpet-flower Village.' Wilson thinks Pātali-putra is a mere corruption of Pātalipura, 'Trumpet-flower City.' This certainly accords well with the K'usumo-pulo (Skt. Kusuma-pura, 'Flower-City') of the Chinese Buddhist pilgrims — see Beal, Si-yu-ki, ii.83-85. The Kathā-sarit-sāgara (chap. iii.) gives a legend telling how the town was founded by a king Putraka and his wife Pātalī. This is perhaps an invention suggested by the corrupted form.

- -The entire point lies in the antithesis between the mg of jayate and the pregnant sense of jato. Such pregnant uses of a word are common in gnomic poetry: so 2123, 225.
- 2. 'The best thing is one good son; but (ca5) not with even hundreds of fools (is there any profit).' The ellipsis - though harsh and condemnable - is made clear by such phrases as that at 1718 and the others under 1ka 1.

- -Selection viii. answers to Pañcatantra, book i., fable 6, which is told in like manner by Damanaka. He makes the crow and crow-hen ask a jackal for advice, and the latter tells them the inserted story of the heron, the fishes, and the crab (= selection xviii.). Damanaka then fluishes his story about the crows (= selection viii.), and further enforces its moral by the story of the lion (selection ix.). The Buddhist version, the Banyan Deer Jātaka, has deep moral significance as showing the beauty of self-sacrifice and the excellence of loving "all things, both great and small." This Jātaka is mentioned by name and illustrated on the bas-reliefs of the tope or Stūpa of Bharhut, Cunningham, plate xxv, dating from 200 B.c. or earlier. In the Sanskrit forms, the Jātaka has developed into a simple story that shows how the weak animals get the better of a powerful tyrant, not by force, but by cunning. Somadeva gives the story at lx.91-107. Compare further Especially famous is a parallel story, which is told of Llewellyn the Great and his faithful hound Gellert, and goes back to 1205. SELECTIONS XXII.-XXVII.

EXTRACTS FROM THE KATHA-SARIT-SAGARA.

§ 45. The work from which the following extracts are taken holds a rather exceptional place in Hindu literary history, inasmuch as its date and authorship are quite definitely known. According to the author's fancy, it unites in itself all stories as does the ocean all rivers, and he therefore calls it the 'Ocean of the Streams of Story' or Kathā-sarit-sāgara. Following out the metaphor, he divides the work into one hundred and twenty-four chapters, called taraūgas or 'billows.' By another division, independent of the one just mentioned, the work is broken into eighteen books, called lambakas, which Brockhaus, without authority, conjectured to mean 'surges.' The work contains about 22,000 distichs, that is, about one-quarter as much as the Mahā-bhārata, and not quite twice as much as the Iliad and Odyssey together. An analysis of its contents is given by H. H. Wilson, Works, vol. iv. 109-159.

§ 46. BIBLIOGRAPHY. The following discussions connected with the literary history of this work should be mentioned.

Fitzedward Hall, the Vāsavadattā, Calcutta, 1859, Introduction, pages 22, 23.

George Bühler, Ueber das Zeltalter des Kaçmirischen Dichters Somadeva, Sitzungsberichte der phil.-hist. Classe der Kais. Akademie der Wlss., cx.545f, Vienna, 1885.

Sylvain Lévi, La Brihatkathāmañjarī de Kshemendra, Journal Asiatique, 8.vi.397f, vil.178f. Vol. vi. contains chapters 1-8 in text and translation.

The text has been edited by H. Brockhaus, Lelpsic, 1839, 1862, and 1866. A complete translation has been given by C. H. Tawney, Calcutta, 1880-84.

- § 47. The concluding verses of the work were printed from new and trustworthy manuscript material by Bühler. 1 From them it appears that the author was named Soma, i.e. Somadeva, and was the son of the virtuous Brahman Rāma. Somadeva says that he made this collection of stories to please the queen Sūryavatī, and gives some of the facts relating to the royal house of Kaçmīr then regnant. These facts are supplemented and confirmed by the Rajatarangini or 'Chronicles of Kaçmir,' written by Kalhana, about 1148-1157 A.D.² Combining these sources, Bühler reaches conclusions which may here be summarized briefly.
- § 48. In the year 79, i.e. 4079, of loka-kāla, Saingrāmarāja, a descendant of Sātavāhana (or Cāta-), succeeded to the throne of Kaçmīr. This was A.D. 1003. He was followed in 1028 by his son Ananta. Anantadeva is described as weak-minded, rash, and impetuous, but as brave even to fool-hardiness. He married Sūryavatī, daughter of the king of Jālandhar (jālamdhara). She brought him entirely under her power, and induced him, in 1063, to abdicate in favor of his son Kalaçadeva. He soon repented his hasty step and got control of the government again. Meantime, Kalaca abandoned himself to every vice, and, in rage, his parents determined to punish him, and give over the kingdom to his eldest son Harsa. In fact, Ananta retired with his court to Vijayaksetra, the modern Bijbahār, in [41]55 = A.D. 1079, and after two years of feud with Kalaca, took his own life in 1081, leaving the power in the hands of Kalaça, who held it till 1089, when he was succeeded by Harsa. Sūryavatī burned herself on the funeral pile of her husband Ananta. Now since, according to Somadeva, Kalaça was king when the work was finished, and since it was written for Sūryavatī, the date of the composition must fall between Ananta's first abdication and his wife's death, i.e. between 1063 and 1081 A.D.
- § 49. The real source of the Kathā-sarit-sāgara is stated by Somadeva to be the Brhat-kathā or 'Great Narration' of Gunādhya. This work, according to Bühler, 5 goes back to the first or second century of the Christian era; but no manuscript of it has yet been published. On the other hand, important evidence of its general character and contents is afforded by the two works that have flowed from

³ The popular calendar (loka-kāla) of Kaçmīr is counted from a date corresponding to 3076 B.c. The era is connected - in some real or fanciful way - with Ursa Major (saptarsayas - see rsi2), and so is called the Saptarshi era. It is still in use. In giving a date, the hundreds and thousands are usually omitted. See Report, pages 59-60.

it, the Bṛhat-kathā-mañjarī and the Kathā-sarit-sāgara. Each is a recast of Guṇāḍhya's original. The former was made by Kṣemendra Vyāsa-dāsa, a contemporary of Somadeva. Its date is not far from the year 1037 A.D., and it is therefore some thirty or forty years prior to Somadeva's work.¹ Both Kṣemendra and Somadeva distinctly assert that they translated from an original in the pāiçācī bhāṣā or 'Goblin dialect'; and internal evidence² confirms their assertions, and, further, makes it certain that each worked independently of the other. But Somadeva seems to have been well aware of the faults of his predecessor, and his work is a decided improvement upon that of Kṣemendra, whose recast is only about one-third as long as Somadeva's, and sacrifices poetic merit in the effort to be brief.

§ 50. Although Somadeva was a Brahman, there are yet many remaining traces of the Buddhist character of his original, and even direct allusions 3 to the Buddhist Birth Stories occur. Indeed, Weber maintained 4 that Gunādhya was a Buddhist. The name pāiçācī bhāṣā seems to have covered a number of Low Prākrit dialects 5 spoken by the most ignorant and degraded classes in many different parts of India. In one of these dialects the Brhat-kathā is actually written.

§ 51. It remains — partly by way of introduction to selection xxvii. — to complete and summarize the half-mythical account there given of the origin of the stories.

In a retired spot on the Himālayan peak Kāilāsa, the god Çiva, to please his wife Pārvatī, was telling her (Kathā-sarit-sāgara, i.48) the adventures of the Seven Fairy Kings. Unfortunately, he was overheard by his Gana or attendant (see gana), Puṣpadanta. Puṣpadanta foolishly told the tale to his wife, and she recited it in turn to Pārvatī. This made it appear that Çiva had palmed off upon her an old story. Even on learning the truth, she was still exceedingly enraged, and cursed Puṣpadanta to be born as a mortal. She also inflicted the same curse on the Gana Mālyavant who interceded for him.

At their entreaty, however, she set a limit (anta) to the curse of each, speaking (i.59) to this effect: "There is a Yakṣa named Supratīka, who, cursed to become a mortal, is living in the Vindhya as a Piçāca, under the name of Kāṇabhūti. When thou, Puṣpadanta, shalt see him, and tell him the tale which thou overheardest Çiva telling me, then thou shalt be released from thy curse. When Kāṇabhūti shall have told it to thee, Mālyavant, he shall be released. And when thou, Mālyavant, shalt have published it to the world, thou shalt be free also."

§ 52. Puspadanta, accordingly, is born as Vararuci or Kātyāyana, meets Kāṇabhūti, narrates to him the seven stories of adventure in seven hundred thousand stanzas (ii.26), and is released.

Kāṇabhūti, meantime, remained in the Vindhya, waiting the coming of Mālyavant. The latter is duly born as a Brahman (vi.19, 20), with the name Guṇāḍhya, at Supratiṣṭhita (vi.8) in Pratiṣṭhāna.⁶ This is identified with Paiṭhān on the Godāvarī (vi.72), about 150 miles from Bombay, east by north. After travelling in the Deccan, Guṇāḍhya returns to the splendid royal city of Supratiṣṭhita (vi.24) and is appointed a minister (vi.70) of Sātavāhana, the king of whom the story in selection xxvi. is related. In consequence of a wager with his colleague Çarvavarman (523), Guṇāḍhya forswears the use of Sanskrit, Prākrit, and the local vernacular. Since he knows no other language, he is forced to keep silence, and so to give up his position as minister. With two pupils he retires to the Vindhya, and, falling in with a host of Piçācas (vii.26), learns their dialect. In this he addresses Kāṇabhūti, who exists himself at the time as a Piçāca. Kāṇabhūti tells the tales in 'his own dialect' (svabhāṣayā, 534), i.e. Pāiçācī, to Guṇāḍhya. The hearer writes them down in Pāiçācī, and with his own blood, since he had no ink by him. Kāṇabhūti is then released.

Guṇāḍhya, in order to "publish the stories to the world," sends the manuscript to Sātavāhana. The king, puffed up by his newly-acquired knowledge of Sanskrit grammar (5228), rejects the stories on account of their dialect. Guṇāḍhya, overcome with grief, reads aloud to his two pupils six hundred thousand distichs and casts the manuscript, leaf by leaf, into the fire, while the beasts stand about in a circle and listen with tears in their eyes.¹ One hundred thousand couplets Guṇāḍhya keeps, because they especially pleased his pupils. At last the king hears of the strange proceeding, comes, and takes what is left,¹ namely the Bṛhat-kathā. The pupils expounded the poem to the king and he composed the first book or lambaka, called Kathāpīṭha (56¹0 N.), to serve as a general introduction to the rest, after Guṇāḍhya had ascended to heaven (56⁴), released.²

- 1. SELECTION XXIV. King Cibi, the falcon, and the dove. Kathā-sarit-sāgara, Tar. vii.88. - This story is famous, old, and widespread. It is of distinctly Buddhistic origin and character - see S. Beal, Si-yu-ki, i. p. 125 and note. Benfey, Pañcatantra, i. p. 388 f. gives a great many Buddhist and other parallels. It occurs in the Jataka as no. 499 (vol. iv.). It is frequently figured on Buddhist sculptures: so on the tope of Amaravatī-see James Fergusson, Tree and Serpent Worship,2 plate lxxxiii. 1, and p. 225, and plate lx.left, and p. 194; also on the great Javan temple of Boro Boudour. The Amarāvatī tope dates from about the beginning of our era - see J. Burgess, Arch. Survey of Southern India (Amarāvatī, etc.), p. 12, 101.
- —In the Cariyā-piṭaka, Pāli text, ed. Morris, p. 77, Çibi appears as an incarnation of the Future Buddha. Sakka, in the form of a blind old beggar, asks him for one of his eyes, and he gladly gives up both of them. This is represented in a mural painting of a cave at Ajaṇṭā—J. Burgess, Cave Temples of India, p. 315. Beal gives a Chinese version of the story in his Buddhist Literature in China, p. 31–41. And the tale occurs in Mohammedan forms with Moses in place of Çibi, and Michael and Gabriel in place of Indra and Dharma (or Agni).
- -In Sanskrit works the Cibi-story is common. We find it in the Southern Pañcatantra, French version by J.-A. Dubois, p. 173. It occurs three times in the MBh. It is told at iii.130.21=10557, of Uçīnara, the father of Çibi (translated by P. E. Foucaux, Le MBh., Onze épisodes, p. 231); at iii.197.1=13274, of Çibi himself; and at xiii.32.3=2046, of Vṛṣadarbha, the son of Çibi.

- Çibi Āuçīnara is the traditional author of RV. x.179.1, and seems to be the heros eponymos of a clan that dwelt between the Indus and Akesines. See Zimmer, Altindisches Leben, p. 130, 431.

Kathā-sarit-sāgara, Tar. xvii.137. — Cacī is a pattern of wifely virtue, but Indra does not requite her with equal fidelity. His amours are as notorious as those of Zeus. Indra is invoked with the words ahalvāvāi jāra, as early as the CB. (iii.3.418). He is reproached for his affair with Ahalya, at MBh. v.12.6= 373; and this is narrated at length in the Rāmāyana, i.48 Schlegel, or i.49 Gorresio. His attempt upon Ruci is told at MBh. xiii. 40.16 = 2262, excerpted by Muir, Texts, i².466. Later books smooth over these immoralities by interpreting them allegorically - see Müller, Ancient Skt. sarit-sāgara, Tar. vi.108-164, omitting 111-112, 124-133a, 154-158, 161-162. — Kṣemendra gives this story in brief at vi.35-52, Journ. As., 8.vi.446. The king is called Sātavāhana; but this is merely the family name of a dynasty that reigned in the northwest of the Deccan in the first and second centuries of our era. See Oldenberg, Ind. Ant., x.225 f. Çarvavarman was a protégé of this family — p. 334, § 52. Faust, l. 1383).

-At present (1878), all available information points to a Phoenician-Aramaic origin of the Indian alphabets. EXTRACTS FROM THE MANAVA-DHARMA-CASTRA.

§ 53. Bibliographical. The Manu literature is now very extensive. several of the most important and recent works need be mentioned here.

Arthur C. Burnell and Edward W. Hopkins. The | to say that Jolly's robs all preceding ones of their ordinances of Manu. Translated from the Sanskrit. With an introduction. London, Trübner & Co. 1884. 8°. Price 12 shillings.

George Bühler. The laws of Manu. Translated with extracts from seven commentaries. [=SBE. vol. xxv.] Oxford, at the Clarendon Press. 1886. 8°. Price 21 shillings. The volume contains an elaborate and valuable introduction.

Julius Jolly. Mānava Dharma-çāstra, the code of Manu. Original Sanskrlt text, with critical notes. London, Trübner & Co. May, 1887. 8°. Price 10 shillings 6 pence.

Burnell's introduction contains an argument on the date of our Manu text. Professor Hopkins has summed up and criticised this argument (JAOS. xiii. p. xxviii=PAOS. May, 1885), and concludes that it brings us not one step nearer a solution of the problem.

Bühler's introduction (p. civ-cxviii) gives a learned discussion of the date. Of this, Hopkins makes a résumé (JAOS. xlii. p. cxcvili = PAOS. May, 1887). He finds Bühler's conclusions probable, but does not think them absolutely proved by the proofs adduced.

The text-edition of Loiseleur Deslongchamps (Paris, 1830) is hardly obtainable now. It is safe Bühler's introduction.

value, inasmuch as it is the result of far-reaching critical studies. The principal places in which Jolly's text varies from that of the Reader are i.97; ii.11,76, 125; xii.23,37,42,45,90,95,96.

The general theory of the origin of the Laws of Manu was summed up and criticised by Whitney (JAOS. xiii. p. xxx = PAOS. May, 1885). Meantime, however, Bühler's Introduction has put the question in a new light.

The relations of our text to the Mahā-bhārata are ably discussed by Hopkins, JAOS. xi.239-275 (cf. PAOS. Oct., 1883). Here may be found, conveniently assembled, quotations from Manu in the Sūtras and inscriptions, the legendary material about him in the Epic, and a careful discussion of the passages in the Epic which profess to be the declarations of a personal Manu.

By way of calling attention to the interesting subject of the knowledge of the Greeks concerning India, occasional citations are given. The references to Strabo's Γεωγραφικά (of which book xv., chap. 1, §§ 1-73 describe India) follow Casaubon's paging.

The following introduction is in the main a brief abstract of some of the more important points of

The native tradition respecting the origin of the Mānava-dharma-cāstra takes the book to be the work of an individual law-giver. In accordance with this tradition, until quite recently, it has been usual for English writers to call the treatise 'The Laws of Manu.' And this designation may still be used, provided only it be used with an intelligent mental reservation, which takes due account of the results of modern criticism. For in the light of critical study, the figure of Manu, as a historical person, fades away; but, on the other hand, we find that Manu as a name is one of the greatest and most reverend of the Hindu antiquity. Questions thus arise: Whence the greatness of this name? What was the real origin of this law-book, and how came it to be called Manavan?

§ 55. The word manu originally means simply 'man' (see vocabulary). As we speak of human beings as the 'children of men,' so the Rig-veda speaks of them as the 'offspring of man' (mánu); and in this way arose the conception of a personal Mánu, the father of mankind. He is, in fact, the heros eponymos of the human race.

In the Veda he appears as 'Father Manu, child of the Sun,' as a holy seer, the originator of prayer, praise, and sacrifice, and as the object of the special favor of the gods. In the Brāhmaṇas, Manu is the progenitor of the new race after the flood. That he was regarded as a type of wisdom, is evidenced by the ancient saw, 'Whatever Manu said, that is medicine' (TS.ii.2.102). And again, that he was an eminent type of goodness appears from the fact that his actions came to be looked upon as examples highly worthy of imitation. Thus the Veda says (TS.iii.1.94), 'Manu divided his property among his sons'; and this is quoted by Bāudhāyana in his Dharma-sūtra as such an example. Such simple beginnings are entirely natural; but they are also sufficient to show how, with the growth of legal literature, the authors of law-books came to cite all kinds of (supposititious) sayings and doings of Manu as authoritative precedent. For, after the custom of referring to Manu as authority was once started, the oftener he was thus cited, the greater his factitious authority and the temptation to cite him would become. Accordingly, if we examine the four oldest Dharma-sūtras, we find much more frequent reference to Manu in Vasistha, the latest of them, than in Gāutama, the oldest. And thus, at last, what had been a mere name, a part of the traditional inheritance of the mythical past, attained to greatness as a personal authority and actual law-giver.

§ 56. Before proceeding to our other questions, let us rehearse briefly the native account of the origin of the work. In Sanskrit, the book is entitled mānava; and this may mean either 'of Manu' or 'of the Mānavans.' The Hindus say, 'of Manu'; and accordingly the opening stanzas represent the great sages as approaching 'Manu, the son of the Self-existent,' and asking him to declare unto them the law. He accedes; but deems it necessary to go back to a time before the Creation, in order to show how he derives his lineage (Manu i.33), and hence also his authority, directly from the Supreme One, Brahmán. 'He,' says Manu (i.58-60), 'composed this law-book, and taught it to me alone in the beginning; I taught it to Bhṛgu; and Bhṛgu will recite it to you.'

Bhrgu accordingly takes up Manu's cosmogonical discourse, continues with an account of the Four Ages and of other matters, dwells on the excellence of Manu's Laws, and ends book first with a table of contents of the twelve books of which the treatise consists. And in order that we may not forget that it is all (or all but i. 1–60) put into the mouth of Bhrgu, we are frequently reminded of the situation by an 'I will next declare' or the like, especially at the beginning of books v. and xii., where Bhrgu is mentioned by name as the promulgator of the laws in question. In accordance with all this, the work is entitled the Bhrgu-samhitā of the Mānavadharma-çāstra, and it may conveniently be so designated. It contains 2685 çlokas or 5370 lines; compare 54¹¹N.

§ 57. For the incredibility of this native account the reasons are near at hand. First, all the passages involving Bhrgu as promulgator of the work can be separated from the rest as easily as a picture-frame from the canvas which it surrounds. Indeed, the entire first book is a most palpable later addition. And, more than this, Bhrgu himself is cited (at iii.16), with three others, as an authority on a disputed point. Clearly, the later editors of the work were nodding here; else they would have expunged this stanza. And who knows how many more of a like sort they may have expunged?

Moreover, against the claim that Manu (to say nothing of the Supreme Spirit), was the author and the first law-giver, the case is equally plain. For the work appeals to the authority of Manu here and there, just as the other works of its class do, thus showing that its earlier editors at least did not pretend that Manu was the author of the whole. Nor was he a law-giver without predecessors or rivals; else we should not find, as we do, divergent opinions of other ancient sages cited along with what purports to be his. Moreover, the work itself (ii.6 = 5814f) admits that the law is based on the Veda, the usage of virtuous men, etc.; and it plainly mentions (at iii.232) Dharma-çāstras, which must be either contemporaneous, or else earlier than itself.

· § 58. Secondly, then, What was the real origin of the work? The first half of the answer is as follows. The Vedic works, as explained below, fall into the three classes of Sainhitā, Brāhmaṇa, and Sūtra. Chief among the works of the last class is the Kalpa-sūtra, or 'Ceremony-rules.' No Kalpa work had catholic validity among all Brahman families. On the contrary, many of the most important old families had each its own Kalpa-sūtra. In these clannish differences, doubtless, originated the Caranas or 'Schools,' in which Brahman science was cultivated and sacred tradition handed down from generation to generation. Thus among the adherents of the Black Yajur-veda, we find the family of Apastamba; and, bearing his name, we find not only a Brāhmana, but also a complete Kalpa-sūtra in its three subdivisions of Crauta-sutra or 'Rules for the fire-sacrifices,' Grhya-sutra or 'Domestic usages,' and Dharma-sūtra or 'Sacred law.' The Kalpa-sūtra of Bāudhāyana doubtless had a similar make-up. Good editions of various Grhya- and Dharma-sūtras are now accessible in text and translation. They treat 1 of the sacraments, of the duties of a Brahman in the various stages of his life, as student, householder, hermit, beggar, of the duties of a king, of the law of inheritance, and so on.

Now these are the very subjects treated also in the Dharma-çāstras. But there is one great difference, the difference of form. The Sūtras are in mingled prose and verse, the latter including both tristubh and anustubh stanzas; while the Çāstras are in the ordinary epic çloka. To a mind acquainted with the veriest rudiments of criticism it is quite clear from their form and language alone that the Çāstras are later than the Sūtras—a view which is in entire accord with the stanza ii.6=5814, cited above. The conclusion, then, that the Dharma-çāstras, in general, as shown by their contents and form, are the outgrowth, by a very natural process of evolution, from the Dharma-sūtras, is unimpeached.

§ 59. The other half of our answer is that the Mānava-dharma-çāstra, in particular, is a later metrical recast of a lost Mānava-dharma-sūtra: in other words, that it is the 'Law-book of the Mānavans.' This is a particular thesis, quite different from the general conclusion just stated; and, although very widely accepted, it is not universally so. The theory of this connection proceeds as follows. Among the schools of the Black Yajur-veda, especially among those of the Māitrāyaṇīya branch thereof, we find the school of the Mānavans. According to the investigations of Dr. von Schröder, the Māitrāyaṇīya seems to have been one of the oldest and most important of all the schools of the Yajus-period. Of these Māitrāyaṇīyas there are still some representatives surviving in Western India; and their Sūtras are entitled Mānava-sūtras. Manuscripts of the Mānava-çrāuta-sūtra and the Mānava-gṛḥya-sūtra are still extant.

§ 60. Unfortunately, the Mānava-dharma-sūtra, the link most important to connect our Bhṛgu-sainhitā with the Vedic schools, is still missing. The researches

² This theory was broached by Weber (ISt. i.69) and Müller (see SBE. ii. p. xi) in 1849. of von Bradke,¹ too, failed to show any striking correspondences between the Mānava-gṛḥya-sūtra and our treatise. But, on the other hand, Bühler has discovered ² important correspondences between it and the Mānava-çṛāddha-kalpa. Moreover, as has been repeatedly pointed out,³ the Dharma-sūtra of Vasiṣṭha contains a quotation (iv.5–8) which has every appearance of being a veritable fragment of the original Mānava-dharma-sūtra. In this quotation we have, first, the prose rule (5); next, the stanzas which support it (6, 7), and which agree entirely or nearly with Manu v. 41 and 48; and, last, a Vedic passage (8) to support both rule and stanzas. This is the arrangement usual in the Dharma-sūtras. And the prose rule (5) is characterized by the words iti mānavam as a quotation from the Sūtra of a special school; for works valid for all Aryans are not so cited.⁴

§ 61. Other quotations 5 are found in Vasistha at iii.2, xiii.16, xix.37, and xx.18, in close correspondence respectively with Manu ii.168, iv.117, x.120, and xi.152 of our text, and introduced by the formula, 'And on this point they quote a Mānavan stanza.' From this, one might think that Vasistha was quoting from our Bhṛgu-saṃhitā. But this inference is barred by the evident posteriority of our text, as shown by its form and by other general considerations, and in particular by the fact that the stanza at xix.37 is in the triṣṭubh metre. We conclude, then, that the Mānava-dharma-sūtra known to Vasiṣṭha closely resembled our text, but was not identical with it.

§ 62. Now granting all that precedes, there is a very strong inherent probability in the conclusion that our Bhṛgu-saṁhitā is a metrical recast of the Dharma-sūtra of the Mānavan school. More than this cannot be said; for it is not a necessary conclusion. Its probability, however, has been greatly increased by the considerations respecting the occasion and method of the recast adduced by Bühler.

§ 63. The occasion was the development (beside the sectarian schools which studied exclusively a single branch of the Veda and the rudimentary works ancillary thereto) of the non-sectarian schools of special sciences, whose teachings claimed validity for all Aryans. In the old Vedic schools, the pupils had to learn the texts of the Mantras and Brāhmaṇas of their sect, and the short ancillary treatises, on ritual, etymology, metre, etc., called Aūgas or 'Limbs' of the Veda. With the development of these subjects to elaborate disciplines, it became impossible for a student to master them all. He must either content himself with a thorough verbal but unintelligent acquaintance with the texts and short treatises of his own sect; or else he must become a specialist in the ritual, the law, or some other subject, and renounce an extensive knowledge of the sacred texts.

§ 64. That this truly describes the course of things is shown by the present state of learning in India. A good Vaidik is able to recite all the texts of his branch of the Veda. But in order to have an elaborate sacrifice performed, there is need of a Crotriya specialist, who, though ignorant of the other Angas, is yet a master of the ritual. In the case of two of the Angas, grammar and astronomy, the Vedic schools possess no sectarian text-books of their own. These subjects, it would seem, had been abandoned to the specialists at an early period. For a good while longer the sacred law was cultivated in the Vedic schools, as appears from the existence of the numerous sectarian manuals on the subject. But even in these (see Bühler, Manu, p. lii, p. xxv, x.3) we find mention of persons who know several different law-books, that is, who were specialists in the law. And this fact alone would lead us to infer the existence of special law-schools.

- § 65. Granting the existence of these schools, we have precisely the combination of circumstances which would lead to the production of such a work as our Manutext. The schools had before them plenty of Sūtra-material, sectarian, of only local validity, unsystematic, and incomplete. In the very nature of things, the schools would tend to be non-sectarian, to widen their influence, and to systematize and complete the work of their predecessors. And this is exactly what they have done in our Manu-text. It is absolutely non-sectarian. As contrasted with its forerunners, it emphasizes the practical rather than the moral side of the law, treating strictly legal topics at much greater length. It shows the signs of being a school-book. And finally, it aims at general validity among all Aryans. This explains the fact that our Manu shows so little correspondence with the texts of the Vedic Mānavan schools. The recast was the work of men whose interest in their subject exceeded their interest in a sect.
- § 66. Finally, the greatness of the name of the legendary and semi-divine Manu suggests the reason why a special law-school should have chosen the Mānavan Dharma-sūtra rather than any other as the basis of their new manual. In constructing a treatise that aspired to universal acceptance, they must ipso facto withdraw any claim thereto which rested on the high standing of the Sūtra-original as a sectarian work. The problem then was, in accomplishing this task, to avoid too violent a break with tradition. Had they taken the Gāutama-sūtra, and recast it, waiving for it all claim to general validity on the score of Gāutama's authority, it would indeed have been a bold proceeding to father it upon Vyāsa or Manu or any of the great sages of yore. By choosing the Mānava-sūtra, after their silent waiver on the one hand, they had only, on the other, to interpret its title expressly as meaning 'of Manu,' when,—presto—without the smallest offense to tradition or grammar, they had a name of unsurpassed authority to commend their work to the Aryan world.
- § 67. A great deal of the recast—Bühler, p. lxxiii, thinks one half—cannot have been derived from the Sūtra-original. The entire first book is most clearly such a later addition; and such is likewise the twelfth book, whose classification of actions and existences according to the three gunas (66%) is based on the teachings of the Sāmkhya, Yoga, and Vedānta systems of philosophy.

What now is the source of these later additions? The Mahā-bhārata offers very many correspondences with our Manu-text. A comparative study of the two works shows that the editors of the latter have not drawn on the former, but rather that both works have drawn upon a common stock of popular metrical maxims (Hopkins, JAOS. xi.268), which embodied much of the traditional legal lore, and were ascribed (as is attested by extant inscriptions) now to one and now to another of the ancient mythical sages — Vyāsa, Manu, and the rest.

- § 68. As for the method of conversion of the Sūtra into our Manu-text, Professor Bühler is of opinion (p. xcii) that it took place at one time, and that our text is not the result of many successive recasts.
 - § 69. Coming, finally, to the date of the recast, Professor Bühler concludes

(p. cxiv, cxvii) that it existed in the second century A.D., and was made between that time and circa 100 B.C. General considerations make this conclusion seem far from improbable. Our Manu-text is doubtless the oldest of the class of secondary law-books, like those of Yājāavalkya and Nārada, to which it belongs (p. civ). And again, while it is doubtless posterior to the older portions of the Mahā-bhārata, our Manu-text—in some form or other—is probably prior to the later portions of the great Epic, books xii. and xiii. But we do not know the time of Yājñavalkya nor of the Epic; and at present it seems quite vain to seek for an accurate date.

Megasthenes gives an interesting account of the Brahmans (preserved by Strabo, xv.59, p. 712f), and notes that even from the time of conception in the womb (ἤδη εὐθὺς καὶ κυομένους) they are under the care of wise men.

 - 9. upanāyana, 'investiture.'
 - 10. keçanta, 'tonsure of beard.'
 - 11. samāvartana, 'return from study.'
 - 12. vivāha, 'marriage.'

Most of these are described at length, AGS. i.13f or SBE. xxix.179f or 46f or M. Williams, Indian Wisdom, 246, 201. Number 2 is done to bring it about that the child prove a male. No. 3 is a consecration of the pregnant woman by the parting of her hair.

20-21. See param. - 'Saying "I am soand-so by name," he should announce his name.' - The older one or the one superior in station speaks or salutes first. Thus, when the great Yayāti is falling from heaven and meets in mid-air Aṣṭaka and others, Aṣṭaka asks him, "Who art thou?" but not without excusing himself, as the inferior, for bold incivility in speaking first. - MBh. i.88.10 = | 3573. The bhos is of course in lieu of the name of the person addressed.

4. 'And the vowel a must be pronounced (added) at the end of his name, with the previous syllable protracted' - reading purvaksaraplutah (see Bühler). Thus Devadatta and Harabhūte are to be pronounced Devadattā3a and Harabhūtā3ya — see Whitney, 78.

7-8. This rule is observed, e.g. in the drama, by the Rishis and the king, Cakuntala, mid. of act v. For other differences in the modes of address used for or by the different castes, see 602n.; CB. i.1.412 (or SBE. xii.28 or Weber's Ind. Streifen, i.49). The rule is disregarded in the Epos, e.g. at MBh. i.71.5 = 2899.

The point of the prohibitions is that the parts of shame be not turned to the Sun-god or (as at 62²⁰) any other sacred or venerable thing. The prohibition recurs in very many Sanskrit books (e.g. MBh. xiii.104.75=5029,f; VP. iii.11.10f; for other parallel passages, see SBE. vii.194), and may be traced, with similar ones, back to the AV.  - II. rajas, the gati of a man (45-47);
 - III. sattva, the gati of a god (48-50).

- Each gati is of three kinds:
 - a. lowest; b. middling; c. highest.

The scheme is not strictly adhered to. In line 1, for instance, 'plants' are put among the beasts; and in 15, the 'Vedas,' among the gods. But we are not surprised to find 'Çūdras' (line 3) among the beasts, and 'Brahmans' (line 13) among the gods (see 9418).

EXTRACTS FROM THE VEDIC LITERATURE.

(or "Veda" in its narrower sense), Brāhmana, and Sūtra. They are taken for the most part from the Rigvedic literature (or "Rigveda" in its broader sense). Professor Kaegi's little work, entitled Der Rigveda (2d ed.), and described above, Brief List, p. xx, no. 23, is recommended as a most nseful introduction to Vedlc study, on account of its general excellence, and, in particular, on account of the fulness of its bibliographical details. It is, moreover, now easily accessible in an English version by Dr. Robert Arrowsmith, published by Ginn and Co., Boston, 1886, price $1.65. Kaegi's book will be frequently cited in the sequel, as "Kaegi," with the page-number of the translation first, followed by that 87-90.

§ 70. Selections xxxi. to lxxv. comprise Mantra | of the original in parenthesis. The Note-numbers are alike in both.

§ 71. For grammatical forms peculiar to the Veda, reference to Whitney will be made when needful; but the student should read systematically the sections that describe Vedic noun-inflection and verbconjugation. For the former subject, the small-print lines of 330, 340, and 342 are important; and for the latter, the paragraphs on the subjunctive, 557-563, 736, 700, and those on the mode-forms of the different aorists, chap. xi. The accent, explained by Whitney, 80-86, is important for the exegesis and otherwise, The accent-rules are given at 92-97, 314-320, 591-598, 1082-86. The notation of the accent is explained at

- § 72. The Vedic literature is based on the songs of the early Aryan tribes immigrant into India. These tribes were life-loving, brave, and warlike, and show their nature clearly in their songs. But they were remarkable above all for the strength of their religious instinct. This is a cardinal fact — the prime determinant of the character of the early Indian literature; for that literature is one of prevailingly religious content. The Veda is thus distinguished from the later literature of the Epic and the Classical periods by its contents, and also - no less - by its language and style. But within itself, the Vedic literature (or "Veda" in the broader sense of the word) shows differences which serve to divide it into three great groups.
- § 73. To assign a definite chronological period for each of these groups is neither feasible nor necessary. But it is interesting and quite possible to establish an inner chronologic sequence among the groups themselves and the sub-groups, and even among individual books and parts of books. To the first group belong the ancient songs themselves, which are in metrical form and are known as the Vedic hymns or Mantras. The term "Veda" is often used in a narrower sense to denote them. To the second belong the Brahmanas, the oldest Indo-European prose extant, which presuppose and are dependent on the Mantra-literature. The third group comprehends the Sūtras, collections of brief rules upon liturgical and other subjects, which, in turn, presuppose both of the foregoing groups.

¹ Indeed, to do so would give a very false impresture shade.off from one into another—so, for sion. The periods overlap; and the styles of literative example, in the Yajurveda.

- § 74. A great mass of Mantra-material originated and was handed down by memorial tradition orally from generation to generation long before the existence of any such collections of Mantras as have come down to us.¹ The Mantras fall into several different classes. To one belongs the hymn-stanza (fc); to another, the sacrificial formula (yájus); and to another, the magic charm (bráhman). From the stock of Mantras of one class—for example, the yájus—a certain collection with definite arrangement became established by popular usage in a certain community, and thus arose a Veda, for example, a Yajurveda—not a certain definite book, but some one of many possible and probable collections of Mantras of a certain definite class. From the same stock of the same class another collection was formed in another community, and thus arose another Veda, for example, another Yajurveda. The period in which the oldest hymns of the Rigveda originated may be set back into the second pre-Christian millennium;² but this only on certain general considerations—not as a matter of precise argumentation. Geographically, the early Vedic Aryans may be referred to Kābul and the Panjāb.³
- § 75. The Mantras have come down to us, for the most part, in several collections, diverse in form and purpose. There was, besides, more or less Mantra-material which was never embodied in any collection, but of which we find remnants scattered about in various books. The great collections of Mantras are the Rigveda, the Sāmaveda, the Yajurveda, and the Atharvaveda. The text of the Mantras forms what is often called a Samhitā. To each Samhitā is attached a body of dependent or ancillary works of the Brāhmaṇa and Sūtra groups: so that the oldest Indian books are classed, first, according to the Veda to which they belong; and, secondly, according to their character as Mantra, Brāhmaṇa, or Sūtra. It is to be remembered that "Veda" has a narrower and a broader sense, and that "Rigveda," for instance, may mean either the Rigveda-samhitā or also the entire body of works belonging to that Veda.
- § 76. The Sainhitā of the Rigveda is a historical ⁵ collection. It consists of 1017 hymns, each containing on an average about ten double lines, ⁶ so that the text is in volume somewhat less than that of the two Homeric poems together. There is a purely external and mechanical division of the text into 'Eighths,' 'Lessons,' ⁷ 'Groups,' and 'Stanzas' (aṣṭaka, adhyāya, varga, rc); but this need not specially concern us now. Of deep historical significance is the other division into 'Books,' 'Chapters,' 'Hymns,' and 'Stanzas' (maṇḍala, anuvāka, sūkta, rc).
- § 77. There are ten 'Books' (literally, 'Circles'). And of these, books ii. to viii. are the so-called "Family-books"—that is, they contain each the hymns ascribed to a single family or clan, in which they doubtless originated, and by which they were handed down as a sacred inheritance. Thus, book ii. contains the hymns of Gṛtsamada and his clan. Those of Viçvāmitra and his tribe follow in book iii.; and then in order those of Vāmadeva (book vi.), Atri (book v.), Bharadvāja (book vi.), Vasiṣṭha (book vii.), and Kaṇva (book viii.). The ninth book is made up of hymns addressed to the deified drink Soma. The tenth comprises hymns ascribed to very different authors; 1 while the first consists of fifteen 2 minor groups, each attributed to some ancient poet-sage.

- § 78. The general history of the text of the Rigveda was touched upon by Professor Roth in a very instructive little essay a entitled Vedische Studien. Some of his conclusions may be briefly stated. The assembling of the Mantras into a collection was accomplished by the aid of writing.4 The first Rik collections were probably single books and parts of books, each an aggregation of material of such moderate compass as to be easily handled by a single collector. The small collections were later united into one large collection, which, completed by the addition of books ix. and x., and uniformly edited, constitutes our RV. Samhita.
- § 79. Roth recognizes three stages in the tradition: 1, the oral transmission from the authors to the time of the collectors; 2, the reduction from the oral form to the written form; and 3. the transmission of the written text to us. We may admit that in the last stage the text - carefully preserved as it was, see § 98 - has suffered no very important corruptions. The collectors themselves, however, did not by any means write down the texts precisely as they heard them. The reciters from memory must have recited rhythmically. The collectors (writers - redactors or diaskenasts) have often destroyed the rhythm by putting the texts into the strait-jacket of the rules of grammar, and especially by writing the words according to the later rules of samdhi. To the first stage are to be referred the many mistakes which are ascribable to carelessness in listening,5 and which may be called blunders of the ear rather than of the eve.
- § 80. That the hymns themselves are of diverse origin, both in respect of place and of time, is probable a priori and is shown by internal evidence. 6 Accordingly, if we find, for example, two hymns involving inconsistent conceptions of the same deity or of different deities, this is to be deemed quite natural, inasmuch as they originated among clans dwelling in diverse regions. Moreover, after the aggregation of the small collections into the large one, interpolations and later additions were still made. To discriminate between the different elements that now make up the canonical Vedic text is therefore an important problem.
- § 81. Again, in the course of time, and in part as a result of the wrangling pedantry of narrow teachers, the stock collections became ramified into slightly divergent recensions. These were called cakhas or 'branches,' because so related to each other as are different branches from the same tree-stock. The Çākhās often supply to criticism the various readings for which the classical philologist looks to good and independent manuscripts. The community in which such a Cākhā attained definitive authority was called a carana or 'school.' There once existed, presumably, many branches and schools of the RV. The school of the Cākalas, however, seems that they had existed from eternity; it recognizes no human authors. The Hindus do not call Atri, for example, the "author" of a given hymn, but rather the "Rishl," i.e. the "seer," who was so fortunate as to " see " it the last time it was revealed. - Müller, ASL. p. 95.

⁴ This is entirely consistent with the facts that the

to have gained exclusive predominance, and the extant recension of the RV. Samhitā bears their name. The Çākhā of the Bāskalas is also mentioned.

- § 82. The manuscripts of the RV. Sainhitā exhibit almost no diversities of reading; so that, in the absence of çākhā-differences, the criticism of the text has to rest on intrinsic evidence, and on a comparison of the other Sainhitās, and on a study of the RV. citations in the RV. Brāhmaṇas and Sūtras. Other criteria have been brought to light by the study of the arrangement of the collection. Thus, within each of the books ii.-vii., the hymns addressed to the same deity are grouped together and arranged according to the decreasing number of stanzas of each hymn. The same simple principle goes farther, governing, for example, the order of the groups within a book.¹ Violations of the principle may arouse suspicion as to the originality or genuineness of the passages concerned.
- § 83. The first written form of the text would seem to have been the samhitā-pāṭha or 'combined reading,' wherein the words are combined according to the more or less artificial rules of grammar.² These combinations often admit of several different resolutions. To obviate the resulting uncertainties, there was constructed the pada-pāṭha or 'word-reading,' which aims to give each word in its true independent form without reference to any rules of combination. The Pada-text of the published RV. is attributed to Çākalya,³ and is the oldest conscious exegetical work upon the Veda now known. It is far from infallible.⁴ For its secondary use, see § 98N.
- § 84. The Sāmaveda is a Veda of sāmans. A sāman is properly a 'tune'—not a text; but in this connection the word means an rc so modified 5 as to be better adapted for chanting, especially during the ceremonies of the Soma-sacrifice. Of the 1549 stanzas of the Sāmaveda, 1474 occur also in the Rigveda. The SV. exhibits many variations from the readings of the RV. Samhitā, some of which are of value for the criticism of the latter text. In general, the relations of the SV. to the RV. still present many difficult problems.
- § 85. The Sainhitā of the Atharvaveda, as compared with that of the RV., represents a lower plane of life and thought, as it is also later in respect of form and language. It contains magic incantations for the warding off of the most diverse maligu influences, and prayers and charms for success in the various affairs of life, as love, gaming, quarrels, journeys, and the like. It has a high degree of interest for the student of popular superstitions. The Samhitā has come down to us in at least two recensions. The one is called the Pāippalāda Çākhā. The other was published in 1856 by Roth and Whitney. About a sixteenth part of the RV. stanzas occur also with more or less interesting variants in books i. to xix. of this text. Shankar P. Pandit of Bombay is now editing the AV. with Sāyaṇa's comment.
- § 86. The Yajurveda belongs to the period ¹¹ of the highly developed ritual, and originated in the sacred and famous Madhyadeça. ¹² The Samhitas contain the formulas (see yajus in vocab.) which accompanied the sacrificial ceremonials, and are, as it were, the hand-books of the adhvaryus or priests who did the actual manual labor of the sacrifices.1 With the growth of ritualism and its spread over a wide extent of territory 2 there naturally grew up many differing usages in connection with the sacrifice, and many centres of ritualistic study.3 In this wise it happened that the sectarian schools of the Yajurveda were especially numerous and flourishing.

§ 87. The Black Yajurveda. The various schools of this, the older Yajurveda. bear the names of men reputed to be the pupils - directly or indirectly - of Vaicampāyana, a name great in the Epos. At least five schools 4 possessed special Samhitās, of which four are still extant: to wit, the Samhitā of the Kathas $(K\alpha\theta\hat{aio})$ or the Kāthaka; that of the Kapisthala-Kathas ($Ka\mu\beta i\sigma\theta o\lambda o\iota$); that of the Māitrāyanīyas; and that of the school of Apastamba, a subdivision of the Tāittirīyas. mentioned, the Taittiriya Samhita, was the first to be printed in a scholarly edition. The Māitrāyanī Samhitā has recently been published by Dr. L. von Schröder, Leipzig, 1881-86. The others are still unedited. In all these texts of the old Yajus Samhitas, the sacred formulas are commingled with prose passages, explanatory and prescriptive. A single such passage is a Brahmana, 6 the dictum of a brahman or priest,' 'a priestly discourse.'

§ 88. The White Yajurveda. To remedy this confusion, a new school of Adhvaryus, called the Vājasanevins, arranged a Samhitā of 'clear formulas' (cuklāni yajūnsi), i.e. a text in which the formulas or Mantras were separated from the priestly discourses or Brāhmaṇas. Not without some little animus, doubtless, they turned to account the double meaning of cukla, 'clear' or 'white,' and fixed the name of "Dark" (krsna, 'dark' or 'black') upon the mingled or uncleared texts of their older rivals. The Sainhitā of the White Yajurveda or Vājasanevi Sainhitā has come down to us in the recension of the Kānvas and in that of the Mādhyaindinas,8 and was published by Weber, Berlin, 1849-52.

The separate collections of the formulas naturally suggested a similar treatment of the priestly discourses. In the school of the Vajasaneyins, the result of this treatment was a collection of the formerly detached Brahmanas, which collection is itself also called a Brahmana,9 and is practically an encyclopedic digest of the wisdom of their school.10

§ 90. The oldest collection of Mantras, the Rigveda, is in the main the reflex of the life of a vigorous, active, and healthy people - a people that prayed most for length of days, for sturdy sons, abundant cattle, doughty retainers, and victory over their enemies; a people whose religion was a simple worship of the deified powers of nature. But even during the Vedic period, there comes a profound change. The Yajurveda represents a turning-point in the development of the Hindu character. The centre of Vedic life is shifted to Madhyadeça; and here were made the first great advances in the arts and institutions of civilization, in trade, and in science. Here also priestly families and warrior-families attained to such importance as to assert their independence of the people, and so bring about the strongly marked class-distinctions that grew into the rigid system of caste. And here, with the waxing power of the priesthood, the old Vedic religion was converted into an infinitely complex system of sacrifices and ceremonies. To this period belongs the belief in metempsychosis—a dreadful and universal reality to the Hindu mind. With the growing tendency of the Hindu character towards introspection comes the system of hermit-life and the asceticism which are so prominent in the Hindu Middle Age, and which in turn led naturally to the habit of theosophic speculation. The sultry air of Ganges-land has relaxed both the physical and the mental fibre of the Hindu, and he has become a Quietist.

§ 91. The Hindu character has been transformed almost beyond recognition. The change is wonderful. It would be also incomprehensible, but for the literature of the Brāhmaṇas. As a whole and by themselves, they are puerile, arid, inane. But as the sole and faithful reflex of an immensely important phase in the development of an ethnic type, they have a great interest—an interest heightened by the fact that the annals of human evolution hardly present another type whose history can be studied through so many centuries in unbroken continuity.

§ 92. The sacerdotal class, ever magnifying its office, has invested the sacrifice with a most exaggerated importance and sanctity. The sacrifice has become the central point of the Brahman's life and thought. About it he has spun a flimsy web of mystery, and in each of its events he sees a hidden symbolism.² Everything is not only that which it is but also that which it signifies. So lost is the Brahman in these esoteric vagaries that to him the line of demarcation between "is" and "signifies" becomes almost wholly obliterated.³ What we deem the realities of life are as pale shadows. The sacrifice and its events are the real facts, and to fathom their mysteries is omnipotence and salvation.

§ 93. It must not be forgotten that the phases of development represented by the Mantras and Brāhmaṇas are not separated by hard and fast lines. The oldest Yajus texts are of the transition type. They are called Sainhitās, and contain indeed Mantras in abundance; but the Mantras are mingled with prose passages which are the first Brāhmaṇas. Descriptions of the sacrificial ceremonies, attributions to them of hidden meanings, accounts of their origin, legends to illustrate their efficacy—such are the contents of the older Brāhmaṇas. Conscious philosophic speculation plays a subordinate part: its beginnings we can trace to the RV. Sanihitā; ⁵ but the great mass of it is contained in the later Brāhmaṇa literature.

§ 94. In this, the later Brāhmaṇa period, the descriptions of the ritual are relegated to systematic treatises (§ 95); and the theosophic and philosophic passages become more lengthy and important, and receive—as containing material appropriate for the meditations of the $\hbar\lambda\delta\beta\omega$ or Forest-hermits—the special names of Āraṇyakas 6 or Forest-treatises and Upaniṣads. Some of the best of these have been handed down by tradition as separate works with separate names; and other tracts of the same general style and contents have been written; but it must be remembered that the original Āraṇyakas and Upaniṣads were integral parts of the digested Brāhmaṇas.¹

Brahmanical speculation culminates in pessimistic Pantheism, in the doctrine of the misery of all earthly existence, from which we can hope for redemption only through reabsorption into the universal All-in-One. This is the result of Brahmanical thought, on which as a foundation was built up the doctrine and order of Buddha; this the link that unites the Brahmanic and the Buddhistic chains of development.²

- § 95. The Brāhmaṇas presuppose a thorough acquaintance with the course and details of the sacrifice, and do not undertake a systematic exposition thereof. But when the ceremonies had grown to tremendous length and complexity, it became necessary to have manuals giving full and orderly directions for the use of the celebrant. Such works are the 'Rules for the sacrifices' or Çrānta-sūtras, so called because they stand in most intimate relation to the Veda or 'sacred texts' (çruti), and continually cite these texts, and prescribe the manner and the occasions of their employment with the various ceremonies.
- § 96. Usage and observance, crystallized into sacred ceremony, invest the whole life of an Aryan Hindu nay, even his pre-natal and post-mortem existence. These usages differed considerably in different localities, and in the lesser details among the different families of the same locality. In part, perhaps, to counteract the tendency to diversity, books were made describing the observances recognized as normal in a certain school or community. They are called Gṛḥya-sūtras, or 'Rules of domestic usages.' Here, too, as well as in the sacrifice, everything proceeds with the recitation of Mantras; so that these books also attach themselves to certain Vedas or Vedic schools. The legitimate subjects of these Rules are the 'Sacraments' (saṃskāras), and the 'Simple-sacrifices' (pāka-yajñas) of the householder.
- § 97. There is also a third class of Sūtras, called Dharma-sūtras, which prescribe rules for the every-day life of those who would conform to the example of the virtuous. Since they have to do with 'agreement-conduct,' i.e. the 'conduct' (ācāra) which has for its norm the 'agreement' (sam-aya, lit. 'con-vention') of those who know the law, they are also called Sāmayācārika-sūtras. The matters belonging more properly to the Gṛḥya-sūtras are sometimes treated also in the Dharma-sūtras. But the legitimate subjects of the latter are far more varied than those of the former. They embrace all sorts of injunctions and restrictions relating to etiquette, to eating and sleeping, to purification and penance, and to the details of the daily life of the student and householder and hermit, and even extend to the duties of the king and to the beginnings of civil and criminal law. In the order of development they are plainly posterior to the Gṛḥya-sūtras.
- § 98. As the sacred texts of the Mantras grew in sanctity, their dialect and style of thought became obsolescent. For the transmission of the sacred lore, a learned apparatus became necessary. To preserve the written text of a given 'branch' (çākhā) of the Veda from any change in "one jot or one tittle," by establishing the relations of the samhitā and pada pāṭhas (§ 83) of that branch, there were composed the phonetic treatises, which, because attaching each 'to a (certain) branch' (prati-çākham), are called Prātiçākhyas. These give with the utmost minuteness of detail the rules for the retroversion of the pada to the samhita readings, and thus enable us to establish with great accuracy the text as it was in their day.2

To preserve the knowledge of the sense of obsolescent words, there were § 99. made collections of synonyms and of hard words (γλώσσαι), called the Nighantavas, the oldest Vedic Glossary. Upon the Glossary there was written, by the ancient sage Yāska, a comment called Nirukta, which is the oldest extant work of formal Vedic exegesis, but which itself acknowledges a number of predecessors. successors, the most famous is the great commentary of Sayana 3 Ācarya, ca. 1350 A.D. § 100. It remains to give a brief bibliography of the literature of the Rigveda Samhitā with mention of the principal ancillary works appertaining to it. For the bibliography of the other Sainhitas, reference may be made to Kaegi, notes 8-26, or to Weber's History of Indian Literature.

1. Rigveda. Samhitā. a. Text-editions. The first complete edition was issued by Aufrecht, 1861-63, as vol's vi. and vil. of the ISt. Müller's great six-volumed quarto, with the full Samhita and Pada texts, Sāyaṇa's commentary, an index, etc., was begun in 1849 and completed in 1874. Then came the editions mentioned at the beginning of this Reader, in the Brief List, no's 11 and 12.

b. Exegesis. The greatest achievements in Vedic exegesis must be ascribed to Roth. They are contained principally in the St. Petersburg Lexicon, Brief List, no. 5. Grassmann's Dictionary and his Translation are described in the List, no's 13 and 14. Professor Alfred Ludwig of Prague has published a large work in five volumes (Prag, Tempsky, 1876-83), entitled Der Rigveda. Vol's i. and li. contain a translation of the hymns arranged according to deities and subjects. Vol. iii. contains an introduction to the translation, entitled Die Mantra-litteratur und das alte Indien. Vol's iv. and v. contain a commentary on the translation.

e. General Works. Abel Bergaigne's work entitled La religion védique (Paris, Vieweg, 1878-83. 3 vol's) is a systematic and encyclopedic exposition of the religious and mythological conceptions of the RV. The work of Geldner and Kaegi (List, no. 15), and those of Weber, Zlmmer, and the rest (no's 21-26), all bear more or less directly on the study of the Veda. Whitney's Oriental and Linguistic Studies (New York, Scribner, Armstrong, & Co. 1st series, 1873) contain among other things valuable essays on the history, interpretation, and contents of the RV. Very recently has appeared a book by L. von Schröder, Indiens Literatur und Cultur in historischer Entwicklung (Leipzig, 1887), the first third of which is devoted to the Veda, and especially to the period of the Yajurveda.

2. Rigveda. Brāhmanas etc. The Āitareya Brāhmana was edited by Aufrecht - see List, no. 16.

Haug had already published the text with a translation (Bombay, 1863), criticised and corrected by Weber, ISt. ix.177-380.

The Aitareya Aranyaka is associated with the Brāhmana of the same name. It has five books and was edited with Sāyana's comment by R. Mitra in the Bibliotheca Indica, 1876. See SBE. i. p. xci f.

Aitareya Upanisad is the name borne by certain parts of the Aranyaka, viz. book ii., chap's 4, 5, 6see SBE. I. p. xcvi. The text was edited and translated by Röer, BI., 1849-53. Müller gives another translation, SBE. i.200f.

The Cankhavana or Kausitaki Brahmana was edited by Bruno Lindner (Jena, Costenoble, 1887). A translation is soon to follow,

The Kāusītaki Brāhmaņa Upanisad was edited (with Camkara's comment) and translated by Cowell, BI., 1861. Another translation, by Müller, SBE. i.271f; introduction, ibidem, p. xcviii.

3. Rigveda. Sūtras etc. Āçvalāyana's Çrāutasūtra was edited by R. Vidyāratna, BI., 1874.

Açvalāyana's Grhya-sūtra was edited (with translation) by Stenzler - see List, no. 17. English version by Oldenberg, SBE. xxix.

Çankhayana's Çrauta-sütra was edited by Alfred Hillebrandt, BI., 1886.

Çānkhāyana's Grhya-sutra was edited in 1878 by Oldenberg, ISt. xv.1-166, with translation. English version by Oldenberg, SBE. xxix.

No Dharma-sūtra is certainly known to be attached especially to the RV. Samhitā.

The RV. Prātiçākhya was edited by Regnier (JA., 1856-58), and by Müller (Leipzig, 1856-69). Each editor gives a translation.

The Nirukta, with the Nighantavas, was edited and elucidated by Roth (Göttingen, 1848-52).

The Anukramanī of Kātyāyana was edited with valuable accessories by Arthur A. Macdonell in the Anecdota Oxoniensia, Oxford, 1886.

-The Metre is gāyatrī. Each stanza (rc) consists of three octosyllabic pādas with iambic cadence—see Kaegi, p.24(34) and n.85. Observe that, if the stanza be a triple one, the strophe usually consists of three stanzas and the hymn of a multiple thereof.

-In respect of frequency, the order of the metres in the RV. is: first the tristubh (about $\frac{2}{3}$ of RV.); then the gāyatrī (about $\frac{1}{4}$); then the jagatī (about $\frac{1}{6}$) — see Haskell, JAOS. xi.p.lx = PAOS. May, 1881.

LINES 1-2. Ile, vid: accentless, 592: for the new letter, see p. 291 ¶ 8, and Whitney, 5 end. -RV.x.2.5 plays on the etymology of rtv-íj thus: agnír·deván rtu-çó yajāti. -For superl., 471.

3. púrvebhis, 330, Vedic instr.: for r final w. initial r, Whitney, 14 end.

4. U.f. devåns å ihá. This interesting combination is really the result of a historic survival, and is fully explained at 209. Observe that ān, though transliterated with two letters, is a simple nasalized vowel, 209 a. — å·vakṣati: position of prefix, 1081; accent of verb form, 1082; \vah, aor. sub., 8931.

5-6. açnavat, 700: use of mode, 576: subject indefinite. — divé-dive, 1260. — yaçásam, 1151.2a.

7-8. ágne, acct, 3143. - asi, acct, 595 a. - Position of clauses, 512a. - Locative, 304 a.

10. á gamat, true aor. subjunctive (8362), corresponding to the ind. ágan (833): see 558.

11-12. tvám may be read tuám. Observe that in the Veda, when rhythmically read, hiatus is common—1133.—ágne is at the beg. of a new pāda, 3143.—U.f. táva íd tád satyám.—Lit. 'Just what pleasant thing thou wilt (=willest to) do for the pious man, of theé indeed that (is) real or unfailing'—i.e. 'Whatever blessing thou

Hymn to dost purpose to grant, that thou never failby Whit- est to bestow.'

> 13-14. U.f. úpa tvā (4918) agne (accentless) · · · á imasi (5481), vi+upa_ā.

> 15-16. The accusatives are to be taken w.tvā. - We may pronounce adhvarāṇaām (1133), or leave the pāda catalectic. - U.f. gopām. - In pāda c, we must pronounce sué, in order to produce an iambic cadence.

17-18. sá · · bhava, see ta 2. - U.f. sūnáve ágne: for treatment of the acct in combination, see 135, example 4.

Observe that — as the metre here shows — pādas a and b are always independent of each other as regards euphonic combination, and that — as here — the written text, with perverse consistency, always combines them when this is possible.

-sácasvä, pada, sácasva, 248 c. - Pronounce su-astáye.

SELECTION XXXII. RV. i. 32. Indra slays the dragon.—Respecting Indra and the natural significance of the myths about his battles, see Kaegi, p. 40(57)f, N.141f; and Perry, JAOS. xi.117f.

-The "hymn" appears to consist of two separate pieces—see n. to 70²³. The catenary structure is noticeable in some pairs of stanzas (1-2; 3-4)—see Kaegi, p. 24(34).

-The Metre is tristubh. The old Vedic tristubh is much more free than that of the classical Sanskrit; but its most important feature, the cadence, is the same—see p. 316, § 43.

For statistics, see Haskell, JAOS. xi.p.lxii = PAOS. May, 1881. For a discussion of its development, see Oldenberg, ZDMG. xxxvii.55f.

1. Pronounce vīriāṇi and (line 3) svariam, and see Whitney, 84b. —prā vocam, augmentless aorist (847 end), as improper subjunctive (563), with future mg (576).

thing thou wilt (= willest to) do for the pious man, of theé indeed that (is) real or unfailing '— i.e. 'Whatever blessing thou and see 8232. — prá abhinat, vbhid, 692.

- 3. çiçriyāṇám, 807. Indra's special attribute is his "beloved thunderbolt," of which the Epos fables much, ZDMG. xxxii. 296.
- 4. 'Like lowing kine, flowing suddenly to a sea, down came the waters.' The point of comparison is the noise. samudrám, perhaps 'to a gathering of water, so as to form one' not necessarily 'to the ocean.'
- 5a. Pronounce avrnīta, 1354 (important): in the AV., ii.5.7, the augment is written. Cf. 70¹⁷N. —sómam: see Kaegi, p. 72(99), and notes 288-94; also Roth, ZDMG. xxxv. 680f and xxxviii.134f.
- 5^b. Pronounce trikadrukeşu a-, and observe that final -u is almost never to be pronounced as -v when so written. —Cf. RV. ii.15.1, which seems to consist of reminiscences of the beg. of this hymn.
- 6. 'The Rewarder took the missile bolt—smote him, the first-born of dragons.'— ahan (593) has for direct object the enclitic enam, 'him,' or, more correctly, 'im,' since the English pronoun him loses its h when enclitic. The enam is then explained by an appositive. So 797.
- 7-8. U.f. yád indra áhan ··, át māyínām áminās prá utá ··. 'When, O Indra, thou smotest ··, and (utá) thereupon broughtest to nought the wiles of the wily, thereupon bringing forth the sun, the day, the dawn,—then soothly foundest thou no enemy.'
- -The first at continues the force of yadd through pada b, as the acct (595a) of aminas ($\sqrt{2}$ mi) shows. -Position of pra, 1081². Order in pada c is unnatural: expect 'dawn, sun, (full) day.' -Pronounce sariam. dyam, 361d: vocab., under div. -uṣasam and kilā: see references in vocab.; the proiongations are in the even syllables of the cadence. -vivitse, 798a.
 - 9. Pronounce viansam: cf. Whitney, 84a.
- 10. kúliçenā, 248b. —ví-vṛkṇā, nom. pl. neut., common in Veda, for -āni: √vraçc. —çay-a-te, transition-form (749) from root-class, for çe-te (629).
- 11. ấ hí juhv-é (alternative form for juhuv-e), √hū+ã: acct, 595d: subject, Vritra.
- 12a. 'He (Vritra) did not escape (vtr, 899a) the shock of his (Indra's) weapons.'

- 12^b. 'The (cloud-) rifts he crushed together, who had Indra as his conqueror.' That is, the monster, in his retreat or his fall, crushed into a shapeless mass his already riven cloud-castles. This is forced. If we dared emend the $\sharp\pi$. λ . rujānās to rujānās (840³), we might render, 'Broken, he was (then) completely crushed' (998b).
- -indra-çatru: later books, e.g. ÇBr. i.6. 310, lay great stress on the correct accentuation of this word; indra-çatrú, 'conqueror of I.,' would be blasphemy. See Indische Studien, iv.368; or Roth, Nirukta, p. xix.
- 13^b. U.f. å asya · · jaghāna, see Vhan+ā. Subject here is Indra.
- 14. See vṛṣan. —See vbhū, desid. açayat, 629. —Pronounce vṛ-astas, Whitney, 84a.
- 15. 'Over him, lying so, crushed like (ná) a reed, the waters go, flowing for mankind (lit. the waters of man, flowing, do go).' So Pischel, ZDMG. xxxv.717-24. P. thinks that the original text was mánorúhānāáti, i.e. mános (cf. 7319) úhānās (vvah4, pres. mid. ppl., 6193) áti, and that the author of the pada text divided it wrongly, máno rúhānās, changing, of course, n to n.
- If mánas, like áñjas, could pass for an instr., we might render '(With a will, i.e.)
 Lustily rising, the waters overwhelm him.'
 amuyâ, 'so,' w. a sneer: cf. átra, 894n.
- 16. pari-átisthat, acct, 595a, 1083. tásām limits only the first member of the foll. cpd.
- 17. Note relation of acct and mg in vrtráputrā. U.f. índras asyās: observe the accordance between the written and spoken form here—see 1354, and cf. 705a_N.—vádhar, 'weapon' of V's mother, not of Indra.
- 18. Translated, 777b. dánus, fem.,= V's mother. — çaye, see 613: similarly duhe, 80¹⁶, īçe, 92⁸.
- 19-20. 'The waters overwhelm V's hidden body, that was put down in the midst of ... In long darkness lay (å_açayat, 629) he who was vanquished by Indra.'
- -Here the narration comes to an end. Stanzas 1-10 form a brief but complete epic. The same general theme is treated again by stanzas 11-14. Rik 15 seems to be a later! addition

21. dasápatnīs: after I's victory, the waters are called (x.43.8) aryá-patnis, 'having the Aryans as masters,' or 'having a gracious (god) as master.' - paníneva gavas (see g6): the rain-giving clouds are often called 'cows.' These are pent up by a malicious demon (Pani), and their milk, the refreshing water of heaven, is withheld from man.

Curiously, the natural basis of this simple myth is so far forgotten that the myth itself is here made to furnish a simile for the very phenomenon from which it is the poetic outgrowth.

Notes to Page 71.

- 1. 'The orifice of the waters which was closed up - he who slew (805, 209) Vritra opened that.' Waters conceived as if pent up in some mighty cask.
- 2-3. 'A horse's tail becamest thou then, O Indra, when on his lance he (V.) impaled thee. - As god alone, thou conqueredst · · · . Thou didst let loose the seven streams (but see saptá) to flow' (lit. 'for flowing,' vsr, 970b, 982).
- -In fighting with demons, Indra sometimes gets roughly handled for a while (so iv.18.9). Such I conceive to be the situation here. Pāda a is the crux. Possibly a magic transformation is intended. pales I. on his lance; but straightway the god becomes a great sweeping trail of vapor. Very differently Bergaigne, Rel. Ved. iii. 61-62.
- -It seems unavoidable to join devá ékas with c: cf. i.33.4 and i.165.6 = 73^{14} . - Second ájayas begins a new clause: hence acct, 5932.

streams as an affrighted hawk the skies thou didst cross?' This may refer to a time when - after all the aerial commotion (i.e. Indra's battling) - the rain refused to fall and the uncleared heaven signified Indra's retreat. Reminiscences of this legend occur at TS. ii.5.3: cf. MBh. v.9.27 = 255 and 10.43 = 334,f. - jaghnúsas, 805.

SELECTION XXXIII. RV. i.50. To Sūrya, the Sun-god. - Respecting Sūrya, see Kaegi, p. 54(76). The hymn is rubricated at 1063. It is still used in India, at the Midday Service. It was made the text of a linguisticmythological comment of 225 pages by W. Sonne, KZ. vol's xii.-xv.!

In the textus receptus, the hymn has 13 stanzas. I have given only 1-9. In the first strophe, stanzas 1-3, the god is mentioned only in the 3d person. In the second strophe, he is addressed in the 2d person; and so also in the third strophe, excepting - as often - the final stanza (9).

- -That stanzas 10-13 are later additions is proved by their contents and language and their (differing) metre. This proof is confirmed by the fact that the corresponding passage of the AV., xiii.2.16-24, has only stanzas 1-9; and also by the fact that only 1-9 are prescribed to be used in the ritual see Bezzenberger's Beiträge, viii.198, ZDMG. xxxviii.475, JAOS. xi.p.cxcii = PAOS. May, 1884, and AGS. ii.3.13 and comment, and cf. 8710x. Moreover, the addenda are at the end of an anuvāka — cf. JA. 8.viii. 207=15.
- 10. See u2. -jātávedasam, see vocab.: although 'All-possessor' was very likely the primary mg (Whitney, AJP. iii.409), yet the mg 'All-knower' also seems to have been associated with the word early and commonly (Eggeling, SBE. xxvi.p.xxxi). For analogous cases, see hótr and yamá in vocab.

In the present - very unusual - application of the epithet to Sūrya, δς πάντ' έφορα και πάντ' έπακούει,

11. 'That every man may see the sun, lit. for every one for beholding the sun.' See dfg and read 969, 970a, and 982. - vícvāya, 5242.

12-13. tyé belongs logically with nák-satrā[ni], but is conformed in gender to tāyávas. - With this simile, cf. RV. x. 189.2. - See yathā4. - yanti, no acct, 595a². - súrāya, 'for the sun, i.e. to make way for the sun.' Render:

Off — like as robbers — slink away Yon constellations with their beams Before the all-beholding Sun.

14. ádrçram (834b end) · · ví (1081²) — passively, 998b: equiv. to vy-adṛkṣata, 882. — jánān, 209.

18-19. See pratyáñc3. - Pronounce devánaām, 1133. - pratyáññ, 210. - Pronounce súar (Whitney, 84b): reg. written súvar in TS. - súar drçé, 'a light to behold' (cf. θαῦμα ἰδέσθαι), here equiv. to 'a glorious light.'

20 and 72¹. yénā, 509 end. -pāvaka: see ref's in vocab.; this word the redactors persist in miswriting; it is a typical mistake belonging to the second stage of the tradition—see p. 354, § 79, and KZ. xxvi.60.

-jánāň ánu: if joined w. ppl., render 'stirring or busy among (so RV. viii.9.2b) his fellows;' if w. págyasi (acct, 595a), 'over the peoples thou dost look on busy man.' -Pronounce tuám.

-Strophe 2, stanzas 4, 5, 6. Some join 6 with 7—possible, but very hard. It is better to regard 6 as a parenthesis in which the poet turns suddenly from Sūrya to Varuṇa. The latter is the personified vault of heaven, and the sun is naturally his eye (RV. vii.63.1), and to mark the deeds of restless man is his proper function [Kaegi, p.65(90)]. Yénā then refers to súar, and cákṣasā is in explanatory apposition w. yénā. We may render 4, 5, 6 thus:

Thou goest onward, all-beheld. Thou makest light, god Sürla. Thou shinest to the end of heaven. Turning thy face upon the folk Of gods, of men, of all the world, Thou risest up, thou glorlous light—With which, as eye, bright Varuna, Over the peoples thou dost look, To mark the deeds of restless man.

4-5. J. Burgess, Arch. Survey of Western India, Kāthiāwād and Kacch, p. 216, mentions temple-images of Sūrya with a halo (cf. çociskeça) and borne by 'seven steeds,' see plate lxv.2. Cf. Kaegi, N. 205.

Selection XXXIV. RV. i.97. To Agni. See Preface, p. v, note 4.—Rubricated at 1063. Recurs AV. iv.33. The refrain or burden, pāda c, of each stanza, is a mere repetition of pāda a of stanza 1; it has no necessary connection with the rest of each stanza, although it happens to fadge well enough in the first and in the last three.

Grassmann and Ludwig make apa · · cogucat of the refrain a 3d s. subjunctive (1008²)—'let him drive · · '; but this would require an accentless cogucat.

We may therefore disregard the refrains entirely and group the remaining eight couplets [each consisting of two octosyllabic verses], two and two, into four stanzas of four verses each.

8-11. See \(\square\)quare and \(\square\)quare \(\frac{1}{4}\); \(\frac{1}{4}\)pure and \(\square\)quare conjugation (1012)—no nasal, 444. —U.f. \(\square\)quare ufficiency conjugation, 813. —Three instrumentals (line 10), 365.1.

STANZA 1 [made by grouping stanzas 1,2] may be rendered:

Driving away with flames our sin, Agui, bring welfare with thy light. [Driving away with flames our sin.] With prayer for fertile fields, for wealth, And prayer for good, we sacrifice—[Driving away with flames our sin.]

12. With prá, supply jáyeta in a and jáyeran in b. —bhánd-iṣṭhas (superl. to bhad-rá, Vbhand, 467), 'brightest, luckiest'?—asmákāsas, 330 end.

14. prá yát sc. jáveran (760.3), 'that | they may be propagated = that offspring may go forth from them' - and so in the other clauses of lines 12 and 14.

-In lines 12 and 14, the yad's seem to introduce final clauses expressing the purpose of yajāmahe, line 10. In line 16. Whitney makes yád = 'as, just as.' For all the yád-clauses, Grassmann seeks principal clauses in the refrains.

STANZAS 3,4 and 5,6. '[We sacrifice,] in order that (offspring may go) forth from the luckiest of them (?); and forth from our patrons; that offspring may go forth from thy patrons, Agni, - forth from us (who are) thine.

'As forth from mighty Agni on all sides go the rays. For thou, O (God) who hast a face on all sides, on all sides dost protect.'

20. 'Bring us across the (stream of) foes as with a boat.' See naú and v2pr+ati.

SELECTION XXXV. RV. i.165. Indra and the Maruts. - Respecting the Maruts and their relations to Indra, see Kaegi, p. 39 (56), and Bergaigne, La religion védique, ii. 369f, 392, and esp. the interesting article of Oldenberg, Akhyāna-hymnen im RV., ZDMG. xxxix.60-65. The hymn is the first of a collection of eight Marut hymns (165-172), concerning whose arrangement, see Oldenberg, l.c. We have here the beginnings of poetry in epic-dramatic form -cf. Preface, p. iv, note 7. This hymn has been admirably translated by Roth, ZDMG. xxiv.302 (or Siebenzig Lieder, p. 84); English version by Whitney, North American Review, 1871, cxiii.182 = OLSt. i.144. It is also translated with comments by Max Müller, RV. Sanhita, translated, etc., i.162f. I give the "story of the hymn" abridged from Roth-Whitney.

the Maruts are going and how they are to be detained at the sacrifice. The implicit answer is 'With praise.' This then is accomplished in the dialogue, where, although greatest glory is given to Indra, the god in turn lauds them generously.

STANZAS 3-4. The Maruts ask why Indra is going alone, without them, his usual companions. - Indra answers evasively that he is on the way to a sacrificial feast.

STANZAS 5-6. The Maruts are eager to go with him. - He retorts that they were not so eager when he went, alone, and slew the dragon.

STANZAS 7-8. The Maruts remind him that they have helped him do great things and can be most useful allies in the future. - Not inclined to share his glory with them, he boasts again of his exploits.

STANZAS 9-12. The Maruts acknowledge his might this time without reserve and to his satisfaction. - Indra, vaunting himself once more (10), thanks them for their homage (11), and declares that the sight of them delights his heart (12).

STANZAS 13-15. The poet (Agastya) turns to the Maruts directly and asks them to recognize and reward his skill and devotion.

-The accent-rules for the oblique cases of the pron. root a (cf. 502) are simple and entirely natural. Thus:

- A. If the form is used adjectively, distinguishing 'this' thing from others, it is accented (749; 928, 7918). B. So also if used as an emphatic substantive pron. (8315, 1034 asmát).
- C. But if used as an unemphatic substantive pron., 'his, her, him, their, them,' it is accentless (83¹⁶, 70³, 71¹⁴, 74³, 88¹⁷, and very often). In this case the form cannot stand at beg. of pāda.
- 10. The å has pregnant mg (cf. \(\sqrt{e}\)nd +\(\pi\)and +apa) and goes w. both duvasyåt (562²) and cakré. —Both verbs depend (595) on yåd. —Pronounce māaniásya. —'When the singer entices (you) hither as to an oblation, (and when) the wisdom of Māna's son has brought us hither —.'
- -Roth would expunge one d and read duvasyá, instr. (365.1) of duvasyá (11496), 'with an honoring, i.e. reverently.' The passage is a desperate one.
- 11. U.f. á u sú vartta (irreg., 839) · · áccha. See sú 1 and vvrt+ā. imá = imáni. —arcat, 743.
- 12. va stómo, u.f. vas stómas, 173a: similar combinations at 79¹⁷, vípras st-; 81¹⁷, ájayas sp-; 87¹; 92⁸; 74⁴; per contra, 47¹¹. —iyám here refers back see 1 idám. —See gír.
- 13. U.f. á isá yāsīsta (9143) · vidyáma (v2vid, a pres. opt. of the root-class) isá-m.—Pronounce vayáām? 'Hither with refreshment come ye. For ourselves as a strengthening may we get refreshment (and) a well-watered dwelling-place.'
- -It would seem that the poet Agastya was the son of Māna, of the race of Mandāra. This entire final stanza recurs at the end of hymns 166-168. The awkward repetition of 'refreshment' leads Roth to suspect that the original pāda d of the stanza is lost and replaced by the one in the text, which is a stock-verse recurring at the very end of twenty subsequent hymns.

SELECTION XXXVI. RV. iii. 62. To Savitar. — Respecting Savitar, see Kaegi, p. 56(79). The last "hymn" (62) of the third mandala is really a collection of six short hymns to various divinities. Each hymn contains three stanzas, and the triad to Savitar is the fourth of the six.

The first stanza of this triad is the most celebrated stanza of the RV., and is called the sāvitrī (sc. fk), or the gāyatrī $\kappa \alpha \tau' \xi \xi_0 \chi \acute{\eta} \nu$. It has held, and holds even now, the most important place in the worship of the Hindus. In the Proceedings of the International Congress of Orientalists (1881) at Berlin, ii.2.160–187, and in Religious Thought and Life in India, p. 399f, Monier-Williams discusses the place of the RV. in the religious services of the Hindus of the present day.

He says that the worshipper must first bathe, then apply ashes to his limbs and forehead, bind his hair, sip pure water, and inhale pure air and retain it in his lungs for a while. The worshipper then utters RV. iii.62.10, which — like the Lord's Prayer among Christians and like the Fātihah among Muhammadans—takes precedence of all other forms of supplication. [Cf. Manu ii.101f.] Later on, the gāyatrī is muttered 108 times with the help of a rosary of Tulsī wood.

-Much has been fabled about the stanza and its virtues. See, for example, Manu ii.77-83. And it recurs frequently in the other Vedas; thus, four times in the VS., twice in the TS., and once in the SV. "No good and sufficient explanation of the peculiar sanctity attaching to this verse has ever been given." - Whitney, reprinted in Kaegi, N.222. The stanza has naturally been imitated a great deal: so even in the RV. (v.82) we find verses run in the same mould. And it is interesting to find the RV. stanzas iii.62.10 (gāyatrī) and v.82.1 repeated in juxtaposition in the Tāittirīya āranyaka at i.11.2 and i.11.3. After the pattern of the gāyatrī have been made a good many wooden and halting stanzas: so TA. x.1.5,6.

SELECTION XXXVII. RV. iv. 42. Indra contests the supremacy of Varuna.—Respecting Varuna, see Hillebrandt, Varuna und Mitra, 1877, and Kaegi, p. 61(85), notes 241f. This hymn has ten stanzas; but the last three have nothing to do with the rest.

-Varuna is by far the noblest and loftiest character of the Vedic pantheon, and seems to have held the most prominent position in the earliest period. Later—as appears if we consider the RV. as a whole—the warlike and national god Indra is plainly most prominent. The gradual supersession of Varuna by Indra¹ is reflected in a considerable number of passages—among them, this hymn—and especially in x.124.

—In stanzas 1-4 of this hymn, Varuna claims the godhead, supreme and from the beginning, in virtue of his creating and sustaining the world. —Indra responds (5-6) by asserting his irresistible might as god of battle. —And the hymn ends with an acknowledgment on the part of the poet (st. 7) of the claims of Indra. This is essentially the interpretation of most of the authorities.²

-But the general drift of the hymn has been — no less than its details — the subject of very much discussion and difference of opinion. Bergaigne 3 considers stanzas 1-6 as a monologue of Indra. Barth 4 rejects the theory of the decadence of the Varuna-cultus and regards RV. x.124 as one of the few survivals of a class of myths in which Varuna is not the god of a smiling and gracious heaven, but a malignant divinity. Finally, Whitney urges that this is not a question of supremacy and subordination, but rather of comparative prominence. — This selection, I confess, is out of place in a Reader.

7-8. 'I made the dropping rains to stream. I uphold heaven in the place of eternal order. And in accordance with eternal order, the sacred son of Aditi (i.e. Varuna) spread out the threefold world.' The sending of rain is a function proper to Varuna—cf. Hillebrandt, p. 85-86. In the assignment of this stanza the authorities differ and waver most.

Nirukta, v.3). - Pronounce rāstrám. - See vicvávu in vocab. -Grassmann would emend yáthā naḥ to yátānāh, root-aor, ppl. of vyat, 'joining themselves together, united:' 'mine (are) all immortals together.' SELECTION XXXIX. RV. v. 24. To Agni. — The stanzas are dvipada, i.e. consist of two pādas, one of 8 and one of 11 or 12 syllables. Most nearly like this hymn in metre is RV. x.172; but the stanzas of RV. viii.12,13,15, and 18 are essentially similar (8+8+12).

—It is very worthy of note that three of the stanzas occur in immediate juxtaposition in the other samhitās, and as follows: in the order 1, 2, 4, at SV. ii.457,458,459, at VS. xv. 48°,48°,48°, and at VS. iii.25°,25°,26° (here stanza 3 follows as 26°); and in the order 1, 4, 2 at TS. i.5.6 and iv.4.4. Finally, to judge from the legend given below, and from the prescriptions of the ritual — of the sacrifice to the Manes, for example — this hymn would appear to be a trea or triad of riks (see Sāyaṇa to RV. v.24 and to PB. xiii.12.5).

-Tradition (Kātyāyana) ascribes this hymn and also x.57-60 to the Gāupāyana brothers, Bandhu, Subandhu, Çrutabandhu, and Viprabandhu. In his comments to x. 57-60, Sāyaṇa gives the pertinent legendary material taken from ancient sources; and this, with other matter, is given in translation, in JRAS. NS.ii.441f, by Max Müller, who discusses the legend at length.

-The Brhaddevatā says that king Asamāti sent away the four brothers who were his priests, and put in their stead two Brahman wizards. These took shape as doves, bewitched Subandhu, and plucked out his soul. In order to cause the spirit to return, the three remaining brothers recited x.58 etc., and 'praised Agni with the dvipada hymn as it is among the Atris,' i.e. in the book of the family of Atri, the fifth. Then Agni gave back to Subandhu his soul, and the brothers, delighted, sang the rest of x.60 (7-12) and laid their hands (cf. 912x.) on the one thus resuscitated.

SELECTION XL. RV. v. 40. Indra and Atri, and the sun eclipsed by the demon.—
For a critical analysis of the hymn, see Grassmann, Translation, i.190 and esp. 540. Stanzas 6, 7, 8, here given, are quite independent of the rest.

-Ludwig identifies the eclipse here referred to with that of April 20, 1001 B.C., O.S.—see Sitzungsberichte d. böhmischen Gesell. d. Wiss., 1885. His argument is reported by Whitney, JAOS. xiii.p.lxif=PAOS. Oct. 1885, and by Bergaigne, JA. 8.vi.372f. No fair interpretation of the text furnishes data precise enough for an exact identification.

-Stanzas 6 and 8 are spoken by the poet; stanza 7, by the Sun. The Sun's foe, Súarbhānu (accent!), is 'he who has the sun's beams,' and is later identified with Rāhu, the demon who 'swallows,' 'devours,' or 'seizes' (V2gr, Vgras—cf. 23¹N., Vgrah) the sun or moon, and so causes eclipses. The Sun is in terror, and implores Atri for help: and the latter rescues the orb by prayer and praise.

-Atri's mythical exploit is often mentioned in the Brāhmaṇas (see texts in Ludwig, v.508; and cf. SBE. xxvi.346). Thus the PB., at vi.6.8,11, narrates how, at the request of the gods, Atri restored to brightness the sun, which the demon had smitten with darkness. On this account, it continues, a present of gold, the symbol of brightness, is made to a descendant of Atri at a sacrifice now-a-days.

-Interesting are the Greek ideas about the πάγκοινον τέρας that bringeth to nought men's strength and wisdom — see Pindar's Fragments [74], Bergk⁴ i.411f and notes.

14. ava_áhan (593), cf. 707 and note.

15. gūlhám, √guh. -ápa-vrata, 'having action off, i.e. baffling,' or, as in vocab. 'The sun, hidden ', Atri found (avindat) by the fourth prayer.'

-Ludwig reasons thus: The other priests had a regular liturgy of three prayers for combating eclipses. On this occasion, these proved ineffectual. Atri knew a fourth, and that brought the sun out. Hence the totality must have been very long. This matter is discussed in full by Whitney, l.c., p. lxv(=xxi). Bergaigne, l.c., p. 383(=14), says it is a mere case of the use of a sacred number plus one—cf. Rel. védique, ii.128.

16. mám (pronounce máam) imám, 'me here, i.e. in this plight;' Sāyaṇa, īdrg-avastham. —U.f. atre: the Sun is addressing Atri. —irasyá, 365.1. —bhiyás-ā, '(me, who am thine) with fear, i.e. who am thine, (but) sore in terror:' or, the word may be taken actively, as the accent (1151.2c) and Sāyaṇa's gloss ('fear-inspiring') suggest, and joined with the subject — 'with a frightening.' —má·ní gārīt: √2gṛ; aor., 899a; combination w. má, 579.

17. Pronounce tuám mitró asi · · tāt mehávatam. —mitró, 'friend.' —U.f. tāt (see tá2 end) mā ihá avatam: 'so do ye two help me here, (thou) and V.' With the peculiar omission of tvám compare that of ahám, 7910x. So RV. viii.1.6.

SELECTION XLI. RV. vii. 55. Magic spells to produce sleep.—Ascribed to Vasistha. The hymn consists of three parts differing in metre and disconnected in contents. For a general discussion of it, see Colebrooke's Essays ²i.27, and Whitney's note, ibid. p. 112; JAOS. iii.336f; and esp. Aufrecht, ISt. iv.337f. Sāyaṇa reports the native traditions about the hymn. Thus:

Vasistha came by night to the house of Varuna—to sleep, say some; to steal grain, say others. He was assailed by the watchdog, which bayed at him, and fain would have bitten him; but he laid the hound asleep with the stanza beginning,

When, silv'ry Sārameya, thou, and the one following.—Later superstition uses the hymn to quiet uncanny creatures at night: see Rigvidhāna, ii.26.

-First Part. The hymn next preceding this in the RV., vii.54, is to Vāstoṣpati, the Lar familiaris, and consists of three stanzas. The first part of our hymn, vii.55.1, is a mere addition to these three stanzas, and belongs accordingly to vii.54 rather than to vii.55, as appears from the fact that the four stanzas are all recited together in the ceremony of moving into a new house. See QGS. iii.4, AGS. ii.9.9, and esp. PGS. iii.4.7—all in SBE. xxix.; and cf. MS. i.5.13.

The joining of this stanza to hymn 55 is a simple misdivision of which the NT. shows many parallel instances. Thus Mark ix.1 belongs to viii.; chap. ix. should begin with the Transfiguration. A converse misdivision is at AV. vi.63-64 as compared with RV. x.191.

-Second Part. Stanzas 2-4 are part of a scene at the entrance to Yama's kingdom or the regions of the blessed. Yama's two watch-dogs (cf. 83¹⁷N. and introd.) guard the pathway and keep out the wicked. Here one of them barks at some who would come in; and these, in turn, protest that they are godly men, and so have a right to enter in peace. See Kaegi, N.274; Zimmer, p. 421.

-Third Part. Stanzas 5-8 are the incantations by which the entire household is put to sleep. According to Aufrecht, l.c. (or Zimmer, p. 308), it is while a maid is receiving the visit of her lover; but that seems a little doubtful because we have plurals nas and sám hanmas and vayám, lines 12, 13, 15, and not duals.

With stanzas 5, 6, 7, 8 correspond respectively stanzas 6, 5, 1, 3 of AV. iv.5, and the variants are interesting. The third part has nothing to do with the second; but the diaskcuasts have juxtaposed them because in both a dog is put to sleep.

2-3. vāstospate, see above: for s, see 187. -víçvā for víçvāni, 330. -edhi, 636. -Yāska, Nirukta x.17, says yad yad rūpam kāmayate devatā, tat tad devatā bhavati. Sāyaṇa quotes him from memory thus, yad yad rūpam kāmayante, tat tad devā viçanti.

4-5. See dánt. -vìva, accent!, 128 end: cf. 8315. U.f. ví iva bhrājante ṛṣṭáyas. -See úpa2. -See vbhas and 678. -'They (the teeth) shine like spears, in the jaws of the devouring one.' -ní ṣú (188a) svapa is a refrain.

The dog here addressed is partly white and partly reddish brown, as Sāyaṇa rightly observes; and this is in accord with the adj. cabála, 'brinded,' applied to both of them at 8317.

6-7. punaḥsara: for the mg, see vocab. and cf. Hamlet i.4.51-53. -kím, 'why?'

8. For the genitives, see 297c end, and cf. 73¹⁵. —See \(\forall \text{Idr} \) and 1010 and 1011. —Probably the swine as a domestic animal is meant here. In that case, this stanza is a later addition to 2 and 3, and is based on a conception of the situation such as the native tradition presents.

10. Quoted at 5932, which see.

11. In the Veda, 'complete' is sárva and 'all or every' is víçva. Later, víçva dies out and sárva does double duty. In the Veda, the use of sárva in the proper mg of víçva (as here, 77¹⁷, 85²⁹, 91¹) marks the passage as late. See vocab. under sárva.

-ayam etc., 'these here people on all sides, all the people around here.'

16-17. nárīs, nom. pl., 365.2. - Pāda c may be read as catalectic.

SELECTION XLII. RV. vii. 56. To the Maruts or gods of the storm-winds. - Compare selection xxxv. (734) and introduction. The hymn consists of two parts, of which the first, here given, ends with stanza 10. Number 11 is only the fragment of a stanza. The rest (12-25) is in an entirely different metre.

-The metre of the ten stanzas is without doubt a secondary one, being simply a form of the tristubh syncopated at the sixth place, i.e. with the prevailingly light sixth syllable left out (cf. JAOS, xi.p.lxiii = PAOS, May, 1881). Thus,

Each of the parts into which the verse is broken is a 'syllable-pentad' or aksarapankti; and each is an independent pada, since verbs at the beginning of the even pentads are accented, e.g., at vii.34.3b, 3d, 4b, 6b. A pentad-couplet is sometimes joined with a simply broken but unsyncopated tristubh verse to form a half-stanza or stanza (e.g. i.67.8cd; 70.4cd, 10cd; x.46.1gh); and this fact seems to suggest the derivative character of the pentads.

-The gayatri-stanza has 3 verses of 8 syllables; and the strophe has 3 stanzas, a multiple of the number of verses. pentad-stanza has 4 or 8 verses of 5 syllables; and the hymn has 5, 10, or 20 stanzas, a multiple of the number of syllables. The hymns RV. i.65-70 have each 5 stanzas of 8 pentasyllabic verses; while vii.34A and vii.56A and ix.109 probably consisted origi- mortal protégé (cf. vii.56.23, i.64.13).

-Stanza 5 may be spoken by maid or by | nally each of 10 or 20 stanzas of 4 pentasyllabic verses. Compare Bollensen, ZDMG. xxii.572f.

At 10418 (see note), the pávana used to clean or winnow the ashes from the bones of a cremated corpse may perhaps be a 'wing-like winnowing-fan;' and observe that German Schwinge means 'winnowing-fan' and 'wing.' -abhi · · vapanta, 'bestrew, cover.' -asprdhran, see Vsprdh and 834b end.

- -Ludwig interprets, 'They vie in overwhelming each other with their blasts' (pávana has also the mg 'wind'). This view accords with the character of the playful, boisterous, and roaring gods, but not with the conception of them as eagles; and it would seem to require the reading abhi · · vápantah.

Grassmann emends. - 'I invoke the dear names of you the mighty, in order that they (among you) who desire (our praise) may be gladdened, O Maruts.'

SELECTION XLIII. RV. vii. 86. To Varuna. - Respecting Varuna, see vocab. and cf. p. 367. The hymn is rendered by GKR., p. 6. The comments of Ludwig, vol.iv.p.88, deserve careful attention.

- -The poet is ill and deems his sickness a punishment sent by Varuna for some sin. He acknowledges the wisdom of the majestic god; but ventures to approach him with confession of sin and prayer for forgiveness and renewed self-consecration to the divine service. Compare Kaegi, p. 66(92).

SELECTION XLIV. RV. vii. 88. To Varuna.—Translated by GKR., p. 10. Like enough stanza 7 is a later addition.

-The poet, forsaken by Varuna on account of some sin, calls sadly to mind the by-gone days when he walked so happily with the god, and also the scene when, gliding over the waters with the god of the waters, he received the sacred appointment of Rishi. He asks forgiveness and restoration to divine favor. See Kaegi, p. 68(94).

Selection XLV. RV. vii. 89. To Varuna. — The hymn has been often translated:

so by Müller, ASL, p. 540; Muir, v.67; GKR. (masc.) against the gods, if with folly thy p. 12; Hillebrandt, Varuna und Mitra, p. 64; Bergaigne, Religion Védique, iii.155.

-It is the prayer of a man who is varunagrhīta, 'seized by Varuna, i.e. afflicted with the dropsy.' V. is god of the waters (cf. 710 N., 7915 N.), and the disease is supposed to come from him and as a punishment for sin: see AV. iv.16.7; also AB. vii.15, atha ha āiksvākam varuno jagrāha; tasva ha_udaram jajne; and CB. ii.5.22. Hillebrandt, p. 63-65, 54. Ludwig's interpretation is quite different: see his notes, vol. iv. p. 91.

1-2. mó, see u2. -sú, 188a. -grhám, Kaegi, note 329; cf. also the AS, poem in Thorpe's Analecta, p. 142, entitled The Grave, and familiar through Longfellow's translation. - gamam, 833, 835: with ma, 579. -mrlá, 248c, vmrd.

3-4. 'When I go, tottering along, like a bag, puffed up, -have mercy.' - \sphur implies quick or vigorous motion - see vocab. Here the iva is not a particle of comparison; it modifies the mg of the root to that of a languid shake or wabble such as is characteristic of a dropsical person. So pra-hasan, 'laughing out;' pra-hasann iva, 'smiling.'

-dhmātás, 'puffed up' (with wind) or 'bloated' (with serum), has reference not only to the bag, but also to the understood ahám. Grassmann, 'schnaufend,' i.e. 'blown, winded, puffing.' Otherwise Bergaigne, iii. 155x. - adrivas (454b), always of Indra, except here, and at ix.53.1 (of Soma)! On this stanza the exegetes differ much.

5-6. krátvas, gen., 342. - dīnátā, 365.1. -jagamā, 7915 N.

7-8. Line 7 has trochaic cadences. 'On (me, thy) singer, (though) standing (803) in the midst of water, thirst has got hold' (avidat, v2vid2). See Horace's description, Odes, ii.2, Crescit indulgens, etc.

9-10. See yád5. - See 2idám. jána: for loc., 303a. - dhármā, 425d. yuyopimá, 793e. - See Vris: caus. aorist, 1046, 859; augmentless form as subjunctive w. má, 579.

- 'If we mortals do anything (kim ca, neut.) here (that proves to be) an offense his plume in the heaven = touching the steadfast decrees we have thwarted, do not (cause us to take harm from this sin =) chastise us for this sin.'

-METRE, jagatī. This stanza is not a part of the hymn. The stanza is an oftrecurring one - Schroeder, MS. iv. p. 290. Its repetition daily for a year is prescribed at Manu xi.253: cf. Rigvidhāna, ii.29.1. The interesting stanza at RV, iv.54.3 = TS. iv.1.111 is probably a reminiscence of this. The AV., at vi.51.3, modernizes ácittī (340) vád to ácittvā céd.

SELECTION XLVI. RV. viii. 14. To Indra. - Indra and Namuci. - For the introduction to the Namuci-myth, see 8116 N. For the later forms of the myth, see selection lxxii., p. 976n.

-Division into five strophes of three stanzas is possible. In respect of contents, the first three stanzas and the last three make very good strophes. Stanzas 1, 2, and 3 form a stroplie at SV. ii.1184-6; but 5, 7, and 8 form another at 989-91. The hymn is unsymmetrically divided into three at AV. xx.27-29.

11-12. íçīya: form, 616; acct, 628; mode, 581b, note the second example. Similar idea at 8723f, and often in RV., e.g. viii.19.25,26. -vásvas, gen. 342.

16-17. NAMUCI-MYTH. 'With foam of the waters, Nanuci's head, O Indra, thou didst cause to fly asunder, when thou wast conquering all thy foes.' It appears to me likely that the natural phenomenon to which this refers is a water-spout ('Trombe') on an inland lake. This fear-inspiring thing may well be personified as a demon. The verb úd avartayas means 'didst cause to move out or fly asunder with a gyratory or centrifugal motion.' This accords well with the facts of the not infrequent phenomenon as seen by unscientific eyes. See Major Sherwill on Bengal waterspouts, JASB. 1860, xxix.366f, with good pictures, and Th. Reye, Die Wirbelstürme², p. 17f. The line MBh. v.10.37 = 328 seems to favor my view. The whole passage is a reminiscence of the Namuci-myth.

The head of the column is twisted and made to burst asunder and scatter itself (phénena, instr. of accompaniment, lit. 'with foam,' i.e.) in abundant foamy masses. Then, with the dispersion of the column, often atha is used after an impv. implying a con-comes (Sherwill, 370; Reye, 32) a heavy rain. All this is set forth as gracious Indra's prowess. - U.f. ájayas spŕdhas, see 7412N.

Bergaigne's discussion, ii.346-7, may be compared and also RV. v.30.7,8 and vi.20.6.

-The form of the myth as it appears in the Brāhmanas originates in a misconception of the case-relation of phénena (see above), which they take as an instr. of means, i.e. as the weapon by means of which Indra slew Namuci. So Sayana: phenena vajrībhūtena; see vocab., \sic3. Cf. notes to selection lxxii., p. 97.

SELECTION XLVII. RV. viii. 85. 7, 8, 9. Indra and the Maruts, and Vrtra. - For the corresponding Brahmana legend, see selection lxvii., p. 944. Cf. also Muir, v.93.

-All three stanzas are addressed to Indra; and might be put in the mouth of the Maruts, were it not for havisa, st. 8d. If, on the other hand, they are put in the mouth of the worshippers, then upa a imas cannot serve as verb to marútas nor govern tvā of st. 8a. I therefore suspect that either pada b or d of stanza 8 is a foreign intrusion. If it is the former, the original may have contained anu yanti or the like.

1. See vis. -víçve devás, other than the Maruts; for here, presumably, they are not included among the friends who desert Indra; and the Brahmana says expressly that they do not desert. But at RV. viii.7.31 the contrary is affirmed; cf. p. 364. √2hā (661, 657): its object is tvā.

SELECTION XLVIII. RV. viii.91. To Agni. - Stanzas 7,8,9 and 13,14,15 form strophes in the SV. The rest of the hymn (16-22), after rejection of one stanza, forms two strophes: 16,17,18 may be safely grouped together; and of the remaining four, I have followed Grassmann in rejecting st. 21, on account of the contents and language. Moreover, the tense of idhe is proper to a final stanza - cf. Delbrück, Tempuslehre, p. 106-7. On the other hand, it must be admitted that stanzas 20 and 21 occur in juxtaposition at MS. ii.7.7, TS. iv.1.101, VS. xi.73-4, and elsewhere.

- 7-8. Four explanations of dhití. 1. Grassmann, for diti, q.v.; instances of the confusion of dhi and di are adduced. 2. Ludwig, 'durch die künstlichen mittel des ghrta,' see 2dhití. 3. Sāyana takes it from vdhā, 'put,' and renders by nidhānāis, 'with the deposits' of ghee. 4. Best taken as 'draughts,' vdhā, 'drink,' see 1 dhītí and reference, and cf. RV. x.115.1.

SELECTION XLIX. RV. x.9.1-3. To the Waters. - Rubricated at 10521, funeral service. This hymn in the RV. has nine stanzas; but the first three form a stroplie which recurs very often in other texts: so TS., thrice; MS. and VS., twice; K., SV., AV., and TA.

-The Grhya-sütras prescribe the use of this strophe, with the pouring or sprinkling of water, at the wedding-ceremony, CGS. i.14, in the choosing of a house-site, AGS. ii.8.12, in the consecration of a new dwelling, ib. ii.9.8, and in certain funeral rites, ib. iv.6. $14 = 105^{21}$. Indeed, so frequent is their use that they have a name and are called the "three apohisthiya stanzas" - cf. 1215a. -Perhaps, 'There is no ax (with me) de- The modern Hindus use them daily in their Selection L. RV. x.14.1-2, and 7-12. Funeral-hymn.—Rubricated at $102^{1.21}$, 103^{12} —see p. 402. See Whitney's essay, On the Vedic doctrine of a future life, OLSt.i. 46-63 (= Bibliotheca Sacra, 1859, xvi.404f); also Zimmer, p. 408-22. On immortality as an Indo-European belief, see Kaegi, N. 265 and literature there cited, and N. 283a. On the funeral rites, see introduction to selection lxxv. and literature there cited. Translations of this hymn: Muir, v.292; GKR. p. 146; and Whitney, l.c., p. 58.

-Although mandala x. on the whole is late, it yet contains antique passages; and among these the following seems to belong: so Roth. The hymn contains 16 stanzas, of which 13-16 are palpably later additions. Only 7-12 are actually prescribed by Āçvalāyana for use in the funeral service; but 1 and 2, although not rubricated, are given for their intrinsic interest.

-The passage as it stands consists of an introductory summons to the assembled mourners (1-2); and of an address to the departed (7-8); then, after bidding the mourners disperse (stanza 9), the spokesman implores the favor of the kindly-disposed hounds of Yama, for the departed (11) and for the company (12).

-In stanza 10, on the other hand, these hounds are conceived as ill-disposed creatures standing guard to keep the departed out of bliss—see p. 370; and possibly the stanza which originally belonged with 9 has been displaced by the one in our text. Or is stanza 9 itself the intruder? See Bezzenberger's Beiträge, viii.202.

-The stanzas of RV. x.14 recur elsewhere, with more or less interesting variants. Those in the Reader correspond respectively with AV. xviii.1.49,50,54; 3.58; 1.55; 2.11, 12,13. Compare also MS. iv.14.16; ii.7.11; TA. vi.1.1; 4.2; 6.1; 3.1,2. For st. 9, see note thereto, 83¹⁵.

7-8. parā īyivānsam, vi, 803, 783b². — 'Along after (ánu) i.e. unto the mighty heights,' i.e. to the other world. —anupaspaçānām, vl paç, 807. —vāivasvatām, cf. 85¹⁸N. So also in the Avesta, Yima is V's son. — 'Gatherer of the peoples;' precisely so in the Avesta, Vd. ii.21, Yima makes a gathering (hañjamanem) of mortals. Cf. 'Alõns ἀγησίλαος, Preller, Gr. Myth. i.660, Kaegi, N. 276. —Note that Yama is a king, and not, like Varuna (line 12), a god.

-Yama is the first mortal (see yamá in vocab.); the first to reach the other world (AV. xviii.3.13); the leader of the endless train of them that follow him; and so the king of the blessed (see yamá-rājan). The comparison of Yama with the Avestan Yima is very interesting: see Roth, die Sage von Dschemschid, ZDMG. iv.417-431; and SBE. iv.p.lxxv., and p.10-21.

- We read at AV. xviii.4.7, tīrthāís taranti praváto mahír íti, By passes pass they to the mighty heights, 'tis said.

This is most interesting as a reminiscence of the same traditional material of which RV. x.14.1 is another outgrowth.

9-10. 'Yamus nobis perfugium primus repperit:' gātúm, q.v., pregnantly, like τόπον at John xiv.2. — eṣá gávyūtis, i.e. the gātú, just mentioned. — ápa-bhartavá u: the pada-pāṭha reads -tavāí u (133); form of inf., 972²; use of inf., 982c. — For the thought, see an Avestan parallel, Kaegi, κ. 270. — yátrā, 248a. — parā_īyús, 783b².

-jajñānās, vjan2, 807, '(their) children,' sc. parā vanti.

11-12. prá ihi, 617, see vocab. —The AV. modernizes the forms a little, reading rájānāu, mádantāu. —paçyāsi, subjunctive (760.2), w. future mg, as in Homer. —Note the appropriate connection of this stanza with st. 2 and observe the identical pādas.

13-14. The derivation and mg of iṣṭā-pūrtá are discussed most carefully by Windisch, Festgruss an Böhtlingk, 1888, p. 115f.

hitvấya, ½hā, 993b. — púnar ástam á_ihi, 'Go back home,' as if the soul had come from heaven. Illustrative material in Kaegi, N. 275. Cf. zu Gott heimkehren = 'die.'

Pāda d is metrically defective: te tanúā, 'with thy (new) body,' is suggested, Kaegi, N. 278, which see; te tanúā suvárcasā is suggested by Sāyaṇa's comment. Cf. the Christian conceptions at Philippians iii.21, I. Cor. xy.40f.

15-16. U.f. ápa_ita, ví_ita, ví ca sarpata_átas. asmāí (accent, 74°n.) etám ... áhobhis adbhís · ví-aktam (\anj). - vîta, acct, 128 end; so vîva, 775n. - akran, 831. - Second asmāi, accentless, cf. 74°n.

-Pāda c. '(A place of rest) adorned with days, with waters, with nights:' i.e. where the delights of earth are found again, the change of day and night, cooling waters, etc. Note the especial mention of waters in the enumeration of the joys of heaven at RV. ix.113.7f, and in the description of the 'Assembly-hall' of Yama Vāivasvata, MBh. ii.8.7 = 317. And observe how very frequent are the allusions to the waters in the mentions of Paradise in the Koran, e.g. xlvii. 10-20; lxxvi.5; xiii.35.

-This pāda at best is bad. It is avoided by the noteworthy, but not very helpful, variants of the Yajurveda. VS. xii.45 reads > ápeta vita ví ca sarpatáto yé átra sthá purāṇā yé ca nútanāḥ. ádād yamó avasānam pṛthivyā ákrann imám pitáro lokám asmāi, and substantially so read MS., TS., TB. The scholiast to VS. takes this as an address to 'Yama's men.' It is a little forced to refer it to the mourners.

17-18. In this stanza, these dogs, the off-spring of Saramā, are ill-disposed (dur-vidátra) — see introduction. — Pronounce çuánāu. — 'Four-eyed:' later this is taken to mean 'with two eyes and two round spots above the eyes.' Note the Parsi custom of having such a dog (cf. Vd. viii.16) view the corpse before exposure — Monier-Williams, Mod. India, 173-6, ed. 1878.

-Respecting Saramā, see Kaegi, N. 149. Respecting the dogs, see ib., N. 274, 274a, and Muir, v.294. Homer mentions the 'dog of Hades,' Od. xi.623f, Il. viii.368. Not till later is he called 'many-headed' and Κέρβεροs. With Κέρβεροs is identified çabála—see Benfey, Göttingische Nachrichten, 1877, p. 8f = Vedica, i.149f. In Avestan belief (Vd. xiii.9), dogs guard the entrance of the other world. These beliefs are compared, SBE. iv.p.lxxxvii.

19. In this stanza and the following, the dogs are kindly creatures.

1. Pronounce tábhiam. - Verbs. 668.

2-3. U.f. asutípāu: admits several explanations—see vocab., and Bergaigne, iii. 72. —These messengers go about to conduct to the other world those who have received the summons of Yama. —súryāya, attraction, explained at 982a. —U.f. púnar dātām (839) ásum adyá_ihá: 'may the two give back again—,' for the mourners have been in the shadow of death.

SELECTION LI. RV.x.16. Funeral-hymn, used at the ceremony of cremation. — Rubricated are only stanzas 1-9 and 14—see p. 402. The rubricated stanzas are translated by Max Müller, ZDMG. ix.p.viiif, and the whole hymn by Zimmer, p. 402. Most of the stanzas are addressed to Agni; but 3, 6, and 7, to the dead man. The hymn has two parts, clearly sundered by the metre.

In the first, Agni is to burn the corpse, not rudely, but gently, just enough to "make it done." To this end, a sacrificial goat (st. 4) is provided, and (st. 7) the corpse is covered with a caul, in order that Agni may spend his fury on these things and spare the corpse from too severe a burning. The original purpose of this custom may have been different. The Greeks had the custom—see Il. xxiii.165f, Od. xxiv.65f.

Moreover, Agni is to carry up the departed to the Fathers or Manes, who have their seat in the 'fore-heaven' (AV. xviii.2.48, Whitney, OLSt. i.59). Perhaps st. 8-10 did not belong originally to the first part.

-The second part consists of heterogeneous material, vagrant stanzas, having some connection, verbal or logical, real or apparent, with the words or ideas of the first.

-Every stanza of the hymn, save st. 11, appears in the AV., and some elsewhere also, and with interesting variants.

4-5. enam: the minds of all present are so exclusively upon the departed, that the first reference to him may be made by an accentless and gestureless word without unclearness. Similarly asya. —ví dahas, abhí çocas, 743, 579. The AV. reads çūçucas (869). —cikṣipas, 869, 579. —kṛṇávas, 700. —U.f. átha im enam. —prá hiṇutāt: n, 192c; form, 570, 704, cf. 915; mg, 571.

6-7. Pāda d = atha devān vaçam nesyati, 'he shall bring the gods into his control' (cf. RV. x.84.3), i.e. 'win their favor.'

8-9. Note the combination of tristubh and jagati pādas (11, 12, 12, 11). Pronounce diám. —See dhárman. —apás, óṣadhīṣu, cf. x.58.7. —See hitá2. —çarīrāis, Sāyaṇa, 'çarīra_avayavāis' ('members').

-For this stanza there is abundant and interesting illustrative material. See Muir, v.298,319; Kaegi, N. 275,275a. Man is a microcosm. Each element in him comes from some element in nature with which it has most affinity and thereto it returns (cf. Eurip. Suppl. 532f). These affinities are pointed out with much detail in CB. xiv. 6.213.

yatra_asya puruṣasya mṛtasya_ agnim vāg apyeti, vātam prāṇaç, cakṣur ādityam, manaç candram, diçaḥ crotram, pṛthivīm carīram, ākāçam ātmā, oṣadhīr lomāni, vanaspatīn keçā, apsu lohitam ca retaç ca nidhiyate, — kva_ayam tadā puruṣo bhavati? 'In case the dead man's ··· soul goes to the ether, the hair of his body to the plants, the hair of his head to the trees, and his blood and seminal fluid in the waters are put, what then becomes of this spirit?'

Cf. the formula recited at the slaughter of the sacrificial victim, AB. ii.6.13, sūryam cakşur gamayatāt, vātam prāṇam anvavasrjatāt, antarikṣam asum, diçah çrotram, pṛthivim carīram.

Dissolution into the five elements (see bhūta) is later the stereotyped phrase for death (see pañcatva). Cf. the four elements $\hat{\epsilon}\xi$ $\hat{\delta}\nu$ $\sigma\nu\mu\pi\dot{\epsilon}\pi\eta\gamma\epsilon$ $\tau\delta$ $\sigma\hat{\omega}\mu$ a, $\gamma\hat{\eta}s$ $\pi\nu\rho\delta s$ őδατόs $\tau\epsilon$ καὶ ἀέροs, Plato, Timaeus, p. 82.

-The affinity of the eye and the sun is universally palpable: cf., for example, Plato, Repub. 508, ἡλιοειδέστατόν γε οἶμαι [τὸ ὅμμα] τῶν περὶ τὰς αἰσθήσεις ὀργάνων. Not less so is that of breath and wind. Bones and earth, Timaeus, 73E; blood and plants, ib.80E. Cf. Darmesteter, SBE. iv.187, who cites Iliad vii.99 and Empedocles, 378-82 (ed. Müllach).

10-11. 'The goat [laid limb by limb on the corpse on the fire] (is thy) portion. Burn it with burning; that let thy heat burn; that, thy flame.'—But deal gently with the dead man.—Note the emphatic position of the last two tám's.—The goat is the animal most fit for sacrifice—see the legend, AB. ii.8. Later; ajá is taken as a-já, the 'unborn' part: so Sāyaṇa; cf. Ludwig, iii.p.435-6; Pañcatantra, book iii., fable 2; MBh. xii.338.3 (= 12820) fol.255b; ISt. i.428.

-Agni has 'dreadful forms' (ghorás tanúas) as well as 'kindly' ones. -See loká 2b and sukŕt. The Hindus regard u as a particle; but it may be part of a word uloká, which combination appears in old texts, and even at the head of a pāda, where u (as enclitic) could not stand.

12-13. See \hu+\bar{a}. 'Who, offered to thee, goes freely.' The corpse may have been conceived—now as yielding easily to the devourer, and now as struggling against it. Otherwise Zimmer, p. 403x.

vanaspatin keçā, apsu lohitam ca retaç ca nidhiyate, — kva_ayam tadā puruso bhavati? 'In case the dead man's · · · soul goes to the ether, the hair of his body to the (doubtless later) ideas of heaven would appear from the material gathered by Muir. v.307-9, esp. from AV. iv.34.2 and xiv.2.32, Add AB, i.22.14, and cf. Zimmer, 413.

-After all, may not césas here mean simply 'those whom we leave behind us.' viz. at the grave (see 6317,18), in order to continue the journey of life without them, i.e. 'those who have gone before?' These the dead man is now to rejoin.

-Pāda d: cf. 8314 and N.

14-15. krsnáh cakunás is one of illomen. - utá vā: function of utá like that of átha in átha va, see atha6. - U.f. agnís tád (8015 N.) vicva_át. - See brāhmaná: no necessary allusion to caste here. -If unclean creatures have done any harm to the corpse, Agni is to remove from it the traces of such imperfections, i.e. 'make it whole.' The 'soma' seems to stand for some purifying sacrifice at which it was used in conjunction with the fire.

16-17. Rubricated at 10220. Cutting out the caul of the anustárani, the celebrant covers the head and face of the dead man with it, for the purpose mentioned in the introduction. - góbhis, see gó2: the caul, suet, and fat are meant. - vyā+pari: see the orig. mg of vya. -U.f. sám prá ūrnusva (712): acct, 1083-84. - See néd and references. - vhrs, intens., 1012. vi-dhaksyán, vdah, fut. ppl. -Subjunctive form, 1068, cf. 736.

-Lit., then, 'Wind a protection (várma) from the fire (abl.) around thyself by means of the caul etc., i.e. envelop thyself with the caul as a protection from the fire [addressed to the dead man, although the celebrant actually does the enveloping]; cover thyself completely with suet and fat: in order that the bold one (Agni), very impatient, may not with his grip firmly clasp thee around, to devour thee.'

18-19. ví jihvaras, vhvr., 8581, in form and use like ciksipas, line 4. - Pāda c: metre faulty; read esá u or esá íd? - See √mad, caus. 2. - This stanza seems to have pertinence only as an accompaniment of the | to be meaningless rubbish.

course was by no means excluded from the ritual (1031). The hymn proper may have ended with st. 7.

20. For n, 192c. - yamárājñas, cf. 838n.

1. U.f. ihá_evá_ayám ítaras, jätávedās, 'Right here is this other one, Jatavedas,' i.e. agní havya-váhana, as distinguished from agní kravva-váhana. The cremation has now proceeded far enough; so the corpseconsuming Agni is dismissed to the Manes, and the oblation-bearing Agni summoned.

2-3. This continues the thought of st. 9. In the presence of the Manes (who don't mind the heat), the dismissed Agni may burn as fiercely as he likes and drive his flames in or to the highest place. - 'Him I remove or dismiss (v1 hr3) to the pitryajñá:' this Ludwig, v.p.423, takes to be a sacrifice to the gods conducted by the Manes; otherwise vocab. -invāt: form, 736; quasiroot inv.

4-5. The diaskenasts have put this stanza here on account of the mention of kravyaváhana and the Manes. -yákṣat, 8933, vyaj. - U.f. prá íd u ··. - 'Both to the gods and to the Manes' - so Sayana, Mahidhara (to VS. xix.65), and vocabulary under a2. But Ludwig (see transl.) says 'to the gods also, from the Manes.'

6-7. See \vac. -tva, the sacred fire. -ní dhīmahi (cf. 7414) and sám idhīmahi, 837. - 'Gladly would we set thee down, gladly make burn brightly' (sám gives to idh this intensive force). The optative does not imply that they do not suit the action to the word. - 'Glad, bring thou hither the glad Fathers, to the oblation (982a) to eat' (Vad, 970b).

8-9. 'Him cool thou off (see \1 va+nis), i.e. let him whom thou wast consuming cool off again.' And let the burning-place be so cool and moist that even water-plants (pādas cd) may grow there.

10-11. Rubricated at 10411. - The four words in line 10 may be either voc's s.f. or loc's s.m.n.: accent, indecisive; the i before k (1222d) favors the first view. gamas (active!), 8483. - The stanza seems Selection LII. RV. x.17.1-2 and 3-6. Funeral-hymn. — Under x.17 are included divers elements: A. the fragmentary legend of the Children of the Sun (1-2); B. the funeral-hymn proper (3-6); C. a prayer to Sarasvatī (7-9); D. sundry fragments.

-A. Stanzas 1-2. This famous fragment begins a new anuvaka and has nothing to do with the funeral-hymns. It smacks of antiquity; and it has become the nucleus of later legends. Of these, the oldest is that reported by Yāska, in the Nirukta, xii.10; and the next is that of Caunaka, in the Brhaddevatā, vi.33 to vii.2. C's version is quoted in full by Sayana, in his comment to RV. vii.72.2, in order to prove that the Rishi Vasistha was a relative (first cousin) of the Acvins. Both legends are given in the original and in translation by Muir, v.227-9; also by Kuhn, KZ. i.440-43; L. Myriantheus, Die Açvins oder arischen Dioskuren, Munich, 1876, p. 1-4; and in substance by Max Müller, Lectures, 2d series, no. xi., p. 501 Am. ed. of 1865 = 528 Eng. ed. of 1873. Late form of legend, VP., b'k iii., chap. 2.

-The verbal exegesis of the two stanzas is beset with uncertainties: see Roth, in the essay cited above (838n.), ZDMG. iv.425; Grassmann, Transl., ii.p.466; Bergaigne, ii. 318; and the very suggestive discussions by Ludwig, iii.332-5 and v.391-2.

-As for their interpretation from the mythological point of view, see Roth, l.c. p.425 (reported by Müller, l.c., p.503 = 530); ISt. xiv.392f; Kuhn, l.c., p.443f; Müller, l.c., p.528 = 556, and 502 = 529; Grassmann, l.c.; Bergaigne, ii.506-7; and esp. Ludwig, iii. 332-5 and v.391-2.

12. U.f. iti_idám. — Note that pariuhyámānā is from the same root as vahatúm. — Tvaṣṭar, a god, gives the wedding; yet it takes place on the earth!

13. yamásya mātá: proleptically; prop., she who afterwards became Y's mother.

14. krtví, 993b. -adadus, 668.

15. U.f. utá açvínāu abharat yád tád ásīt | ájahāt (2hā 1) u. —dvá mith-, 'two pairs' (Yama, Yamī; Açvins): Yāska, 'the two (Y. and Y.) that formed a pair' ('she forsook').

"Tvastar's making a wedding for his daughter"—At this news all the worid here comes together. Yama's mother, during her wedding, The wife of mighty Vivasvant, vanished.

They hid away the immortal from mortals.

Making a like one, they gave her to Vivasvant.

And she bare the two Açvins when that happened, And left two pairs behind her—Saranyū.

- "A braw story, but unco short." The actual text is tantalizingly fragmentary. We can hardly hope to recover the legend with any satisfactory completeness. Yāska gives it thus:

Tvaṣṭar's daughter, Saraṇyū, bare twins (Yama and Yamī) to Vivasvant. She foisted upon him another female of the same appearance (sávarṇām), and, taking on the form of a mare, fled forth. Vivasvant took on the form of a horse, followed her, and coupled with her. From that were born the two Açvins or 'Horse-men.' Of the sávarṇā was born Manu.

That is—Vivasvant, the Sun, and Saranyū, were the parents of Yama and Yamī (83°, 92¹¹), the first human pair. But there was a coexisting belief in Manu (see manu in vocab., and cf. SBE. xxv.p.lvii) as the father of mankind. Are not RV. x.17.1-2 the fragment of a legend which attempted to reconcile the two beliefs by fabling a sávarnā who should give birth to Manu, so that, according to either myth, the human race are the Children of the Sun?

-Yāska tells more than does the text; yet we are not sure that he (to say nothing of Çāunaka) knew anything more than is contained in the two stanzas. We are therefore not obliged to interpret the stanzas so as to fadge with Yāska's story.

A possible rendering of line 14 is (see Ludwig): 'They disclosed $(\dot{\alpha}\pi\kappa\kappa d\lambda\nu\psi\alpha\nu)$ the immortal to mortals (dat.). Endowing her with visible form, they gave her to V.' Lit. 'making her (to be) sá-varṇa,' i.e. (see 2 sa and 1304c) 'making her (to be) having an accompanying varṇa or making her (to be) endowed with external appearance.'

B. Stanzas 3-6. The funeral-hymn proper, addressed esp. to Pūṣan ψυχοπομπόs, and rubricated at 10318. Respecting Pūṣan, see Kaegi, p. 55(77), and notes 209-12. As sun-god and heavenly herdsman, he knoweth well the ways through the heaven and the spaces, and so is a safe guide to conduct the souls of the dead to the regions of the blessed. Translation by Muir, v.173.

16-17. U.f. tvā (= the dead man) itás oyāvayatu prá (goes with cyāv-, 10812) vidván. -pári dadat, 6503.

18-19. pári pāsati, \2pā, 893². — See prápatha. — U.f. yátra ásate (628). — See sukŕt.

20. U.f. imás áçãs. - See √1 vid+anu. - sárvās, see 77¹¹N. - nesat, √nī, 893³

2-3. ajanista, 902, Vjan2; as we say, 'he was "born and bred" there, i.e. is at home.'

- 'On the distant-way of ways · · ·: on the distant-way of heaven; etc.' No matter how long or where the journey is, P. is at home on it.

- 'Unto the two most wonted places — both to and from, he goes, knowing the way.' The construction is faulty — and yet plain enough: abhí sadhásthe harmonizes with á carati; but párā carati requires sadhásthe-bhyas (abl.).

Selection LIII. RV. x.18. Funeral-hymn.—Rubricated, all except the last stanza, in the later ritual—see p. 402. The simple ceremonies originally used are inferrible from the hymn. Very different are those of the later ritual. For illustrations of these differences, see Roth, ZDMG. viii. 471f. The hymn is given, with the concordants and variants of the AV., TB., TA., and VS., and the scholia of Sāyaṇa and Mahīdhara to the concordant passages, by Windisch, in his Zwölf Hymnen (see p. xviii, no. 10 of my Brief List).

-The hymn has been translated by Roth, ZDMG. viii.467f (reprinted by Zimmer, 404f); Max Müller, ZDMG. ix., appendix; H. H. Wilson, JRAS. xvi.201 f = Works, ii.270f; Whitney, Bibliotheca Sacra, xvi.409 = OLSt. i.46f; GKR. p. 150; Ludwig, no. 943; Grassmann, no. 844; Rājendralāla Mitra, Indo-Aryans, ii.122f; and most of it by Kaegi, 76(105)f. Roth, Whitney, GKR., and Kaegi give "the action" of the hymn.

-The hymn is remarkable for its intrinsic interest and beauty. And it has acquired great notoriety in connection with the discussions of Suttee (= satī) or Hindu widowburning. Properly, satī (see sant 4) means a 'virtuous wife.' Improperly, but more commonly, it has come to be used of the rite of self-immolation which she practised. See the admirable article Suttee in Col. H. Yule's Anglo-Indian Glossary, with some forty pertinent extracts.

-That Suttee is an ancient custom appears from many references to it in classical authors. See Cicero, Tusc. disp. v.27.78; Propertius, iv.12.15; Plutarch, Moralia, p.499; Nicholas of Damascus, fr. 143 = frag. hist. graec., ed. Müller, iii.463; Strabo, xv.30, p. 699; 62, p. 714; and esp. the story in Diodorus Siculus, xix.33-34, according to which the rite is authenticated for 316 B.C. These passages are given in full by J. Grimm, in his masterly essay, Ueber das Verbrennen der Leichen, Abh. der Berliner Akad., 1849, p. 261f = Kleinere Schriften, ii.298f. And Peter von Bohlen, in Las alte Indien (1830), i.293-302, cites a great deal of interesting pertinent literature.

- -The custom was abolished by the British during the administration of Lord William Bentinck, in 1829. The story of the abolition is well told by H. H. Wilson, in his continuation of James Mill's History of British India, vol.iii.(=ix.),185-192. For descriptions, statistics, etc., see Parliamentary Doc's, 1821.xviii.; 1823.xvii.; 1824.xxiii.; 1825.xxiv.; and esp. the Calcutta Review, 1867, vol. xlvi. p.221-261. Other descriptions in Quarterly Review, lxxxix.257f; Shib Chunder Bose, The Hindoos as they are, chap. xxi.; Das Ausland, for 1857, p. 1057f.
- -From Müller's Essay on Comparative Mythology, Chips, ii.34f, or Selected Essays, vol. i. (ed. of 1881), p. 333f, it would appear that the seventh stanza of our hymn had played a great rôle in Hindu history. At any rate, this idea is current, and seems traceable to the Essay. Here it is stated that the stanza was purposely falsified by an unscrupulous priesthood, and that a garbled version of it, reading agnéh for ágre, was directly responsible for the sacrifice of thousands of innocent lives. That the author is in error on these points is argued with great detail by Fitzedward Hall, JRAS. ns.iii.183-192. He shows that the misreading can be traced to Raghunandana, ca. 1500 A.D., and no further; and that Suttee was deemed to be amply justified by warrants other than those of the Vedic samhita, which was by no means the ultimate appeal for the mediæval Hindu.

-In the literary discussions of Suttee, on the other hand, the stanza has indeed played a rôle. There is probably no other stanza in the Veda about which so much has been written. It was first cited, in mangled form and as sanction for Suttee, by Colebrooke, in 1794, On the duties of a faithful Hindu widow, Asiatick Researches, 1795, iv.209-219 = Essays, i.133-140.It was discussed by Wilson, in 1854, in his paper On the supposed Vaidik authority for Suttee, JRAS. xvi.201-14 = Works, ii. 270-92. In answer to this, Rājā Rādhākānta Deva, in 1858, endeavored to adduce good Vedic authority for the rite, JRAS. xvii.209-17 (reprinted in Wilson's Works, ii.293-305). The most exhaustive treatment of the various readings of the stanza is that by Hall, l.c. Finally must be mentioned the paper read by Rajendralala Mitra in 1870, On the funeral ceremonies etc., JASB. xxxix.1.241-264 (reprinted in his Introduction to the TA., p. 33-58, and with additions in his Indo-Aryans, ii.114-155); see esp. p. 257f (= 50f = 147f).

-The Rigveda gives no warrant for the Cāunaka, in the Brhad-devatā, custom. furnishes important positive evidence against it (see Chips, ii.37); and likewise Manu, v. $156-8 (= 64^{10} f, see n.)$. Cf. Kaegi, n.51.

-The hymn was originally used at a burial which was not preceded by cremation. The situation and action are as follows. The corpse lies on a raised place; and by it is the widow.

STANZAS 1-2. The spokesman adjures Death to remove, and to harm not the living (1); and pronounces for them absolution from impurity (2).

mony dwells with joy on the fact that, thanks to the efficacy of their prayers, they have not joined the company of the dead (3). Now, for the better safety of the survivors, and wishing them long life, he sets a stone near the grave as a symbolic boundary of the domain of Death, as a barrier, so that he may not pass to the space beyond or domain of the living.

STANZAS 5-6. The wish and prayer for long life is here continued.

STANZAS 7-8. The women are now summoned to make their appearance together, and, provided with ointments, 'to go up to the place,' i.e. of course, where the dead man and the widow are (7).

Here we must infer that they adorn the widow (as a sign that she is to re-enter the world of life), and that the dead man's brother (devf, 'levir') then takes her hand in token of the levirate marriage.

The priest then bids her leave her lifeless spouse, and makes solemn declaration of the new relation into which she has entered (8).

STANZA 9. The bow is now taken from the dead man's hand, in order that the power and glory of which the weapon was the symbol may remain with the survivors; and a closing benediction is said for them and for the departed.

STANZAS 10-13. "And now, with gentle action and tender words, the body is committed to the earth."

4-5. Vi+anu-parā. -te suás, cf. 5518N. - ítara, w. abl., like anya, 34. - devayánāt, 'going or leading to the gods,' sc. pathás, abl. - U.f. má · · rīriṣas (8010 N.), má utá. Note how utá follows the repeated portion of the second clause.

6-7. See padá3. - Discussions of vyup. Ludwig, v.514, Whitney, AJP. iii.402, Roth, Festgruss an Böhtlingk, 1888, p. 98-99. āíta, 620. - See v1 dhā7. - vpvā+ā.

6a. Either 'Clogging Death's foot [by a bundle of brush (kūdi) or a billet of wood, tied to the corpse's foot], as ye came;' or else, 'Effacing Death's foot-print' [by the same means]. I confess, I incline to the former view. But, whichever way we take STANZAS 3-4. The conductor of the cere- padám yop-, the simple symbolism amounts to the same thing. The clog is attached to the foot of the corpse, which represents Death, in order that Death may not get back or find his way back so easily to harm the living. See AV. v.19.12 (explained by Roth, l.c.) in connection with xii.2.29. Roth adduces the device of Hermes, in the Homeric Hymn to Hermes, 80-84.

8-9. U.f. ví mṛtāís (2832) ā_avavṛtran (/vṛt+vy-ā): Whitney takes the form as a 3d pl. (5504) impf. mid. of the redup. class, present-stem vavṛt, irreg. like cakṛ (expect vivṛt). —ābhūt, 'hath been,' 928. —Pāda c refers — not to "mirth in funeral," but rather — to a fresh start on a new stretch of life, in which, leaving the dead behind, they look for much joy.

10-11. Note radical connection of paridhim and dadhāmi. —U.f. mā_eṣām nú gāt áparas ('an other'). —'A hundred autumns, numerous, may they live.' Prayers like this are frequent. The love of long life is very clear in the Vedic texts as contrasted with those of the later period. We must not think of 'hundred' as just '99+1.' —See VI dhā+antar, and note carefully the development of the mg. 'May they hide Death by a mountain, i.e. put a mountain (symbolized by the rock or paridhí) betwixt themselves and Death.' See párvata 2 and 4.

There is much evidence that the age of a hundred years was deemed entirely normal. This appears from RV. i.89.9. Again, to a question about a funeral lustration, Pāraskara (PGS. iii.10.14,15) prescribes the use of a special answer "in case the departed was not yet a hundred years old." Weber, ISt. xvii.500. SBE. xxix. 356. The 'tenth decade of life' has a name, daçamī (see BR.). In the Jātaka (Fausböll, vol.ii.p.16), the Bodhisat says to his father, when the latter sneezes, O Gagga, live a hundred years, And twenty others added on. · · Live thou a hundred autumns yet.

See also Bhartrhari's fine stanza, āyur varṣaçataṁ nṛṇām etc., Vāirāgya-çataka, 50 Bohlen = 107 Telang. — Among Semitic peoples, the sacred age was 120 years; while the pious Egyptian prayed to Osiris that he might live to be 110. — Krall.

- -Very interesting are the classical stories of Hindu longevity. Sometimes, according to Onesikritos, they capped a hundred with thirty more Strabo, xv.34,p.701. The Uttara Kurus are said, MBh. vi.7.11 = 264, to live 1000 or 10,000 years, and to this fable is probably due the report of Megasthenes $\pi \epsilon \rho l \tau \hat{\omega} \nu \chi \iota \lambda \iota \epsilon \tau \hat{\omega} \nu$ 'Υπερβορέων in Strabo, xv.57,p.711 see McCrindle's Megasthenes, p.79n., or Lassen, IA. i².613.
- -Note that years are counted, now by winters, now by autumns, and now by rainy seasons (see hima and varsa in vocab.), and that these differences correspond in general with differences of habitat of the people. ISt. xvii.232, Zimmer, 371-2.

12-13. U.f. yáthā áhāni, yáthā ṛtávas (see 127²): pronounce yátháhāni · · | yáthartáva. —'As a following one deserts not the former one, i.e. as each season lacks not a successor.' —See evá1: contrast 18¹8₁¹9. —See √klp: 'so dispose their lives, i.e. make them move on in the same unbroken way.'

14-15. yáti sthá (188a), 'quot estis.'
-karati, true root-aor. subjunctive, 836¹.
-jīváse, 970c, 982. —'Attain ye to (longlife, áyus, i.e.) fulness of days, old age your portion making, one after another, in turn (yátamānās) all of you' (yáti sthá). Otherwise OLSt. i.53.

16-17. STANZA 7. See introduction, and Kaegi, N.328. — nárīs, classical náryas, 365.

2. — See viç+sam. — Pāda d: 'Let the wives ascend to the (raised) place (on which the corpse lies), to begin with' (ágre). — After which, they are to do their errand, see introduction to stanzas 7-8. It does not mean, 'Let them go (away from the bier) up to a sacrificial altar first, i.e. before others;' for this we should expect prathamás rather than ágre.

18-19. U.f. úd īrṣva (vīr) nāri · . - gatāsum etām úpa çeṣe, lit. 'With this one whose life is gone liest thou.' - U.f. ā_ihi. - 'To take the hand' is the essential pre-liminary of wedding—see 895N. - U.f. didhiṣós tāva idām. See 2idām. - pātyus (343b) janitvām means 'condition of being jāni of a pāti;' and the whole line 19 (see bhū+abhi-sam) means simply 'Thou hast entered into the state of being wife of a spouse (who was) a hand-grasper (and is) thy suitor now.'

-Hillebrandt, at ZDMG. xl.708f, shows plainly that this stanza, RV. x.18.8, belonged originally to the ritual of the human sacrifice. Weber describes the ceremony at ZDMG. xviii.269f = Indische Streifen, i.65f. The king's first queen was obliged to lie with the dead victim. The situation is evident from the connection in which RV. x. 18.8 occurs at AV. xviii.3.1-4. She is bidden to rise with our stanza, úd īrṣva nāri — see Qāākhāyana Qrāuta-sūtra, xvi.13.13.

In this light, the logical connection of pādas a b with pādas c d becomes clear. She is to forsake the corpse and "come hither" to the king.

Rise up, woman, to the world of the living. Fled is the soul of him with whom thou liest. Come hither.

Quitting the embrace of hateful Death, the queen rises and approaches him who had already once taken her hand in wedlock and now stands waiting for her as a suitor once more. Upon thus resuming her proper relation of wife again, she is greeted with the words:

To him who grasped thy hand, thy sultor now, As wife to husband art thou become related.

-As appears from AGS. iv.2.18 = 1027, this stanza was at an early date appropriated for the funeral-service, where — as an accompaniment of the levirate marriage — it fits very well (didhisú means also 'a second husband'). Regarding leviration, see Kaegi, N.51. Its existence in Vedic times is proved by RV. x.40.2. — Compare also Deuteronomy xxv.5-10.

20. U.f. dhánus hástāt ā-dádānas (668) mṛtásya | asmé (dat., 492²) kṣatrāya etc. '(I, the spokesman,) taking from the dead man's hand the bow, for us for power · i.e. that ours may be the power, glory, might'—. Here the construction breaks off short, but without a jot of unclearness. —Note that the bow is left in his hand till the very last. This was their noblest and chiefest weapon: cf. RV. vi.75; the stories of Arjuna's bow, Gāṇdīva; and Strabo, xv.66,p.717.

1. U.f. átra_evá tvám ('thou,' the departed—sc. jayes); ihá ··. See átra2. The adverbs are contrasted as in εὐδαιμονέστεροί εἰσιν οἱ ἐκεῖ τῶν ἐνθάδε, Plato, Ap. 41c. — U.f. víçvās, cf. 74½N. —abhímātīs, as adj., 'plotting against (us)'—cf. √man+abhi2.

2-3. Addressed to the departed. -The earth, 'a maid soft as wool to a pious man (dákṣiṇāvate) - she shall protect thee from destruction's lap.' - Pāda c has 12 syllables.

4-5. Vçvañc+ud: note mg of çvañc and its concinnity with the metaphor of yuvatí.
-má ní bādhathās (743): compare the formulae sit tibi terra levis! ne gravis esse velis! tu levis ossa tegas!

etc., cited by J. Grimm, l.c., p. 193=214. -asmāi and enam, cf. 84⁴N. -U.f. bhūme. -√1 vr+abhi, 712.

6-7. mít-as, nom. pl.: cf. 486b. — grhásas: cf. 80¹ and n., and Kaegi, n.329. — Pronounce santu átra. — The like beautiful conception of committal to a place of security pervades the Eng. word bury, the Old High Ger. bi-fēlan, and Goth. ga-filhan.

8-9. Pronounce tuát pári: see pári. — U.f. ni-dádhat. — See u and 1122a². — riṣam, 848³. — té 'trā, u.f. te | átra: te is accentless (135²) and so belongs of course to pāda c.

-Pāda b: 'And laying down this clod may I not get harm.' This seems to refer to the glebam in os inicere (a custom which still accompanies the "earth to earth, ashes to ashes, dust to dust" of Christian burial), and to betray the natural "uncanny feeling at having to do with a corpse." Cf. Kaegi, N.330.

-Pāda c. The 'pillar' or 'prop' may be a rude beam or tree, laid over the corpse so as to keep the earth from caving in on it: cf. AV. xviii.2.25,

"Let not the tree press hard on thee, Nor yet the earth, the great, divine."

Sometimes the tree was hollowed out as a coffin (AV. xviii.3.70): cf. the Germanic Todtenbaum of sacred oak—Weinhold, Altnordisches Leben, 497, 491.

10-11. U.f. áhani | íṣvās · · á dadhus.
'On a fitting day me, as the plume of an arrow, have they set.' —The stanza seems to express the poet's satisfaction at having made a good hymn at the right time and place and with as good skill as a skilful horseman has. Whitney renders,

They've set me in a fitting day, As one the plume sets on the shaft. I've caught and used the fitting word, As one a steed tames with the reln.

The stanza is fully discussed, JAOS. xi. p.cxci = PAOS. May, 1884. It is interesting as illustrating the varieties of cumulative evidence that may be brought to bear on the criticism of the Veda. Thus: 1. The stanza is at the end of the hymn and out of connection. 2. It is in a different kind of metre. 3. The metre is bad of its kind. 4. The form isvās is bad Vedic—for isos; and 5. praticīm is a late form for pratīcim. 6. The stanza is ignored by Āçvalāyana; and 7. by Sāyaṇa.

SELECTION LIV. RV. x.33.4-9. The aged priest to the young prince. — The hymn has nine stanzas. The first three have nothing to do with the rest. The rest (4-9) forms two trea's. This passage has more than common freshness, and also directness of connection with the life of Vedic time. The situation would seem to be somewhat as follows.

-The old priest stood well with the gods, so that the efficacy of his intercession with them was of unusually good repute. Accordingly, the foes of king Kuruçravana had once tried to win the Rishi over to their side and away from his master, Kuruçravana; but in vain. He had remained faithful to the royal family in whose service he long had been.

Now at last king Kuruçravana has passed away, leaving Upamaçravas as his son and heir. And in presence of the young prince, the priest tells with pride and pleasure of the old times, and speaks with regret of the loss of his departed patron.

-Ludwig, iii.182, has called attention to the genealogical series of the RV. These cover oftenest, of course, only three generations, since memory, unaided by records, does not easily go further back. But for preserving that amount of genealogical tradition there was frequent need (Weber, ISt. x.78-88, esp. 82): thus, at the offering to the Manes, the priest has to address by name the father, grandfather, and great-grandfather of the sacrificer; see QB. ii.4.216 or SBE. xii.365 or OLSt. i.60: similarly at the pravara; cf. ISt. ix.322-3 or x.78-9 or Müller, ASL. 386.

In the present instance, however, we have a series of five at least. Trasadasyu is a prince of the Pūru tribe, and of the line of Purukutsa (he is not necessarily the latter's son — RV. vii.19.3), and is often mentioned for his generosity and for the special favors shown him by the gods. The series is

Purukutsa
Trasadasyu
in itratithi
Kurugravana Upamagravas.

Compare Bergaigne, JA. 8.vi.373-4, and Kaegi, 80(110), and x.340. The Pūrus were one of several tribes that were ultimately fused together in the famous Kurus — Oldenberg, Buddha, 403 = 411.

12-13. āvṛṇi: augment, 585²; impf. mid. (725), 1st sing. 'I, the Rishi, preferred king K.' (to his enemies); i.e. I chose to keep him as my master, in order to go out to battle with him, etc. A choice was inevitable. It would appear that priests who sacrificed for many or for a village were despised (Yājñavalkya, i.161,163, Manu, iv. 205). The purohitas marched out with their kings to battle (AGS. iii.12), as did the μάντεις, e.g. to the battle of Plataea (Hdt. ix.33,37), and for similar motives— μεμισθωμένοι οὐκ ὀλίγου—κατὰ τὸ κέρδος.

14-15. tisrás, 482c. -stávāi (626, 617), 'I will praise,' sc. tám, meaning Kuruçravaṇa. -sah-, sc. yajñé. -K's horses (trīga) still come to fetch the priest in state to the sacrifice.

16-17. yásya: K. is still meant. - ūcúṣe, 803, vac. - 'Of whom, (namely) of U's father, the words (were) highly pleas ing to (me) the intercessor, as a lovely home.' [? The text is awkward and unclear.] Time was, when king K., to offset the overtures of his enemies, had to make very persuasive offers to the priest. No false delicacy restrains the latter now from alluding to these with satisfaction in the presence of his future patron. - The mention of K. as 'father of U.' is peculiar. Somewhat analogous is the Semitic fashion: cf. Abd-allah, 'Gott-schalk.'

18-19. ádhi goes w. ihi, √i, q.v. nápāt · · pitús te (8015 N.). - pitús limits vanditá as a possessive (not objective) genitive. The objective gen. would be devanam. -asmi: the present does not necessarily imply that K. is still alive.

20. vád ícīva, cf. 8011 n. "Had it depended on me, my maghavan K. should have But -." - But for utá, the vā would have to follow mártianaam - cf. atha6.

SELECTION LV. RV. x.40.10. "Weddingstanza." - Rubricated at 10012 and CGS. i. 15.2. Recurs with variants at AV. xiv.1.46. The ritual prescribes that it be recited, if, on the way from the wedding to the groom's home, the bride chance to weep. For such an occasion, its relevance lies solely in the fact that it contains the word 'weep.'

4-5. See v2mā or mī+vi: form made after the model of nayante. - anu didhiyus (AV. dīdhyus), 7863. - U.f. yé idám sameriré (AV. correctly, sam-īriré), 'who have come together here: ' īriré, perf. of primary conj. (not caus. - vocab. wrong) of vir. - Vsvaj+pari, 970a.

-The import of the very obscure (if not hopelessly corrupt) stanza is possibly this. The first half tells what happens at the burial of a wife. While the rest lament aloud, the men show their sorrow for the bereaved husband by pensive silence. The second half contains reflections on the joys -bhavati, 'is on hand.' -U.f. sa_ahutis.

of wedlock, whose appositeness is clear, if we assume that they are uttered in the tone of mournful regret. [But cf. ISt. v.200.]

- 'They weep for the living one (the widower). They cry aloud at the service. The men thought over the long reach (of his happy wedded life now past).

'A lovely thing for the fathers who have come together here, - a joy to husbands, are wives to embrace.'

SELECTION LVI. RV. x.52. The gods install Agni as oblation-bearer. - The motif is akin to that of the much superior hymn x.51, given by Böhtlingk (no. 30), and also by GKR. (no. 43), who add a translation of the Brāhmaṇa form of the legend of Agni's hiding (selection lxvi.). The hymn is in dramatic form.

STANZAS 1-2. Agni asks the gods for directions concerning his service at the sacrifice (1); and, with the help of the Acvins and with everything in readiness, he proposes to resume his work (2).

STANZA 3. Some gods raise doubts as to his fitness (padas ab). Others answer that he is ready whenever needed (pada c).

The poet accordingly announces Agni's installation, in narrative form (pāda d).

STANZA 4. Agni accepts the office (pādas ab); and the gods bid him set about his duties (cd).

STANZA 5. Agni promises due performance. STANZA 6. The poet adds a kind of envoi in narrative form.

6-7. vícve devās: see devá 2b; note accentual unity, 3144 (JAOS. xi.61). - çāstána: acct, 594a; form, 618. -manávāi: vman5; form, 713, 700. -yád seems superfluous. - See vsad+ni.

- 'Teach me (the way) in which, chosen here as hotr, I am to be minded (= what I am to have in view), when (sic) having taken my place. Declare to me (the way) in which your portion, the path by which your oblation, I am to bear unto you.'

8-9. U.f. áhar-ahar, 1260. - 'Every day, O Acvins, the office of adhvaryú (ádhv-) is yours.' - U.f. samit, nom. s. of samidh.

10-11. Explained under vá3. As Yama is king of the blessed Fathers (838x.), Yama's hotr must be competent to satisfy them at the monthly craddha (p. 402). - 'Has he (see kám2) grasped (\\2\tilde{u}h+api), i.e. does he know, (that) which the gods take (see vanj +sam4, and Böhtlingk's smaller dictionary, s.v.), i.e. does he know what they like?'-Is he equal to both sets of duties?

- In pāda c the objections are met. Agni is born anew every day for the agnihotra (ISt. x.328), at which the gods take their food; and anew every month, when the Manes take theirs.

12-13. Pronounce máam. - See v1 dha5. -\mluc+apa: 'hidden' in the waters - see - Classic, bahúni krcchráni: see Vcar3. -kalp- (1043.2), 'let him -.' Pāda d = RV, x.124.1b): The victims of the animal sacrifice were five, 'man, horse, ox, sheep, goat' (see AV. xi.2.9 or ISt. xiii. 292); and its later surrogate is called 'fivefold 'as containing the 'essence' of all these victims (CB. i.2.36 - see Eggeling's note). But it may be ill-judged to try to attach special significance to these numbers. 'Three' and 'seven' are of course sacred numbers.

14-15. á yaksi: see Vyaj+ā; form, s-aor. mid. 1st sing., 882. At first the gods were mortal (963f). - See yatha6. - Pronounce -U.f. átha bāhuór. - á dheyām, 8372. imás: átha · · jayāti, 'then (if I do), he shall win,' cf. 822 and N.

SELECTION LVII. RV. x.53.6 and 8. Burial and wedding-stanzas. - Rubricated as burial stanzas at 1059 and 10518. The eighth is also used (10011) as a wedding-stanza, in case the bride has to embark and disembark on her wedding-journey. See also AB. iii. 38. Interesting variants of the stanza and reminiscences of its traditional material at AV. xii.2.26,27,28a.

1. tanván (705), see \tan4. The metaphor is frequent. -rájasas appears to be abl. and to refer backwards as well as for- selves and the foe. They call out to each wards, i.e. to tanván as well as to ánv-ihi. -Note that raksa and Eng. keep coincide in having the mgs 'guard' and (as here) 'not quit.'

2. vayata, see V2vā. -See jógū and 352. - mánu, here as the typical originator of prayer, praise, and sacrifice - see vocab., and cf. CB. i.5.17, manur ha vā agre yajñena ije; tad anukrtya imāh prajā - Note again that janáyā and yajante. Eng. produce coincide in having the mgs 'generate' and (as here - cf. i.31.17, å vahā dāíviam jánam, and 828) 'fetch along or bring to view.'

-STANZA 6 is really a prayer to Agni and his flames to help in the work of devotion. As the immortal messenger (see Muir, v.201) between men and gods, he is to go from earth, traverse the atmosphere (see rajas in vocab.), and pursue his way to the gods through the súar. Here he is to keep to the paths (cf. TS. v.7.7) which are made by the prayers and oblations that go up to the gods, - the devayanas or 'god-paths,' as the AB. at iii.38 calls them, on which the gods descend to man. Pāda c, continuing the metaphor of a, is addressed to Agni's flames; and d, to Agni.

Stretching devotion's weft from gloom to light go on. Keep to the radiant pathways which our prayers have made. Without a blemish weave ye now the singers' work. Be Manu thou. Bring to our sight the heavenly race.

3-4. 'It (sc. nadi) flows stony,' the logical predicate being áçmanvatī — cf. βέουσι μεγάλοι, Hdt. ii.25; cum flueret lutulentus, Horace, Sat. i.4.11. Others, not so well, make acm- a proper name (die Stein-ach), or refer it to the stream from the pressstones, i.e. the Soma. - Note that vtr has special reference to water: thus, ava-tr, 'go down into the water' (4919); ut-tr, 'come up out of it;' pra-tr, 'advance in crossing it.' - átra, 'thére,' with a sneer: cf. amuyá, 70^{15} N. -yé ásann (6363) áçevās, 'qui infelices sint: ' not so well the vocab. - úttarema_abhi, see vtr+abhy-ud.

-Stanza 8. The situation is perhaps this. A band of men, hotly pursued by their enemies, are in the middle of a stream, which they hope soon to have put betwixt themother encouragingly the words of the stanza. The famous hymn RV. iii.33 involves a situation which is similar (Muir, i².338), and, indeed, familiar elsewhere (Hebrews xi.29; Hdt. viii.138).

The stream is stony. Hold ye well together. Your footing keep. On! make your crossing, comrades! There let us leave them in a mood unhappy, While we go out and on to happy conquests.

SELECTION LVIII. RV. x.85.36, 24-26, 32-33, 27, 43-47. The wedding-hymn.—The stanzas are here given in the order in which they are rubricated at 9819f—see p. 398. Their uses in the ritual are discussed by Haas in his treatise on the ancient wedding customs of India, ISt. v.267-412.

-The hymn is called the sūryā-sūkta or "The marriage of Soma and Sūryā," and has received at the hands of Dr. J. Ehni, ZDMG. xxxiii.166-176, a mythological interpretation, briefly summarized in AJP. i.211. The hymn has 47 stanzas, with an appendix given by Aufrecht, Rigveda² ii.682, and comprises somewhat heterogeneous matter (ISt. v.269). Most of the hymn occurs in AV. xiv.1 and 2, with many variants. Partial concordance:

-Besides the translations of Ludwig and of Grassmann, there is one of hymn and appendix by Weber, ISt. v.177-195. This is followed by one of AV. xiv. (pages 195-217) and of the other wedding-stanzas of the AV. (pages 218-266) — see also Ludwig, iii. p. 469-76. Most of the Reader-stanzas are translated, with explanations, by Zimmer, 311-313. See also Kaegi, 74(102), and notes 317-325.

STANZA 36. Said to the bride by the groom in the very act of taking her hand in token of wedlock.

STANZAS 24-26 and 32-33. Said just before the bride's departure for her new home. Stanzas 24 and 32 are said by a third person; 25, 26, and 33 may be put in the mouth of the groom. St. 33 may, as the Sūtra says, be spoken on the way, when people come out of their dwellings to gaze.

STANZA 27. Pādas a, b, and c are said to the bride, and d to the couple, on their arrival.

STANZAS 43-47. The groom first prays to Prajāpati on behalf of himself and his bride $(43 \ a \ b)$, and addresses the latter with good wishes and solemn benedictions $(43 \ c \ d, 44)$; prays to Indra that the bride may be fruitful (45); bids her hold her own with her new relatives (46); and, finally, beseeches the gods, on behalf of himself and his wife, that they two may dwell in unity (47).

5-6. grbhņāmi · hástam: this, the dextrarum iunctio, is the essential feature of the simplest wedding-ritual, see Haas, 277, 316; cf. hasta-grābhá (8619) and pāṇi-grāha (6410); the AV. modernizes, reading, grhņāmi. With the concordant stanza of the AV. are grouped several others (48, 49, 51) of like import. — 'With me as husband' (343b). — yáthā_ásas, 'ut sis.' — U.f. máhyam tvā_adus (829). —gárh-, 'for (our) being heads of a household, i.e. that we may establish a family.'

7-8. ábadhnāt, 730. — See rtá2. — See loká 2b and cf. sukrtá with sukrt. This phrase is equiv. in form to the older one (84¹¹), but refers here rather to the 'world of the pious' on earth.

I loose thee from Varuna's bond, With which kindly Savitar bound thee.— At the altar, in the company of the good, I put thee unharmed with thy husband.

-The first half-stanza is an allegorical, and the second a literal address to the bride. In the allegory, the bond of Varuṇa is night (Hillebrandt). Savitar is the 'Impeller,' not only of the rising, but also of the setting sun (RV. i.35.3a). He brings rest (ii.38.3,4) by sending night, whose gentle bond he lays (Muir, v.235-7) upon his daughter, Sūryā, 'The Sun,' till she is released for her bridal with Soma, 'The Moon' (masc.), a union which is the prototype (cf. Haas, 328) of human marriages.

From the more literal point of view, the bond of Varuna, as the upholder of the established order of things, is (not nightstill less sickness — but) the tie by which a maid is bound to her father till a man come to loose and take her. — See the discussions of Haas, 319-20, 277-8, and of Hillebrandt, Varuna, p. 59.

9-10. prá · · muñcámi: acct! 596, 597; similar cases at 74¹ and 92¹6; supply either imám, or (since a change of address to Indra is quite natural) tvám. —U.f. amútas (17¹¹) karam (83¹²) | yáthā_iyám · · ásati, 'ut haec sit.' —mīḍhvas, 46²a.

- Sāyaṇa comments thus: itaḥ pitṛ-kulāt pra muñcāmi tvām; na_amuto bhartṛgṛhāt pramuñcāmi. amuto bhartṛ-gṛhe subaddhām karam.

11-12. Said to the bride as she gets into the wagon. Pūṣan is the best of guides for earthly travellers also—cf. p. 381-2. —See gṛhá, pl. —U.f. yáthā ásas. —See vvad+ā.

13-14. Said just as the wedding-train starts. -√2vid, 848. - AV. modernizes, reading sugéna. -áti_itām, 617. -Pronounce ápa drāntu (617).

15-16. imám sam-á_ita, págyata 'come near to this one together, i.e. crowd around her, (and) take a look.' Cf. note to 100¹⁵.—dat-tváya, 993, from the quasi-root dad (955c).—U.f. átha_ástam ví párā_itana (618).

17-18. priyám (priya 2b), subject of sám-rdhyatām. —ená (502², here = anéna) etc.: 'with this (man) as husband unite thyself.' —ádhā jívrī etc., said to both. 'Old,' i.e. until ye become so.

19. This stanza (43) has interesting variants in AV., and at MS. ii.13 end. - Pronounce sám-anaktu (689).

1. patilokám, 'husband's home:' not till later, 'husband's heaven.'

2-3. edhi, 636. - Pronounce vîrasúur · · sioná. - AV. reads devṛ-kāmā.

-Note that 44a, b, and c are of 11 syllables, while 44d (= 43d) is of 12. Although this discrepancy is not very rare, it yet helps to bring out the character of d as a formula sollennis:

- 'Be a blessing to our bipeds, a blessing sponds in go to our quadrupeds.' It is most interesting to stanza 6.

to note that a similarly comprehensive formula occurs elsewhere: in the Avesta, Yasna xix.8(18-19), Vd. xv.19(59), see KZ. xxv. 195; and on the Iguvine Tables, VI b 10-11, see Bréal's ed., pages XL, 125.

4-5. U.f. dáça_asyām putrán á dhehi (668). There is no end of evidence (e.g. Zimmer, p. 319) to show that the desire for male children was very strong, and that the birth of daughters was unwelcome. A wife who bears only daughters may be put away—Manu ix.81. —kṛdhi, 839. — 'Put ten sons in her. Make her husband an eleventh.' The logical incongruity is paralleled by Paradise Lost, iv. 323-4, and by the Greek classics.

6-7. Pronounce çvaçruám: specimen of a very rare form of transition to the devideclension, see 358. —Pronounce nánāndri: AV. reads nánāndus. —See ádhi.

-This throws an interesting light on ancient family-life. -Note that of the Ger. correspondents to <code>cvácura</code> and <code>cvacrú</code>, viz. Schwäher and Schwieger, the former has died out and given place to the term Schwiegervater. The mothers-in-law have thus made their mark in the language — see Kluge.

8-9. U.f. sám (sc. añjantu) ápas hfdayāni (note neglect of dual) nāu (gen.). A real anointing of both took place. —In line 9, a dadhātu goes with each sám, and nāu is acc. —Dhātf is esp. the deity who 'puts' fruit in the womb—RV. x.184.1. — See u 1 end.

SELECTION LIX. RV. x.137. Exorcism for-a sick person. - Tradition assigns each stanza to one of the Seven Rishis as author. Stanza 4 is spoken by the Wind, personified; the rest, by the exorcist. Respecting the general character of the hymn, see Kaegi, 85-86(115). See also the beautiful essay of Kuhn, KZ. xiii.49-74 and 113-157, who compares similar Vedic and Germanic spells. Nearchus says (Strabo, xv.45, p. 706) that the Hindus trust to wandering enchanters (ἐπφδοί) for cures, and that this is about all their λατρική amounts to. The hymn is translated by Aufrecht, ZDMG. xxiv.203. It corresponds in general to AV. iv.13; but see note 10-11. Note the accentless and accented vocatives. —See vni+ud and 248c. —U.f. utá_ágas cakrúsam (= cakryánsam, 462c). The disease is a punishment for sin. cf. p. 374.

12-13. See lidám end. - Zimmer queries, p. 45, whether the two Monsoons are here meant. - á síndhos, see á 4. - 'Away let the other blow what infirmity (there is,' 512b).

15. Pronounce tuám. - See vi.

16-17. ấ· agamam and ấ_abhārṣam (882): note use of aorists (928)—'I have just come and brought,' says the Wind. —átho, 1122a², 138c. —√2su+parā.

18-19. Pāda c, bad metre. -ayám, the sick man.

20. U.f. íd vāí, see vāí.

1. 'The waters are healers (lit. healing) of everything.' On use of sárva, see 77¹¹N. The AV.-concordants of this stanza are at AV. vi.91.3 and iii.7.5 and read víçvasya.

-STANZA 6. In place of this stanza the AV. has interpolated RV. x.60.12, evidently because it has to do with the laying on of hands—see the following.

2-3. That the laying on of hands has especial virtue is a wide-spread belief — cf. Acts viii.17f, and above, p. 369a top. The Greeks attributed to each of the Δάκτυλοι '1δαῖοι a name and a particular healing power. The finger next to the little finger (see note to 10411) is called, digitus medicus by Pliny, and medicinalis, in the laws of Henry I. of England; and it has a special and beneficent magic power. —W. Grimm, Kleinere Schriften, iii.440f, 442.

- 'With hands, ten-fingered (the tongue is leader of the charm), healing, — thee with these thee we touch.' The parenthesis may mean that the tongue brings out a charm to precede the laying on of hands. Text probably corrupt; AV. variants interesting.

Selection LX. RV. x.154. To Yama.— Funeral-hymn.—Rubricated at 10313, see p. 402. Recurs at AV. xviii.2.14-18, with interesting variants. Translated, Muir, v.310. To judge from the ritual, the subject of api gacchatāt in each stanza is the spirit of the departed. He is to go and join the Fathers—saints, warriors, poet-sages,—a description of whom makes up most of the hymn. In stanzas 4 and 5, gacchatāt (see 570) is a 3d sing., 'O Yama, let him go;' in the rest, it may be a 2d or a 3d.—Ludwig, ii.394, v.311, interprets otherwise, taking mádhu as subject of ápi gacchatāt (\gam+api).

4-5. 'Some · others' (éke), i.e. of the Fathers, "who revel in bliss with Yama" (8318). -See \alpha s+upa. -'For whom mádhu flows:' Yama and the Fathers are the eager recipients of sweet drink-offerings - cf. AV. xviii.2.1-3, and RV. x.15 passim. -táng cid = 'thóse:' táng cid evá = 'just those.'

6-7. Pronounce súar. - 'Who made tápas their glory.' - Heaven can be won only by the pious and (stanza 3) the brave: cf. MBh. iii.43.4 = 1759, and 42.35 = 1748f.

10-11. See cid2. - U.f. púrve rtasápas.
 - Cf. 85⁴.

12-13. 'Who keep (= confine themselves to) the sun, i.e. who hover about the sun' The righteous after death are transformed into rays of the sun or into stars (Muir, v. 319f; see 100°s.). Thus CB. i.9.310, ya eşa tapati, tasya ye raçmayas, te sukrtas. So MBh. iii.42.38 = 1751f:

ete sukṛtinaḥ, Pārtha, yān dṛṣṭavān asi, Vibho, tārārūpāṇi bhūtale.

SELECTION LXI. RV. x.155.5. Burial-stanza. — Rubricated, 105²¹. The preceding four stanzas are a deprecatio addressed to Arāyī, a vile and murderous witch. This stanza, the last, dwells upon the safety of the godly.

14-15. pári · anesata and pári · a-hr-sata, 882; akrata, 834a. Note the use of the aorists, 928—where all is translated.

- á dadharsati, perf. subj., 810b.

SELECTION LXII. MS. ii.13.23. Hiranyagarbha. — The god Ka or Who (see notes to selection lxviii.). — The RV. version (x.121) of this famous hymn has been translated by Max Müller, ASL. 569, and Chips, i.29; by Ludwig, no. 948; and by Muir, with comments, iv².15–18.

-STRUCTURE of the hymn. The seven stanzas here given (or perhaps only 2-6) constitute the original stock of the hymn, To this is added, in the MS.-version, an eighth stanza, quite impertinent to the rest; and in the RV.-version, three stanzas (8, 9, 10), whose character is determinable by various and interesting criteria.

Pāda d of each stanza is a refrain, 'Whom as god shall we worship with oblation? i.e. Who is the god that we are to worship with oblation?' The later Vedic texts understand it, 'We will worship the god Who or Ka,' making of the interrogative pronoun a deity whom they identify with Prajapati (selection lxviii.). The other padas of stanzas 2-6 are relative clauses with yás, yásya, yéna, yásmin. These may refer

A. To devaya: 'Who (interrog.) is the god, - who (relative) became king, etc. etc., -that we are to worship?' Ludwig: 'Ka, the god, - who is become king, etc. etc., we would wait upon with havis.' - Better, perhaps,

B. To hiranyagarbhás, although stanza 1 (and 7 as well) looks as if it might have been an afterthought. This leaves the connection of the refrain with the rest of each stanza very loose; but this is perhaps just what it ought to be.

-The hymn corresponds to RV. x.121. The comparative study of the differing versions of the same traditional material, as it appears in different Vedic texts, is interesting and instructive; and there is no better opportunity for it than this (see Preface, p. v, N.2).

The hymn occurs also at TS. iv.1.8; in the VS., with the stanzas scattered, at xiii.4, xxiii.3, xxv.13, xxv.12, xxxii.6,7, xxvii.25; and at AV. iv.2. The TS. version follows that of the RV. most nearly. Disregarding the order, the same is true of the VS. The AV. version looks like an unsuccessful attempt at writing down a half-remembered piece.

-ACCENT-MARKS, etc. The vertical stroke designates the acute accent; the horizontal hook, the circumflex. Details in L. von Phonetic peculiarities, ibidem, XXVIII. Final m before sibilants, y, r, and v, is marked by the 'dot in the crescent,' e.g. pracisam, line 4. See also Preface to this Reader, p. v, note 7.

- Pada c: díc, q.v., is 'a point of the sky:' of these there are usually four; sometimes are mentioned 5, 6, 7, 8, and 10 (explained by BR. s.v. díc). When five are mentioned, we may understand them as N., E., S., W., and the zenith: cf. AB. vl.32, pañca vā imā diçaç: catasras tiraçcya, ekā_ūrdhvā. Occurring with diças, the word pradiças may mean 'intermediate points,' and, with the zenith, count as five. But considering the (faulty) concordant of RV., TS., and VS., yásya imáh pradíco yásya bāhű, further, RV. ix.86.29b, AV. i.30.4c, and esp. iii.4.2b.

The athetesis of the hypermetric ékah, made by Bollensen, Orient und Occident, ii.485 (1864), and again by Grassmann, is here beautifully confirmed by the MS.

SELECTION LXIII. MS. i.5.12. Legend of Yama and Yami. - The creation of night. - Respecting Yama and Yami, see notes to 8512f.

- The prose of the Brāhmaņas is not difficult. In reading it, the chief thing is some familiarity with the style, i.e. ability to divide up the discourse aright into the little clauses and choppy sentences with which it proceeds. As a help to this it is important to observe that the particle dtha marks the beginning of a new clause, and that the postpositive valumarks the foregoing word as the first of its clause. Analogous is the use of nāma to distinguish a proper name from an identical appeilative. Cf. Pliny, Epp. vl.31, evocatus in consilium ad centum cellas (hoc loco nomen) .

As my colleague, Professor A. P. Peabody, has observed in his translations of Clcero's Offices and Tusculans, there are certain connectives and illatives which are employed as mere catchwords for the eye. In manuscripts (Greek, Latin, Sanskrit) written with letters of one size, with no separation of words, and with very few stops, these particles serve the purpose effected now-a-days by capitals, by division or spacing, and by punctuation. In spoken language it is often wrong to render them otherwise than by inflection or by stress of volce.

14. U.f. vāí. -See √brū+apa.

14-15. U.f. tám yád áprchan (207), sá abravīt: "adyá amṛta" íti. té abruvan: "ná vāí iyám etc." - Difference between imperf. amriyata and aor. amrta (834a) illustrated at 9283. - Accent of tè, Whitney 84d, 135.

15-16. Lit. 'Not (if things keep on) in this way (itthám) does she forget him.'

16. Note the fine distinction. The gods use the solemn old Vedic form ratrim; the narrator, the later and more colloquial rátrim. Similar distinction at CB. xi.5.44: cf. 9820 N., 10314 N. Not uncommon is the assumption that the gods have words or a dialect peculiar to themselves. Thus ná with the gods means the same as iva, AB. ii.2.14,15. Cf. Iliad i.403, ii.814, xiv.291, xx.74, Od. x.305; and A. F. Pott's Antikaulen, p. 71.

- srjāvahāi, faulty reading for -mahāi? -U.f. áhar vává tárhi ásīt, ná rátris verb-acct, cf. 899N.

"Yama dled. The gods sought to console Yami or the loss of Yama.—When they saked her, she said, To-day hath he died. They said, In this way she will never forget him. Night let us create. Only day in those times existed—not night. The gods created night. Then came into being the morrow. Then she forgat him. Therefore they say, 'Tis days and with white melt a more forget corrow.' and nights make men forget sorrow.

SELECTION LXIV. MS. i.10.13. Legend of the winged mountains. - The myth is often alluded to by the later poets: see Stenzler's note to Kumāra-sambhava, i.20, and Bollensen's to Vikramorvaçi, str. 44. BR. observe that it is often difficult to distinguish between the mgs 'mountain' and 'cloud' which belong to párvata. In letting loose the heavenly waters, Indra splits open the 'mountains' as well as the 'clouds.' The Maruts house on the 'heights' or in the 'clouds,' etc.

SELECTION LXV. MS. ii.1.12. The potency of the sacrifice. - A passage much resembling this occurs at TS. ii.4.13 = Muir, $1^2.21$. Respecting the myths of Indra's birth and Aditi's motherhood, see Hillebrandt, Aditi, p. 43; Perry, JAOS. xi.127f, 148f; and Lit eratur-Blatt für Orient. Philol., ii.4.

5. 'The Aindrabarhaspatyan oblation he should offer (nír-vapet), who, as a sovereign, shouldn't exactly succeed in his attacks.' This is a typical Brahmana passage. It invents a legend showing the efficacy of some ritual observance in former times, to prove the usefulness of repeating the same rites in analogous circumstances. —Peculiar interest attaches to this occurrence of the vstigh—see Schroeder's ed. of MS., Introduction, p. XIV; also ZDMG. xxxiii.194f, where the substance of the passage is given.

Selection LXVI. TS. ii.6.6. Legend of Agni the oblation-bearer, and of the fish.—
This is the Brāhmaṇa form of the myth which is the subject of RV. x.51, and is adverted to in x.52 = selection lvi. To their version of x.51, GKR. add on p. 106 a translation of the selection before us (lxvi.). It is also rendered by Muir, v.203, and by Eggeling, SBE. xii.452. Ludwig, v.504-5, gives other Brāhmaṇa forms of this myth: cf. esp. ÇB. i.2.31 = SBE. xii.47. For Epic forms of the same, see Ad. Holtzmann, Agni nach den Vorstellungen des MBh., p. 11, and esp. MBh. iii.222.7 = 14214f.

14-15. tráyas, 482c. -√2mi+pra, 770a. 15-16. 'Agni feared, (thinking,) "In this way, surely, he (syás) will get into trouble, i.e. if things keep on in this way, I shall get into trouble."' He speaks of himself here (as also at x.51.6a) in the 3d person (syás). Note the common root of ấ_artim and ấ_arisyati.

16. nílāyata: in strictness, to be divided thus, níl-āyata, 'he went out, took himself off, hid.' This is for nír a-ayata, an imperf. mid. of vi (after the model of a-jayata from vji) with the prefix nis or nir; for according to Pāṇini (viii.2.19), the r of a preposition with forms of the verb-stem aya is regularly changed to 1—cf. 1087c.

In the Hindu mind, these forms of the verb-stem nil-aya were evidently confused with those of ni-laya, which yield a like mg—see BR. under \lambda \text{li+ni}. On this account, doubtless, the pada-pātha, which usually gives the division of compound verbs, refrains here. The confusion is further attested by the analogous passage of the \text{CB.}, which has, in the Mādhyamdina text (i.2.31), ni-lilye, and in the Kānva text, ni-layām cakre—see SBE. xii.p.xlvi. The proper form from \lambda ii in the passage before us would of course be ny-alayata.

16-17. U.f. pra_éṣam (see √2iş+pra2 and ref.) āicchan (√1 iṣ, 585). In the metaphor, Agni is implicitly likened to a hunted beast.

17-18. tám açapat etc., 'Him (the fish) he (Agni) cursed (as follows): "dhiyā · pra_ávocas." See dhí 1. - vadhyāsus (form! 924) and ghnanti (637) have as subject 'people.' -The loose use of sás, tám, etc., is one of the chief stylistic faults of the Brāhmanas.

19. ánv-avindan: \2vid; subject, 'the gods.' - See \vrt+upa_\(\bar{a}\).

the selection before us (lxvi.). It is also rendered by Muir, v.203, and by Eggeling, SBE. xii.452. Ludwig, v.504-5, gives other Brāhmaṇa forms of this myth: cf. esp. CB. i.2.31 = SBE. xii.47. For Epic forms of the same, see Ad. Holtzmann, Agni nach den of the (sc. ghee) (when) taken (into the sacrificial ladle, but) not (yet) poured into the fire (á-hutasya), may fall outside the enclosure, let that be the portion of my brothers."'

Selection LXVII. AB. iii.20. Legend of Indra and the Maruts, and Vṛtra.—Translated, Muir, v.93. In selection xlvii. = RV. viii.85.7f, the Maruts are praised because they stood by Indra when all the other gods forsook him. The passage before us is an expansion of that myth, a "reproduction plus ou moins amplifiée d'un cliché emprunté au livre des hymnes."

From other passages, it would appear that the Maruts also were faithless, cf. Muir, v. 92 and 82¹n. Both views are involved in the explanation of the Mid-day Soma Feast, ÇB. iv.3.36f, where the Maruts first withdraw from Indra and afterwards help him (SBE. xxvi.334f).

- 4-5. hanisyan, 948². -U.f. "anu mā upa tisthadhvam; upa mā hvayadhvam" (vhū). Note the free position of the prefixes (1081). tathā_iti, '"Yes," said they.'
- 5-6. U.f. sas (Vṛṭra) avet (see v1 vid3, and 620): "mām etc.; hanta! imān bhī-sayāi" (vbhī, caus., 1042f, 1043.2).
- 7. \(\sqrt{v}\text{vas} + \text{abhi-pra}: \text{imperf., 631.} \text{adravan}: \text{simple root dru, without prefix;} \(\text{note that the prefix \bar{a}} \text{ with \sqrt{dru exactly reverses its meaning;}} \) so with \(\sqrt{d\bar{a}}, \text{hr, and muc.}\)
- 8-9. U.f. m- ha enam na ajahus (<2hā, 661, 656): "prahara bhagavas! (454b) jahi! (6372) vīrayasva!" iti eva enam · · upa_atiṣṭhanta. See vác.
- 9-10. tad etad (see etad) = 'this.' See vvac+abhy-anu. 'The Rishi, seeing this (occurrence), described (it) in the Vedic words, "At Vṛṭra's snorting, thee.'' These words are a quotation of the beginning of RV. viii.85.7f, and illustrate the way in which the Vedic stanzas are cited in the secondary literature.
- 10-11. U.f. sas (Indra, this time) avet: "ime · ·; ime · ·; hanta! imān asmin ukthe ā bhajāi." See vbhaj+ā: the subjunctive has the force of a future.

SELECTION LXVIII. AB. iii.21. Legend of Indra and the god Ka or Who. — Compare selection lxii. and see Müller, ASL. 432f. The identification of Prajāpati with Ka is very common: see, e.g. ÇB. i.1.118, vii.4.119, xi.5.41.

- 13-14. U.f. · · vi-jitya, abravīt prajāpatim: "aham etad asāni (636), yad tvam (sc. asi); aham mahān asāni."
- 15. U.f. "yad eva etad avocas." The etad, q.v., goes appositively with yad, marking the thing designated by yad as something preceding, and so may be rendered by 'just' or 'a moment ago.' P. asks, "Who am I, then?" "Exactly what thou just saidst,"' replied Indra.
- 15-16. 'Then P. became Ka by name = got the name of Ka. (For) P. is Ka by name = has the name Ka.' Note that the predicate comes first.
- 16-17. See yad2. As for the fact that Indra became great, therein (lies) Great-Indra's Great-Indra-ness' (cf. ÇB. ii.5.49). This is a specimen of the verbal and etymological explanations of the Brāhmaṇas: cf. 647N.

SELECTION LXIX. CB. ii.2.26. The two kinds of deities, the gods and the Brahmans.

— A little oratio pro domo of an oft-recurring kind (see ISt. x.35). Translated by Muir, i².262 (he quotes TS. i.7.31 by way of illustration), and Eggeling, SBE. xii.309.

- 18. U.f. devās (predicate) aha eva devās (subject): 'The gods of course are gods.' So mártyā ha vấ ágre devấ āsuḥ, 'In the beginning, the gods were mortals' (not 'The mortals were gods'). Delbrück, Altindische Wortfolge, p. 26.
- 18f. 'Then (they) who are the Brahmans, the learned (Vcru 1), the scholars (see Vvac +anu, and 807),—they are the human gods.'

- 2-3. 'For (lit. of) the gods, (the sacrifice is) just the oblations; for the human-gods, the B., the learned, the scholars, (it is) the dakṣiṇā.' —prīṇāti, subject indefinite.
- 4. U.f. brāhmaṇān çuçruvuṣas, 203. Note the fond repetition. enam, same as subject of prīṇāti.

SELECTION LXX. CB. ii.2.219f. Truth, Death to be the Year, not of him doth this untruth, and silence. - Translated by Delbrück, Wortfolge, 29,79; Eggeling, SBE. xii. 312,452.

6-8. abhi-siñcet, 758. - 'Of this fireconsecration a (concomitant) duty is TRUTH. He who speaks the truth, -as (if) the enkindled fire, it with ghee he should besprinkle, so he makes it blaze up; of him greater and greater the dignity becomes; from day to day better he becomes.' - Note the childish verbal anticipations and repetitions, esp. of pronouns.

11-12. U.f. tad u ha api: Eggeling renders all four particles by a simple 'Now.' "Thou'rt old (enough). Establish thy two fires."' See v1 dha+a3. This ceremony was an essential preliminary to matrimony and to setting up in life as a householder. Described at ISt. v.285f, x.327f.

12-14. U.f. sas ha uvāca: "te mā etad brūtha: 'vācamyamas eva edhi.' na vāi ·· vaditavyam; na vadan jātu, na anrtam vadet. etc." 'He said: "What ye say to me, then, amounts to this: 'Just hold thy peace.' By no means by an āhitāgni may untruth be spoken. By not speaking at all, one would not speak untruth. (I.e. Only by silence can one wholly avoid untruth.) To such an extent (of silence, namely), is truth a duty."' -See ha end. -See ta2. Lit. 'Ye, those, to me this are saying.' -See tāvant2.

SELECTION LXXI. CB. x.4.31f. How the gods got immortality and how Death got his share. - Translated, Muir, iv2.57f; in part, v.316f. Cf. iv.54f and v.12f. Metrical paraphrase by Monier-Williams, Indian Wisdom, 34, = Hinduism, 35, = Religious Thought and Life in India, 24. On the symbolism of the Brāhmanas, see p. 357, § 92; Oldenberg's Buddha, 19(20)f; Schroeder, ILuC. p. 127f.

15-18. 'Death (subject) is this thing (esas, predicate, masc. to conform in gender with mrtyus - cf. 7820 and N.), what the Year is. For this one, by means of days and nights, exhausteth the life of mortals. So they DIE. Therefore 'tis this one that is called DEATH. The man who knoweth this one before old age by days and nights exhaust the life. To perfectly complete duration of life attaineth he.' -U.f. sarvam ha eva āvus: cf. 8611 N.

19. U.f. āyuşas antam gacchati, see Vgam3.

3-5. U.f. antakāt · · bibhayām cakrus (1071d) yad (see 381n.) etc. 'The gods were afraid of this Ender, Death, the Year, Prajāpati, [hoping] "May this one by days and nights not get at the end of our (no) life."' Similar construction (yad . na and optative) after verb of fearing, CB. iv.3.311.

5. U.f. te · · vajñakratūn tenire (794e).

5f. THE SACRIFICES are described by Weber, ISt. x.321f. The Hindus did not class them according to their purpose, as thank-offerings, expiatory offerings, etc. They grouped them

A. according to the MATERIAL used, as: 1. oblations of milk, ghee, corn; 2. animal sacrifices; 3. libations of Soma. And again

B. according to the TIME, as: 1. at the beginning (x.328) of each day and of each night (agnihotra); 2. at the beg. (x.329) of the lunar half-month; 3. at the beg. (x.337) of the three seasons, - spring, rains, autumn; 4. at the beg. (x.343) of the two harvests. The offering of first-fruits or nava-sasya_ isti; in the spring, of barley; in the autumn, of rice; 5. at the beg. (x.344) of the solar half-year, the paçu-bandha; 6. at the beg. (x.352) of the new year, the Soma-sacrifice.

With this last, often occurs the elaborate ceremony of building the fire-altar of bricks, ISt. xiii.217-292. This ceremony is called the 'Fire-piling,' agni-cayana (see V1 ci), or briefly agni.

Schröder gives in brief compass a sketch of a specimen-sacrifice, ILuC. p. 97-109.

7. U.f. na amrtatvam ānaçire (7884). te ha api agnim (= agni-cayanam) cikyire (787). - That the gods were once mortal (9418 N.) is doubtless a late notion. The path of Death is itaro devayanat, 864: cf. also ZDMG. xxxii.300.

8-9. See Vldhā+upa. - U.f. yathā idam

(see 2idam) api etarhi eke upa-dadhati: "A polemical hit aimed by the author of the Brähmana at some contemporaries who followed a different ritual from himself."—Muir. Cf. Chändogya Upanişad, i.12.4=SBE. i.21. —See iti 1.

10-11. Ppls w. cerus, see \(\scrtan2\) and 1075b. -See \(\scrt1\) rudh+ava, \(desid.\), 1027.

11-13. U.f. "na vāi · · · upa dhattha: ati vā eva · ·; na vā · ·; tasmāt na · ·."

13-14. See ha end. - See explan. under ta2. - See vathā6.

15-18. The protasis-clauses begin with sastim and sastim and atha lokampṛṇās: the apodosis-clauses, with atha me and atha amṛtās. The second protasis-clause has an appendix, adhi ṣaṭtriṅgatam, see adhi. — For impv. with conditional mg, cf. example under atha2, and 82²N. —For daça etc., see 480.

- 'Put ye on 360 P's; 360 Y's, and 36 besides; then 10,800 L's. Then (if ye do) shall ye etc.' The days of the year number 360; and $360 \times 30 = 10,800$. But see also Weber, ISt. xiii.254-5. Note that $108 = 2^2 \times 3^3$.

18-19. The acquisition of immortality is otherwise related, CB. ii.2.28f, Muir, ii3.372.

21-23. U.f. "na atas · asat (6363): yadā eva · harāsāi (736), etc." See atas3. "From this time on, not any other with his body shall be immortal: just when thou this (thy) allotted-portion shalt seize, then parting with his body he shall be immortal, who is to be immortal either by knowledge or by works."

23f. See yad2 end. 'As for their saying that, "Either by knowledge or by works,"—this is that knowledge, (lit. which is agni=) namely agni; and these are those works, namely agni.' Here agni=agni-cayana.—Cf. 66²³.

1-2. U.f. te, ye evam etad vidus, ye vā etad karma kurvate, etc. Promises to them "who have this knowledge" recur times unnumbered in the Brāhmaṇas. As between 'knowledge' and 'works,' knowledge is the better: CB. xiv.4.3²⁴ = SBE. xv.96. On this passage, see Oldenberg, Buddha, 46 = 47.

4. U.f. te etasya (= mrtyos) eva annam.

SELECTION LXXII. ÇB. xii.7.3¹f. Legend of Indra and Namuci.—For the origin of this story, see 81¹⁶f and notes. Translated, Muir, v.94. Other forms of the story: Muir, iv².261; Ludwig, v.145. The MBh. has it at ix.43.33 = 2433f; see ZDMG. xxxii.311.

6-7. 'N. stole I's strength etc., along with his surā.'

7-10. U.f. sas (Indra) · upa_adhāvat: "çepānas asmi (see Wçap, as) namucaye, 'na tvā · · · na ārdreṇa; ' atha me idam ahārṣīt. idam me ā jihīrṣatha?" iti. — Note the difference (929, 928) between aharat and ahārṣīt. —Note reversal of mg (947x.) effected by ā with jihīrṣatha (1028b): "Are ye willing to fetch it back for me?""

10. "astu nas atra api; atha ā harāma:"
"Let there be of us in this also (a share); in that case, we'll fetch (it) back."'

10-11. "Together ours (is) that; so fetch it back." Thus said he.

11. iti (the one before tāu açvināu) = 'on the strength of that agreement.'

12. asiñcan: see \sic3.

13. vy-ustāyām (v1 vas) rātrāu, 303b. So an-udite āditye.

14. √3vas+ud—a queer verb to use for this mg. — U.f. ṛṣiṇā abhy-anu_uktam "apām phenena" (8116) iti.

SELECTION LXXIII. Nirukta ii.16. Explanation of RV. i.32.10, selection xxxii., page 70!9.20.—See Roth, Erläuterungen, 21f, and Muir, ii³.174f.

15-16. The iti marks aniviçamānānām as a gloss to the quoted "átisthantīnām." So asthāvarāṇām is a gloss to the "aniveçanānām" of the sacred text; and in like manner, meghas to "çárīram."

16. Starting from the 3d pers. s. pres. ind. act. of a verb-root (e.g. çamnāti from \3gam), and treating it as a declinable nounstem, like mati, the Hindu forms an ablative sing., e.g. çamnātes, to express "derivation from a root." Render: 'çarīra is from the root çr break, or from the root çam harm.' So with drāghati and the following two.

19f. After the verbal explanations, comes the mythological discussion. 'Who then is Vrtra? "A cloud" say the etymologists.

"An Asura descended from Tvaṣṭar" say the tellers of old legends.' There were, then, already schools of conflicting opinions. Cf. Muir, ii³.170f.

Selection LXXIV. Wedding-customs and the wedding-service. Āçvalāyana Gṛḥyasūtra, book i., chap's 5, 7, 8.— Stenzler published the text in the Abhandlungen für die Kunde des Morgenlandes, vol. iii., 1864; and the translation, vol. iv., 1865. Cf. Weber, Indische Streifen, ii.296f. The text appeared with a Hindu comment in the Bibliotheca Indica, 1866-69. English translation by Oldenberg, SBE. xxix.159f.

-On the subject-matter of this selection, the following essays and books may be consulted. The most important is the essay of Haas, with additions by Weber, ISt. v.267-410; cf. esp. the synoptic index, 410-12. Haas gives the text and an annotated translation of our selection at pages 289f, 362f.

See also notes to selection lviii., p. 389. Further, Kaegi, 74(102), and notes; Zimmer, 309f; Kaegi in Fleckeisen's Jahrbücher, 1880, 456f; and Colebrooke's Essays, i.217–38.

Birth, reproduction, and death are the three great facts of all organic life. It is therefore natural that the customs connected with marriage and burial should take so important a place in the traditions of primitive peoples. It can hardly be doubted that a considerable body of these customs have their root in Indo-European antiquity. For we find, as between the various members of this family, many and most striking coincidences of usage. The systematic exposition and criticism of these coincidences form one of the most interesting chapters of comparative philology. It is not feasible to point them out in detail here. In lieu of this may be cited—

Deutschen Frauen (Wien, 1851), p.190-274, or Altnordisches Leben (Berlin, 1856), 238-59; Spiegel, Eränische Alterthumskunde, iii.676-81.

-Synopsis of the subject-matter (with references to passages in vol. v. of the ISt., where Haas and Weber treat of the Hindu customs or cite analogous ones):—

CHAPTER v. Test of the bride by means of exorcised lumps of earth. See ISt. v.288f.

Chap. vii. The marriage ceremony. Dextrarum iunctio (v.277,311). Bride led around the fire and water (v.318x.2, 396x.). Amo 'ham asmi (v.216). Mounting the stone (v.318x.1). Oblation (v.318x.3). Loosing braids (v.320). Seven steps (v.320f, 321x.).

CHAP. viii. Wedding journey (v.327f). Arrival at new home (v.329). Pellis lanata (Rossbach, 113f, 324; Marquardt, 50). Continence (v.325f, 331).

VEDIC CITATIONS. If the entire first pāda of a stanza is quoted, the entire stanza is meant. If only part of the first pāda of a hymn is quoted, the entire hymn is meant. If more than a complete pāda is quoted, then three stanzas are meant. — Stenzler, note to AGS. i.20.9.

6. 'The family (of the intended bride or groom) in the first place one should consider, according to the rule, "Who on the mother's and on the father's side,—" as aforesaid.'

The rule referred to is in Āçvalāyana's Çrāuta-sūtra, ix.3.20 (p. 714, Bibl. Ind.), and continues thus,

"—for ten generations back, are endowed with knowledge, austerity, and works of merit." See Weber's interesting discussion of ancestor-tests, ISt. x.84-8.

- 8-11. U.f. aṣṭāu piṇḍān kṛtvā (1272), · · · piṇḍān abhimantrya, kumārīm brūyāt, "eṣām ekam gṛhāṇa" (722). 'Making eight lumps (of earth), conjuring the lumps with the mantras "ṛtam · · · dṛcyatām," he should say to the girl, "Take one of these."'—Germanic bride-tests cited, 1St. v.288N.
- 11-12. U.f. kṣetrāt ced ubhayataḥ-sasyāt gṛhṇīyāt, "annavatī asyās prajā bhaviṣyati," iti vidyāt. 'If she take (the lump made) from the field that bears two crops a year, "Rich in food will her children be," thát he may know.' —'Two crops:' cf. Megasthenes, as preserved by Diodorus (ii. 35,36) and Strabo (xv.20, p. 693).
- 12-15. Most of the remaining seven conditional periods are abbreviated to two words: thus gosthāt answers to kṣetrāt and paçumatī to annavatī; and the rest is to be supplied from the first period. No's 4, 5, and 7 begin respectively with avidāsinas, ādevanāt, and iriņāt. But patighnī is predicate to a supplied kumārī rather than to prajā.
- 14. dvi-pravrājinī: to be preferred, perhaps, is the reading vipravrājinī (\vraj+vi-pra), 'wandering hither and thither;' but the mg amounts to the same thing.
- 16. In order of extent stand deça, 'country,' janapada, 'district,' nagara, 'town,' grāma, 'village,' kula, 'family.' But at weddings and funerals, village-customs stand first in importance—PGS. i.8.11,13 or SBE. xxix.285. On conflicts, cf. Stenzler's note to AGS. i.7.2, and 5918N.—tān begins new clause.—prati_iyāt, 616.
- 17-21. dṛṣadam açmānam, 'a millstone (which is) stone' (not, e.g. burnt clay). Apposition, cf. 101¹². —See ⟨rabh+sam-anv-ā: se. kumāryām, loc. absol. —Note how the quoted sacred text has gṛbhṇāmi, while the later one has gṛhṇiyāt: cf. 92¹⁶N. —kāmayīta (1043.3), as if of the 1st gen'l conj., instead of kāmayeta. So vācayīta, 101², 106⁴; kalpayīran, 105¹. —pumāṅsas etc.; δύνασθαι · ποιεῖν καὶ ἀρρενογόνους καὶ θηλυγόνους etc., Megasthenes, in Strabo, xv.60, p. 713; also ÇB. xiv.9.4¹⁴f or SBE. xv.219f.
- 'To the west of the fire, a millstone setting, to the north-east, a water-jar, while she touches him, he, offering, standing facing west, of her, facing east, seated, with RV. x. 85.36, the thumb only should grasp, in case he should desire "pumāńsas · · jāyeran."

- 1. pari-nayam: we should read pari-nayam or (BL) -an, pres. ppl. 'Leading (her) thrice to the right around the fire and the water-jar.' The analogies are remarkable: cf. ἐπιδέξια, the Roman dextratio, the Gaelic "walking the deasil," etc. Consult SBE. xii.37, 45, 272, 442; Rossbach, 231, 314f; Marquardt, i².51 and N.1. Circumambulations followed the course of the sun on occasions of joy; and were reversed (10421) on occasions of sorrow.
- 2-3. Pronounce: sā tvam asi; amo aham. —These interesting formulae occur at AV.xiv.2.71; ÇB. xiv.9.419; PGS. i.6.3; AB. viii.27; ÇGS. i.13.4. For pāda d, the first three have sāmāham asmi; rk tuam.
- The sāman is conceived as male (ÇB. iv.6.7¹¹), and as sprung from the rc (as it is), or as husband of it (ÇB. viii.1.3⁵). But to the Hindu mind this lugging in of sāma has a charming mystic significance, inasmuch as sā plus ama makes sāma (see AB. iii.23; and SBE. i.13).

 The conception of heaven as male and of earth as female is common—see Preller, Gr. Mythologie³, i.37f.
- -The Vedic formula has a general significance not unlike that of the ancient quando (or ubi) tu Gaius ego Gaia and the German Wo ich Mann bin, da bist du Frau, und wo du Frau bist, da bin ich Mann. For the Latin formula, see Rossbach, p. 351; ISt. v.216; Fleckeisen, 1880, p. 457; and esp. the discussion by Marquardt, i².49x.2. For the German, see ISt. v.216. Another use of the Vedic formula, ISt. x.160.
- 4-5. ehi, used just like $\alpha\gamma\epsilon$ or $\phi\epsilon\rho\epsilon$; but cf. the variants noted ISt. v.332x. —If we could read priyāu, the metre would be in order (8+8+11+8); but cf. TS. iv.2.51.
- 6. Force of repetition—'With each leading-around' (1260).—She mounts the stone or puts her foot on it as a symbol of the way in which she is to put her foot on herenemies.

- stīrya (see vstr+upa). The loc. is adjunct of a-vapati as well as of the gerund.
- 9-11. The first pouring (upastarana) of ajya and the two strewings of parched grain on the bride's hands, and the second sprinkling (pratyabhighārana) of ājya, constitute the four portions "cut off" or separated from the havis or sacrificial food. The first is done by the groom; the rest by the brother. The descendants of Jamadagni used to "cut off" five such portions (ISt. v.366; x.95) and so had to strew grain three times. -Oldenberg's note. -esas, refers back.
- '(The groom) having poured the sacrificial butter on the bride's hollowed-andjoined-hands, her brother or brother's representative strews parched grain (on her hands) twice [Thrice (is the custom) of the Jamadagnians.], sprinkling again (sc. ājya) over the havis (= what he has left of the grain in the basket) and over the avatta (= what grain he has strewn on her hands). This (as just stated) is the cutting-off-usage.'
- 12-17. ayaksata, 882. pra · muñcātu (cf. 899), impv., w. lengthening (ISt. v.340x.): so nudātu, svadātu. -These stanzas are mere adaptations of blank forms, so to say, For examples of the changes (called uhas) which circumstances demand, see AB. ii.6.6; cf. AGS. iii.8.7. The forms are filled out (see nigama in BR.) with a deity-name, which, as here, does not always fit the metre.
- 18. 'With the above mantras (uttered by the groom), she, not-parting (fem.) her joined-hands, should offer (the grain in them), as with a sruc.' The nose of the sruc is at the side. She is therefore to pour out the grain so, - not over her finger-tips.
- For the case of families who do not strew grain but twice, we must assume that the bride, when making her second oblation, does not offer all the grain in her joinedhands, but leaves some for her third oblation. Her fourth is from the basket.
- 18-19 (§ 14). 'Without (any) leading around (on the part of the groom), (the bride should offer grain) with the nose of the basket towards herself in silence the

- 9. U.f. vadhv-anjalau (134 end) upa- to the groom. The bride does not say any thing at any time (cf. SBE, xxix.37).
 - -As prescribed above, the rites are performed in the order following:
 - I. II. First and second rounds:
 - a. leading around, § 6
 - b. mounting stone, § 7;
 c. strewing grain, § 8;
 d. oblation w. mantra 1 or 2, § 13.
 - III. Third round:
 - a. leading around;
 - b. mounting stone;
 - c. sprinkling ājya, § 10; d. oblation w. mantra 3, § 13.
 - IV. Fourth time:a, b, and c fall out;d. oblation in silence.
 - 19-20. U.f. ā upya ā upya (127 end) ha (see ha) eke etc. 'Some lead her around after each strewing (of) the grain. In this way (tatha) the last two oblations do not fall together.' That is, some do the rites in the order:
 - c. strewing or sprinkling;
 - d. oblation w. mantra; a. leading around;

 - b. mounting stone.

In this way, the fourth oblation comes directly after the third mounting of the stone.

- 20-21. asyāi, 365.3. 'Then he loosens her two braids, if they are made; (i.e. if) two braids of wool at her two temples are tied.'
- 22. He loosens the right one with RV. x.85.24. - uttarām (sc. çikhām) uttarayā (sc. rca): see uttara 3, 4.
- 23. The AB. at i.14.5f tells why the NE. is called a-parājitā. See also A. Kuhn, Entwicklungs-stufen der mythenbildung, Abh. der Berliner Akad., 1873, p. 126f.

- 1-3. U.f. ise ekapadi (sc. bhava), etc., 'be taking one step for strength = take one step for strength; two for vigor;' and so on. -The body consists of five elements. one period, the seasons are reckoned as six: cícira, vasantá, grīsmá, varsá, carád, hemantá.
- 4. See saptapada in vocab. Seven, as a sacred number, became the symbol for 'many' or 'all.' Doubtless the word always suggested both the literal and the transfourth time.' The "silence" refers of course | ferred mgs. Orig., sakhā saptapado bhava,

'Be a constant friend,' was a mere general formula, used on sealing a friendship, e.g. between two men, who would take seven steps together hand in hand by way of ratifying their bond. Sāptapadam māitram, 'Friendship (if genuine) is constant,' became a common proverb.

-The application of the formula to the wedding-ceremony is prob. only a secondary and special use; although it came to be exceedingly important. Here saptapadī being taken with strict literalness, it became necessary to lead up to it by six other formulae—as in the text. The matter is explained at length and illustrated, by Haas and Weber, ISt. v.320-22: cf. BR. s.v. saptapada; and AV. v.11.10.

6. The two gerunds seem to go with the subject of abhy-ut-krāmayati, i.e. the groom.

8. vaset: subject, the bride. -sapta rsīn, 1272. -See iti 3.

8-9. dhruvam, as symbol of fixity and constancy (see PGS. i.8.19 and CGS. i.17.3). For the legend of Dhruva's translation to the skies, see Visnu Purana, book i, chap. 12. -arundhatim: cited, with many other examples of faithful and happy wifehood, at MBh. i.199.6 = 7352 and v.117.11 = 3970; cf. also ISt. v.195. There was a superstition that one whose life was near its close could not see these stars (ISt. v. 325: Indische Sprüche, 2d ed., no. 2815). -ṛṣīn: here, as so often, the heavenly lights are the souls of pious sages and saints departed - see note to 9112. - The bride has nothing to say during the ceremony, and keeps silence after it until (cf. 10320) starlight.

10. U.f. prayāṇe (loc. 303b), the weddingjourney, from the bride's village to the groom's. See ISt. v.327f.

11-12. Rules 2 and 3 are for the case that they have to cross a stream.

12. rudatyām, 'if she weeps,' loc. abs.

13. So in Rome a boy went ahead with a nuptial torch. Cf. Rossbach, 362-3.

14-15. 'At every dwelling'—as the wedding-train passes it. The procession called out eager gazers then, as now. Indeed, to judge from AV. xiv.2.73, even the Manes were supposed to crowd about for a look at LXXXII. We may mention also Colebrooke's the bride (ISt. v.277). - U.f. · · iti îkṣakān īkseta.

17. U.f. ānaḍuham carma ā-stīrya: compare the pellis lanata (Rossbach, 112, 324).

-tasminn = carmaṇi. The two foll. words are loc's s. fem., supply kumāryām (303b).

18-19. catasrbhis, sc. rgbhis.

19-20. dadhnas (431) etc.: 'Partaking of curds, he should offer (them) in turn (to her); or, with the rest of the ājya, he anoints (anakti, vañj) his and her heart.' hrdaye: better as dual, on account of the nāu (dual, 908) in the stanza which accompanies the action.

20-21. See ūrdhvam. -brahma-cāriņāu: see ISt. v.325x.3, 331. -U.f. alamkurvāṇāu, 714.

22. Counting of time by nights: see Kaegi, N.68* and citations, and Zimmer, p. 360.

- 'Or, "(They should be continent) a year,"
(say) some: a Rishi is born in this way (iti).' 'In this way' = 'on condition and as reward of such self-restraint.'

1. Marital intercourse is declared by Āpastamba to be a duty resting on the authority of Holy Writ (brāhmaṇa-vacanāc ca samveçanam, ii.1.19=SBE. ii.101). The Scripture-passage, acc. to Bühler, is TS. ii.5.15, kāmam á víjanitoḥ sám bhavāma, 'Let us have intercourse after our heart's desire till a child be begotten.' Explicit is Bāudhāyana, iv.1.17=SBE. xiv.315; MBh. xii.21.12=626. Cf. Ludwig, v.549 (n. to RV. i.179.2), and iv. 315: also Exodus xxi.10f, and I Cor. vii.3.

SELECTION LXXV. The customs and ritual of cremation and burial. Āçvalāyana Grhya-sūtra, b'k iv., chap's 1-6.—Text and translations as at the beginning of introduction to selection lxxiv. Roth compares the ceremonies here described with those implied by the text of RV. x.18 in his essay, die Todtenbestattung im indischen Alterthum, ZDMG. viii.467-75, reprinted in part by Zimmer, p. 404f. The same subject is treated at length by Max Müller, ZDMG. ix.p.I-LXXXII. We may mention also Colebrooke's Essays, i.172-95; the papers of Wilson and of Rajendralala Mitra, cited above, p. 382f; and especially Monier-Williams, in Religious Thought and Life in India, chap, xi., Death, Funeral Rites, and Ancestor-worship, and in Ind. Ant. v.27. Cf. also in general the introduction to selection liii., p. 382f.

The ceremonies in question have three main parts: the cremation; the gathering and burial of the bones; and the expiation. -These are followed by the craddha, described at AGS. iv.7, SBE. xxix.250f, 106f.

211f, who treats of the custom among almost all peoples of Indo-European stock. See p. 230 = 261f for the custom among our Anglo-Saxon forefathers, a remembrance of which lives in the modern English Bale-fire. Cremation is common throughout the MBh. -Holtzmann, Agni, p. 10.

3-4. Protasis, · · ced upa-tapet; apodosis. · · · ud-ava-syet (vsā).

5. enam, the sick householder.

6. U.f. · · paçunā iştyā iştvā (vyaj), ava-syet. See Stenzler's note to § 4. - See √sthā+sam.

7-8. The quarter and the slope are in general to the south, the region of the dead (cf. CB. i.2.517).

9. ity eke, see iti 2c. -tāvad-āyāmam (sc. khātam syāt), 'the trench should be having so much length.'

10. vitasty-avāk, 'span-deep': or, for vitasti-mātram avāk. - 'On all sides, the cm- should be an open space.'

11. "But thorn-plants and milk-plants" as aforesaid' [viz. at AGS. ii.7.5, "he should dig out with their roots and remove them "]. Cf. 986N.

12. cm- is both a burning-ground and a burial ground: here, the former, as is shown by ādahanasya. For a similar definitive apposition, cf. 9817.

13. 'This has been stated above' - at Çrāuta-sūtra, vi.10.2, given in Stenzler's note.

14. Rule 17, sc. 'should be.'

16. etam diçam, 'to that quarter,' mentioned 1017.

16-18. Rules 2-7: nayanti may be repeated w. the accusatives. Rule 2, cf. 1049.

20. The cord is usually worn over the shoulder; cf. Stenzler's note to AGS. iv.2.9. -On returning (10321), the order of march is reversed.

21. evam, in the order named. - karta, subject of pra_nksati, next line. - prasavyam, cf. 991N.

2-3. The oblation-fire, the householder's fire, and the southern fire are the three sacred fires which are to be started and set respectively in the SE., NW., and SW., identical with VS. xxxv.22. parts of the sacred place.

- 3-1. enam, 'for him,' i.e. the dead man (Oldenberg), or the conductor of the ceremony (see Stenzler). This second accusative with (idhmacitim) cinoti is strange.
- 4-6. The first tasmin, masc., refers to -citim, fem. !; the second, neuter, to -ajinam. 'On it they set the dead man, carrying (hrtva) him to the north of the g-, with his head towards the a-.'
- 6. 'To the north (of the corpse) they set the wife; and a bow for a Ksatriya.'
- 7-8. U.f. tām (= patnim) ut-thāpayet · · · vā, "ud īrṣva nāri etc." See 8618 N.
- 8. 'The conductor of the ceremony should repeat (the stanza) in case of a Cūdra (= in case a C. raises her up from the pile).'
- 9. dhanus, sc. apa-nayet. Rule 21= exactly 'Ditto in case of a Çūdra.'
- 9-10. 'Having strung it, without (= before) piling the pile (of things mentioned below), breaking (V1 cr) it, he should throw it on the fuel-pile.'
- 11 f. Müller gives pictures of these various implements, ZDMG. ix.p.VIIf, LXXVIIIf.
- 14. bhittvā ca ekam, 'and breaking (it in two pieces, in case there is only) one (sruva).'
- 18. asec-, sc. patrani. See VI pr. putras, the dead man's.
- 19. 'And the metallic ware (and) pottery.' 21-22. U.f. vrkkāu (134 end) ud-dhrtya (V1 hr). -daksine (sc. pānāu) daksinam (sc. vrkkam ā-dadhyāt), etc.
- 22-23. "And two meal-cakes," (say) some [, he should put on the hands of the corpse]. "(Only) in the absence of the kidneys," (say) others.' - sarvām, sc. anustaranīm.

- 1-2. See \mantraya+anu: 'accompanies the fetching . . w. the stanza "imam etc."
- 2-4. U.f. · · jānu ā_acya, · · juhuyāt, "agnaye svāhā etc." - pañcamīm (sc. ājya_āhutim juhuyāt) urasi pretasya —
- 4-5. U.f. "asmāt (accent; asmāt, 749N.) vāi (see vāi) · · · tvat adhi (see adhi)

- -asāu, voc., "O so-and-so."
 - 6. See V2is+pra3.
- 6-8. 'If the āh- should reach the corpse) first, "In the heaven-world it has reached him"-this may one know. Happy will that one be in that world: so (will) this one, that is, the son, in this (world).' U.f. rātsyati (vrādh) asāu amutra: evam avam asmin, iti putras. The last iti marks putras as an explanation of ayam.
 - 8-11. Rules 3-4 are counterparts of 2.
- 11-12. Rule 5: loc. = 'in case of.' rddhim vadanti, see Vvad 3. - "The higher the smoke of the pyre rises, the more distinguished will the departed be in the other world." - Weinhold, Altnord. Leben, 480-1.
- 12. tam, like sas (line 13) and eşas (16), refers to the departed.
- 12-13. · · · iti samanam, ' with the mantras "prehi prehi etc." in the same way'as indicated, namely, in the Crauta-sutra, at vi.10.19-20 (p. 505-6), i.e. with the 24 stanzas there enumerated. They are RV. x.14. 7.8.10.11: x.16.1-6: x.17.3-6: x.18.10-13: x.154.1-5; and x.14.12. The text of all these stanzas is given in the RV. order in the Reader, pages 83-91.
- 14. svargam lokam: note the fine distinction between this and the later svargalokam (as cpd). The old two-word form is used in lines 14 and 16, as virtual quotations from an older text; and above, at line 5, a quoted mantra; but the cpd is used in the Sūtra proper, line 7. Cf. 9216N.
- 15. U.f. avakām, çīpālam iti (marks çīas a gloss to avakām) ava-dhāpayet. tatas (= gartāt) ha (see ha) vāi etc.
- 17. With regard to the pertinence of the mantra, see Roth, ZDMG, viii.472, 468. savvāvrtas, cf. 991 N.
- 18-20. The end of each clause is marked by a gerund. -U.f. udakam a-vahat · · un-majjya, · · grhītvā, ut-tīrya, · · enāni (= vāsānsi, i.e. the ones they had on before changing) ā-pidya, · · āsate. - See á4. -Similarly, the bride keeps silence till starlight, 1008n.
- -See nāman2. Each of the relatives, jāyatām," a metrical mantra, substantially facing southward, performs the lustration, saying to the departed, "O thou of the family | not only in Sanskrit (a-nāmikā), but also of the Kāçyapans, O Devadatta, this water is for thee" (kāçyapagotra, devadatta, etat te ndakam). - Scholiast.

21. 'Or, while (a bit) of the sun is (still) seen, they may go home.' - Rule 12: cf. 10120N.

22. U.f. prāpya agāram, · · · a-ksatān, tilan, apas etc.

1. More fully, krītena vā, utpannena vā (sc. annena): see \pad+ud.

3f. Render the locatives by 'in case of,' i.e. here 'in case of the death of.' adhyayane, acc. dual n., 1253a.

8. See ürdhvam. - 'Tenth' (see daçamī) -counting from the day of death. krsnapaksasya ayujāsu, sc. tithisu. - See eka-naksatra. Of the 28 lunar mansions, six form three pairs, named 'former' and 'latter' Phalgunī (9-10), Aṣāḍhā (18-19), Bhadrapadā (24-25). Accordingly. under these asterisms, or in the lunar months named after them, the gathering is forbidden.

See Whitney, OLSt. ii.351f, 360. But cf. Weber, Abh. der Berliner Akad., 1861, p. 322.

9. 'In a plain male urn (they put) a man (i.e. his bones); in a plain female (urn - sc. kumbhyām), a woman.' If the urn has protuberances on it, like a woman's breasts, it is regarded as a female urn. Many such have been found by Schliemann - see his Ilios, numbers 986, 988-93. A male urn is one without these breasts.

9-10. § 3, cf. 10117. - prasavyam, 991N. 11-12. U.f. angustha_upakanisthikabhyām (cf. 10516) ekāikam asthi a- etc. Even the Brahmanas give evidence of a welldeveloped body of popular beliefs about the fingers: cf. CB. iii.1.325; iii.3.22,18f, and Eggeling's Index, SBE. xxvi.461, s.v. fingers. See the beautiful essay of W. Grimm, Ueber die bedeutung der deutschen fingernamen, Kleinere Schriften, iii.425-50.

But with the finger next the little one is associated - now something mysterious, now something uncanny (as here): this appears from the fact that it is the 'nameless' one with Tibetans, Chinese, Mongols, Lithuanians, Finns, and North American Indians. See Grimm, l.c. 441-47; and 912N.

13. The scholiast takes pavana as a 'winnowing-basket' used to sift out the small bones yet remaining among the ashes, and not picked up by hand. Is it not rather a 'fan to blow the ashes from the carefully gathered bones in the urn'?

13-14. U.f. yatra · · na abhi-syanderan, anyās varṣābhyas, tatra (sc. kumbham) · · ava-dadhyus. · Whereunto from all sides no water other than rain would flow.'

15-16. Rule 8: uttarayā (sc. rcā) = RV. $x.18.11 = 87^4$. -ava-kiret, $\sqrt{3}$ kr. -Rule 9 nttarām (= RV. x.18.12 = 876), sc. japet.

16-17. U.f. kapālena (sc. kumbham) api-dhāya, atha an-aveksam praty-āvrajya, apas etc. - asmāi, the deceased.

18. See V1 mr+abhi. For the force of the prefix, cf. what was said by a little newsboy, as reported by my colleague, Professor Lane, "My mother died on me and my father runned away." - See \2ksi+apa.

19. U.f. purā ndayāt.

20-22. tam = agnim. -ny-npya, \2vap. -See under yatra. - prasavyam: the left is associated with evil or sorrow (see 991x.): cf. Latin laevum omen or numen. savyān ūrūn ā-ghnānās (637).

1. npa-kalpayiran (for -yeran, see 9820x.), 'they should provide': the verb has 11 objects (lines 1 to 4).

2-3. U.f. çamimayyau arani. A legend explaining why the sacred fire is made with sticks of camī (see this) is given at MBh. ix. 47.14 = 2741 f.

4-5. agni-velāyām, 'at the time of the (evening) agnihotra': cf. 965n.

6. U.f. asate etc., similarly 10321.

7. U.f. itihāsa-purāņāni iti (see iti3) ā-khyāpayamānās (1042d). Story-telling followed the cremation in Germanic antiquity also - cf. Weinhold, Altnord. Leben, 482, and the very end of the Beowulf.

7-10. 'When sounds are hushed (\ram) or when (the others) have gone home or to bed, starting (pra-kramya) from the south side of the door, a continuous water-stream (the conductor of the ceremony) should offer, with the words "...," (going round) to the north (side of the door—u.f. iti ā uttarasmāt).'

10-12. Rule 8: cf. 10016f.

13-15. uttaratas, with agnes. -U.f. amātyān īkṣeta.

17. U.f. akṣiṇi (343f) ā_ajya (\anj) parācyas (4073) vi-srjeyus (sc. taruṇakāni).

18. añjānās (sc. yuvatīs) ikṣeta (subject, 'the conductor,' kartā).

19-22. 'Then, standing off (ava-sthāya) in the NE., while (the others) circumambulate (pari-krāmatsu) with fire, and bull's dung, and a continuous water-stream, with the trca "āpo hi sthā etc.," he should repeat "parīme gām etc."' —ud-ā-haranti, compare 1014.

- 1. U.f. yatra abhi-ransyamānās (vram, 939) bhavanti, 'where they are about (= intending) to tarry': not so well the vocab.

 See ahata. Respecting the Hindu washerman, his work, and tools, see G. A. Grierson, Bihār Peasant Life (Trübner, 1885), p. 81 f.
 - 2. U.f. ā udayāt. udite etc.
- 3. The scholiast to AGS. ii.3 end, enumerates the "Sun-hymns" and the "Blessings." The "Sun-hymns" are RV. x.158; i.50.1-9; i.115; and x.37. The "Blessings" are RV. i.89; v.51.11-15; and x.63. Cf. SBE. xxix.114. Of all these, only the second is given in the Reader—see Preface, page v, note 4.

3-4. U.f. annam samskrtya (1087d), "apa nas çoçucat agham" (= RV. i.97 = 728f) iti pr- hutvā. Cf. Preface, p. v, s.4.

4-5. vācayīta (see Vvac, caus.): we should expect -yeta — cf. 9820 N.

POSTSCRIPT.

Not without grave misgivings can a Vedic commentary be put forth. The hard places are very hard. Nevertheless, an unsatisfactory bit of exegesis may be a valuable approximation to the truth or may even suggest the correct solution of a difficulty.

Inasmuch as Professor Whitney has been so kind as to look over the manuscript of the Notes, it ought to be said that there are various things in the Vedic part of the work of which he does not approve.

The earliest English version of the Fables of Bidpai, The Morall Philosophie of Doni, by Sir Thomas North (see above, p. 313), has just been reprinted, with a valuable introduction by Joseph Jacobs, and published by David Nutt, London, 1888.

The second edition of Whitney's Grammar may soon be looked for. The section-numbers are substantially unchanged; but the subsections are marked with a, b, c, etc. The references in the Notes (see p. 289, above) are to the first edition of the Grammar. Users of the second edition will often have to seek, e.g., 8442 under 844a, 37112 under 371k, and the like.

In addition to the lexicons mentioned above, page xviii, there has recently appeared a Sanskrit-Wörterbuch nach den Petersburger Wörterbüchern bearbeitet von Carl Cappeller (Strassburg, Karl J. Trübner. 1887. Royal 8°, pages 541. Price 15 Mark). This is so excellent, cheap, and convenient as to deserve the warmest commendation. An English version is in progress.
